Announce Capture Of 4 U.S. Airmen

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. spokesman announced Saturday night the Viet Cong abducted four U.S. Air Force non-commissioned officers last Sunday and an intensive hunt is under way to recover them. Helicopters and planes scanned the countryside for clues.

The four were reported stopped at a Red roadblock while returning to Saigon from leave in Vung Tau, a seaside resort and military center 45 miles southeast of this city.

The trap was sprung only five or 10 miles from Vung Tau.

Unofficial sources said one of the men had a Vietnamese government outpost. This was their story, officially unconfirmed.

The man reported a second American escaped with him, but was later recaptured. The man who reportedly got away was quoted as saying he heard the shout "No, no, no," and then a burst of gunfire.

There was no word on the other two men. Military authorities declined to identify any pending notification of next of kin. All were based at Tan Son Airport in Saigon.

In operational affairs, the spokesman disclosed another American raid on a North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site.

About 15 U.S. Navy jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany hammered the missile site and a bridge 35 miles east of Hanoi with 35 tons of bombs Friday after conventional ground fire downed one of the planes in that area.

Other Navy craft and U.S. Air Force planes flew armed reconnaissance missions north of the border Saturday, gunning for ferry facilities, barges, roads and bridges.

There was no announcement here of any losses in these operations.

Red China's New China News Agency broadcast a Hanoi dispatch declaring that five U.S. aircraft, including a helicopter, were shot down and several of the pilots were captured.

Aground, men of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed an extensive Viet Cong tunnel system they uncovered in hills 20 miles north of Saigon.

Briefing officers said the Americans killed at least five Viet Cong and overran an underground medical station in action that cost them light casualties.

The tunnels were head high and several ran as far as 60 feet into the hillsides. Many contained demolition charges left by the guerrillas.

The Viet Cong generally were lying low after their defeat last month in the central highlands battle of Plei Me, which is estimated to have cost them 750 or more dead.

However, South Vietnamese troops reported they killed 12 guerrillas and captured five in a sweep south of Saigon.

New Hemlines Cause Problem In Custom Lines

LONDON (AP) — In Britain, women's skirts get shorter, men's eyes get bigger, and custom officers' faces get longer.

Their problem? The long and short of it is that they can't tell the difference any more between a dress designed for a woman and one for a child.

The difference is vital, because they have the duty to stick a 10 per cent sales tax on women's dresses. Children's clothing is exempt.

Apprehensively, the customs men watched as over the years the hemlines crept up to mid-knee, above the knee, and now up to around mid thigh.

Lovely, the customs men may have thought. But unfortunately for them the dresses also got simpler, like the shift worn recently by model Jean Shrimpton in Melbourne, Australia, resulting in headlines on the hemlines.

Resolutely, Britain's customs men averted their eyes and concentrated on the problem this raised: women's dresses might be sold as children's and so escape tax.

The customs men held worried consultations with the garment trade to find out how they could tell the difference between a crate of cocktail dresses and a gross of gym slips.

The answer: lift up your eyes from the hemlines and try measuring the bust-lines.

Saturday, a customs spokesman disclosed that the length of the dresses, the traditional deciding factor, will from next January be supplemented by vital statistic No. 1 for pinups.

Dresses more than 38 inches long will be subject to sales tax. But so will dresses with a 32 bust and corresponding hip measurements.

Smith Charges Wilson Reneged On Terms

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain Saturday of wrecking prospects for a settlement of the Rhodesia independence crisis.

Wilson, in a brief comment to London newsmen, said he did not accept Smith's charge, but would have no formal statement until he had studied it more fully.

In a letter to London, Smith charged Wilson had reneged on his agreement for a royal commission to seek a solution to Rhodesia's demand for independence from Britain.

Smith claimed Wilson had done this by announcing that the British government will not be bound by the findings of the commission, which would be made up of one Briton, one Rhodesian and the chief of the Rhodesian Supreme Court.

Wilson and Smith agreed to the commission during the British leader's visit to Rhodesia last week.

The commission's task was to determine whether this central African nation of 225,000 whites and 3.8 million blacks wanted independence under the terms of the 1961 constitution. This constitution restricts the political activities of the blacks and gives control to the whites.

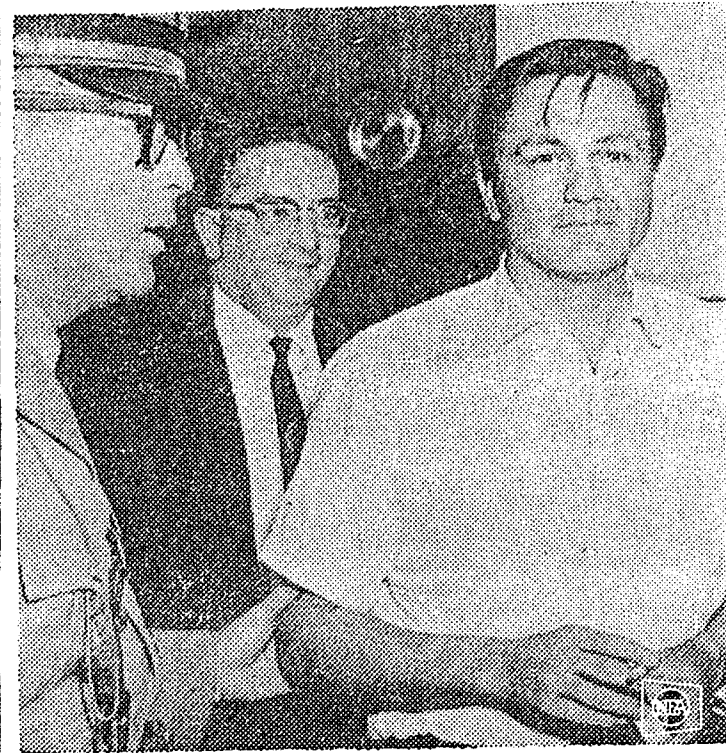

Wilson wanted a referendum to get the answer but Smith's all-white government rejected this.

Britain is willing to grant Rhodesia independence but insists on guarantees for eventual majority rule, which would give the blacks control of the government.

Smith's government has threatened a unilateral declaration of independence.

In his message to Wilson, Smith declared: "It would seem that you have now finally closed the door which you have claimed publicly to have opened."

Smith's message caught British officials by surprise. Wilson was in Cardiff, Wales, for the wedding of a niece. He said there he had nothing to say about Smith's message. At 10 Downing St. in London, a spokesman for the prime minister also declined comment.

Macapagal Promises Aid To Viet

MANILA (AP) — Three days before national elections President Diosdado Macapagal freed the Filipino currency Saturday, reaffirmed a pro-Western foreign policy and pledged to send a military unit to help South Viet Nam.

Macapagal expressed beaming confidence at a news conference that he would be elected to a second term in Tuesday's voting and added:

"Our ultimate ambition is to be able to show that a democracy where people can live in prosperity and freedom can be established in Asia."

While Macapagal was claiming victory by at least 650,000 votes, his chief opponent, Sen. Ferdinand Marcos, was claiming he would win an even larger majority. Impartial election observers rated the election, one of the most hard-fought in Philippine history, a toss-up.

Macapagal's action in freeing the currency and pegging the peso rate at 3.90 to the dollar was an evident election move to win support from the nation's businessmen.

Although the free market rate is also 3.90 to the dollar and has

Orbit Satellite For Future Aid In Map-Making

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A map-making satellite named Geos 1 soared into orbit Saturday to take earth's measurements in an experiment that could produce the world's most accurate maps, better pinpoint long-range missile targets and establish guideposts for tracking men to the moon.

The 385-pound geodetic explorer rode into space atop a towering Delta rocket that ruffled a rainstorm at 1:39 p.m.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported half an hour later that the payload was circling the globe at altitudes ranging from 700 to about 1,300 miles.

The high point of the orbital path was about 400 miles higher than intended because the guidance system was unable to shut down the second stage at the desired time. Officials said the guidance signal beamed from the ground may continue to be weakened as it tried to push through the rain.

After studying initial data from Geos 1, project director Jerome Rosenberg told newsmen: "We've got a satellite that's just peachy-dandy." He said the higher orbit would not affect its performance.

The satellite carried four high-powered flashing lights, laser beam reflectors and three different sets of radio gear designed to learn with an accuracy never before possible where earth has dips and bulges, her center of gravity and distances between far apart places.

U.S., Cuba Agree To Airlift Terms

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The United States and Communist Cuba sealed Saturday an agreement allowing 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans a month to find refuge in this country. The starting deadline is Dec. 1 and there is no cutoff date.

The emphasis will be on reuniting thousands of families. Officials make no predictions on how many Cubans may leave their homeland under the new pact but the total is expected to run beyond 100,000.

The government puts the number of Cubans who already have taken asylum in the United States at more than 250,000. Before the 1962 Cuban missile crisis halted travel, about 2,000 Cubans were coming in each month.

President Johnson announced the new refugee agreement, negotiated through the Swiss Embassy in Havana as the representative of this country, and said in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Johnson was referring to a speech he made beside the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor in which he quickly took up Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on a sweeping promise to fling open Cuba's gates to any and all wishing to leave.

Castro welshed when it came to actual negotiations. While the matter is open for further discussions, he wound up by slamming the doors to political prisoners, men of military age and technicians he wants to keep. Differences over this held up the agreement for days.

Furthermore, the U.S. government regards the refugee agreement as no real omen of a general improvement in Cuban-American relations.

The flight of the refugees from Cuba will be literally that. Commercial airliners chartered by the U.S. government will pick them up at the Varadero Airport, 60 miles east of Havana, and land them at Miami, Fla. Some will join the Cuban colony in the Miami area but

U.S. Increases Rate Of Sales From Aluminum

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blast at recent price increases, the Johnson administration on Saturday doubled the rate of sales from surplus aluminum stockpiles and earmarked most of the increase for requirements of the Viet Nam war.

Three top officials, at a news conference in the White House, emphasized repeatedly that the decision to dispose of 200,000 tons during 1966 at market prices was not related to price boosts within the past 10 days by the major aluminum manufacturers.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said, "I really don't see the relation is very clear between these two matters." But he added that sales from surpluses would "relieve inflationary pressure on aluminum and on the economy in general."

After reviewing the price increases, the fifth in 25 months, Ackley said his council "has concluded that these increases have no justification under the wage-price guideposts and are therefore inflationary."

He noted that, "The strong productivity trend easily matches the cost of the recent (aluminum) labor settlement," adding that "higher prices, stable costs and large volume have produced sharply rising profits in the industry" — some 80 per cent more this year than in 1960.

Nothing that 80 per cent of aluminum production is in the hands of three producers, Ackley said, "This situation imposes a particular responsibility on those companies to consider the public interest in their pricing decisions."

One of the major producers, Reynolds Metals Co., replied in a statement that aluminum is the only metal industry whose price has not increased beyond the 1957-59 period, which it said is the generally accepted base.

Soviets Base Future Plans On Premise Of World Peace

An AP News Analysis By Henry S. Bradsher

MOSCOW (AP) — Strong signs are appearing here that Soviet leaders have decided to base their plans for the next five years on an expectation of world peace.

Half a year ago, they were indicating anxiety about the possibility of a general war, emphasizing the need to be ready for it.

Today they still are accusing the United States of aggression in Viet Nam and elsewhere, still blustering about the dangers to peace. But they seem to have decided it is safe to plan on avoiding a major, nuclear war, give or take a few localized conflicts.

As a result, they are concentrating on developing the Soviet Union's civilian economy, both in heavy industry and consumer goods, instead of gearing for defense production.

A decision on the prospects for war or peace had to be made before the Soviet five-year plan for 1966-70 could be written. The country lacks enough resources to prepare for war while trying to modernize its backward agriculture and carry out old-fashioned promises of better living standards.

So, as the time for drawing up the plan approached, the collective leadership, headed by Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, had to evaluate the international situation.

Last spring it looked bad to them. The United States had begun bombing a Communist country, North Viet Nam. That and other things made Kosygin say that the benefits of defense savings were not possible and that defense must go ahead of consumer goods.

A number of developments might have made the leaders change their minds.

They include the cooling down of a sense of crisis over Viet Nam, the recent setback to Chinese hopes for expanded influence which carried dangers of East-West collisions, and the troubles of the Atlantic alliance with its delay in a multilateral nuclear force.

In September, the Soviet Communist party decided upon changes in economic methods in hopes of making the lagging economy more efficient. But this only put off the basic question of a resource allocation: Must defense get a large slice of the small pie because war might come, or can it be held within reasonable limits while resources are devoted to building up the economy with reformed methods?

Recent speeches indicate the decision has gone to the civilian part of the economy, which itself contains elements competing for investment money.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda has put new emphasis on building Soviet economic strength as the best way to advance the worldwide cause of communism.

Saturday, First Deputy Premier Dmitry S. Polyansky told a Bolshevik Revolution anniversary meeting, "It is our belief that, in present-day conditions, it is possible to make international relations take a turn for the better."

Announce Capture Of 4 U.S. Airmen

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. spokesman announced Saturday night the Viet Cong abducted four U.S. Air Force non-commissioned officers last Sunday and an intensive hunt is under way to recover them. Helicopters and planes scanned the countryside for clues.

The four were reported stopped at a Red roadblock while returning to Saigon from leave in Vung Tau, a seaside resort and military center 45 miles southeast of this city.

The trap was sprung only five or 10 miles from Vung Tau.

Unofficial sources said one of the men had escaped and made his way to a Vietnamese government outpost. This was their story, officially unconfirmed.

The man reported a second American escaped with him, but was later recaptured. The man who reportedly got away was quoted as saying he heard the shout "No, no, no," and then a burst of gunfire.

There was no word on the other two men. Military authorities declined to identify any pending notification of next of kin. All were based at Tan Son Airport in Saigon.

In operational affairs, the spokesman disclosed another American raid on a North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site.

About 15 U.S. Navy jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany hammered the missile site and a bridge 35 miles east of Hanoi with 35 tons of bombs Friday after conventional ground fire downed one of the planes in that area.

Other Navy craft and U.S. Air Force planes flew armed route reconnaissance missions north of the border Saturday, gunning for ferry facilities, barges, roads and bridges.

There was no announcement here of any losses in these operations.

Red China's New China News Agency broadcast a Hanoi dispatch declaring that five U.S. aircraft, including a helicopter, were shot down and several of the pilots were captured.

Aground, men of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed an extensive Viet Cong tunnel system they uncovered in hills 20 miles north of Saigon.

Briefing officers said the Americans killed at least five Viet Cong and overran an underground medical station in action that cost them light casualties.

The tunnels were head high and several ran as far as 60 feet into the hillsides. Many contained demolition charges left by the guerrillas.

The Viet Cong generally were lying low after their defeat last month in the central highlands battle of Plei Me, which is estimated to have cost them 750 or more dead.

However, South Vietnamese troops reported they killed 12 guerrillas and captured five in a sweep south of Saigon.

New Hemlines Cause Problem In Custom Lines

LONDON (AP) — In Britain, women's skirts get shorter, men's eyes get bigger, and custom officers' faces get longer.

Their problem? The long and short of it is that they can't tell the difference any more between a dress designed for a woman and one for a child.

The difference is vital, because they have the duty to stick a 10 per cent sales tax on women's dresses. Children's clothing is exempt.

Apprehensively, the customs men watched as over the years the hemlines crept up to mid-knee, above the knee, and now up to around midthigh.

Lovely, the customs men have thought. But unfortunately for them the dresses also got simpler, like the shift worn recently by model Jean Shrimpton in Melbourne, Australia, resulting in headlines on the hemlines.

Resolutely, Britain's customs men averted their eyes and concentrated on the problem this raised: women's dresses might be sold as children's and so escape tax.

The customs men held worried consultations with the garment trade to find out how they could tell the difference between a crate of cocktail dresses and a gross of gym slips.

The answer: lift up your eyes from the hemlines and try measuring the bust-lines.

Saturday, a customs spokesman disclosed that the length of the dresses, the traditional deciding factor, will from next January be supplemented by vital statistic No. 1 for pinups.

Dresses more than 38 inches long will be subject to sales tax. But so will dresses with a 32 bust and corresponding hip measurements.

Sukarno Claims Bribe Attempt Made By U.S.

SINGAPORE (AP) — President Sukarno of Indonesia claimed Saturday the United States once offered him a large personal bribe to spread Western ideas throughout his left-leaning nation. He also said that after last month's pro-Communist coup the United States offered help to the nation.

Sukarno implied that both the alleged bribe and offer of help were rejected. As for the offer of help, Sukarno said he told U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green: "You Americans always pretend to help us when we look like winning."

The Indonesian president brought both points up in an address to his Cabinet at Bogor, 40 miles outside Jakarta, the Indonesian capital. His remarks were relayed by Radio Jakarta.

Sukarno did not say when the alleged bribe was offered or by whom. He said it was in the amount of 150 million rupiahs. It is difficult to determine how much this represents in terms of dollars because Sukarno did not give the time of the offer.

The rupiah has been falling sharply over the past few years and it now is worth .0224 of a cent in the world currency exchange.

In Washington, the State Department had no comment on Sukarno's statement.

Soviets Base Future Plans On Premise Of World Peace

An AP News Analysis By Henry S. Bradsher

MOSCOW (AP) — Strong signs are appearing here that Soviet leaders have decided to base their plans for the next five years on an expectation of world peace.

Half a year ago, they were indicating anxiety about the possibility of a general war, emphasizing the need to be ready for it.

Today they still are accusing the United States of aggression in Viet Nam and elsewhere, still blustering about the dangers to peace. But they seem to have decided it is safe to plan on avoiding a major, nuclear war, give or take a few localized conflicts.

As a result, they are concentrating on developing the Soviet Union's civilian economy, both in heavy industry and consumer goods, instead of gearing for defense production.

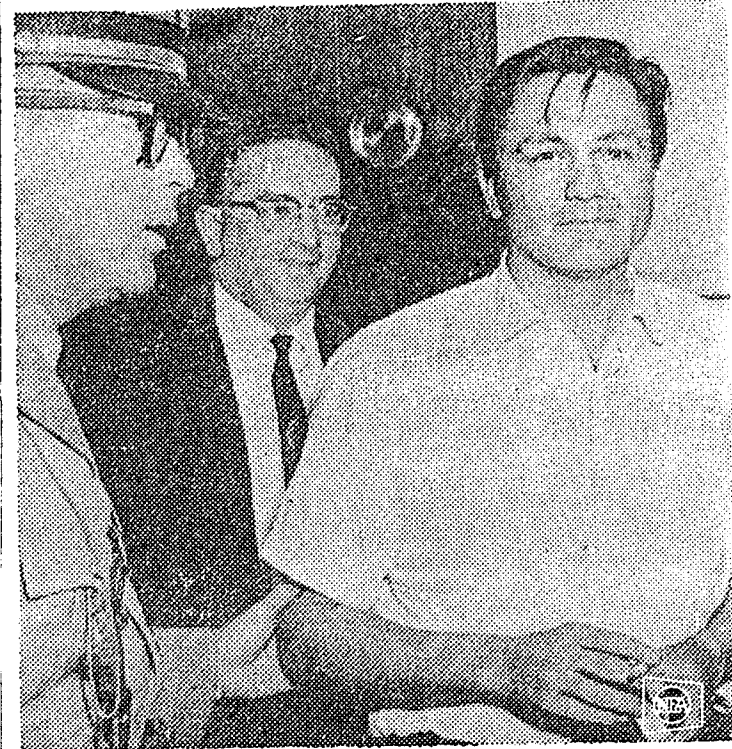

A decision on the prospects for war or peace had to be made before the Soviet five-year plan for 1966-70 could be written. The country lacks enough resources to prepare for war while trying to modernize its backward agriculture and carry out off-defaulted promises of better living standards.

So, as the time for drawing up the plan approached, the collective leadership, headed by Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, had to evaluate the international situation.

Last spring it looked bad to them. The United States had begun bombing a Communist country, North Viet Nam. That and other things made Kosygin say that the benefits of defense savings were not possible and that defense must go ahead of consumer goods.

A number of developments might have made the leaders change their minds. They include the cooling down of a sense of crisis over Viet Nam, the recent setback to Chinese hopes for expanded influence which carried dangers of East-West collisions, and the troubles of the Atlantic alliance with its delay in a multilateral nuclear force.

Smith Charges Wilson Reneged On Terms

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain Saturday of wrecking prospects for a settlement of the Rhodesian independence crisis.

Wilson, in a brief comment to London newsmen, said he did not accept Smith's charge, but would have no formal statement until he had studied it more fully.

In a letter to London, Smith charged Wilson had reneged on his agreement for a royal commission to seek a solution to Rhodesia's demand for independence from Britain.

Smith claimed Wilson had done this by announcing that the British government will not be bound by the findings of the commission, which would be made up of one Briton, one Rhodesian and the chief of the Rhodesian Supreme Court.

Wilson and Smith agreed to the commission during the British leader's visit to Rhodesia last week.

The commission's task was to determine whether this central African nation of 2,250,000 whites and 3.8 million blacks wanted independence under the terms of the 1961 constitution. This constitution restricts the political activities of the blacks and gives control to the whites.

Wilson wanted a referendum to get the answer but Smith's all-white government rejected this.

Britain is willing to grant Rhodesia independence but insists on guarantees for eventual majority rule, which would give the blacks control of the government.

Smith's government has threatened a unilateral declaration of independence.

In his message to Wilson, Smith declared: "It would seem that you have now finally closed the door which you have claimed publicly to have opened."

Smith's message caught British officials by surprise. Wilson was in Cardiff, Wales, for the wedding of a niece. He said there he had nothing to say about Smith's message. At 10 Downing St. in London, a spokesman for the prime minister also declined comment.

Some sources in London said, however, they could not see how Smith now could avoid carrying out his threat of declaring independence — a move that could bring world sanctions and boycotts upon Rhodesia.

Margaret Views U. Of C. Campus, Scenic Beauty

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shielded by security guards from sight of a nearby labor union picket line, Britain's lively Princess Margaret got into a wave-skimming boat Saturday, crossed San Francisco Bay and showed how royalty can have nuclear-age interests.

Aides said the princess, dressed in a bright red suit and needlepoint fez, had trouble tearing herself away from a nuclear medical treatment center at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

The princess, accompanied by her husband, Lord Snowdon, spent 20 minutes in a medical cave of the university's huge cyclotron at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory.

Later, waving and smiling, the happy couple left Oakland International Airport in a twin turboprop plane for a 120-mile flight to scenic Monterey Peninsula — and a Western-style barbecue of wild boar.

Dr. Edwin M. McMillan, a Nobel laureate and director of the university laboratory, guided the tour for the princess, her husband, and other members of the royal party.

She saw a sanctum shielded by 10 inches of lead, in which nuclear beams are focused on cancers and on ailing pituitary glands.

After they emerged from the cyclotron, Dr. McMillan showed the princess a model of a beaver, a cousin to the cyclotron which is used in high-energy physics research.

Earlier, the royal party visited the Bancroft Library, which houses a famed collection of lore on the western United States and northern Latin America.

Hunter Dupree, a director of the library, showed the Snowdons a small bronze plaque, "Drake's Plate of Brass," said to have been left on the northern California shore by famed British explorer, Sir Francis Drake, on June 17, 1579.

The plaque claims possession of California for Queen Elizabeth I of England, calling it Nova Albion, Latin for New England.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT INKS VIET PETITION

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The Very Rev. Paul Reinert, president of St. Louis University, signed a student petition Saturday supporting U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

The petition contains more than 2,000 names of students and faculty members. The two students who circulated the petition, James Cacciano and Patrick Behan, said copies will go to President Johnson, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and Gen. William Westmoreland, Viet Nam commander.

Macapagal Promises Aid To Viet

MANILA (AP) — Three days before national elections President Diosdado Macapagal freed the Philippine currency Saturday, reaffirmed a pro-Western foreign policy and pledged to send a military unit to help South Viet Nam.

Macapagal expressed beaming confidence at a news conference that he would be elected to a second term in Tuesday's voting and added:

"Our ultimate ambition is to be able to show that a democracy where people can live in prosperity and freedom can be established in Asia."

While Macapagal was claiming victory by at least 650,000 votes, his chief opponent, Sen. Ferdinand Marcos, was claiming he would win an even larger majority. Impartial election observers rated the election, one of the most hard-fought in Philippine history, a toss-up.

Macapagal's action in freeing the currency and pegging the peso rate at 3.90 to the dollar was an evident election move to win support from the nation's businessmen.

Orbit Satellite For Future Aid In Map-Making

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A map-making satellite named Geos 1 soared into orbit Saturday to take earth's measurements in an experiment that could produce the world's most accurate maps, better pinpoint long-range missile targets and establish guideposts for tracking men to the moon.

The 385-pound geodetic explorer rode into space atop a towering Delta rocket that rifled away from Cape Kennedy in a rainstorm at 1:39 p.m.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported half an hour later that the payload was circling the globe at altitudes ranging from 700 to about 1,300 miles.

The high point of the orbital path was about 400 miles higher than intended because the guidance system was unable to shut down the second stage at the desired time. Officials said the guidance signal beamed from the ground may continue to be weakened as it tried to push through the rain.

After studying initial data from Geos 1, project director Jerome Rosenberg told newsmen: "We've got a satellite that's just peachy-dandy." He said the higher orbit would not affect its performance.

The satellite carried four high-powered flashing lights, laser beam reflectors and three different sets of radio gear designed to learn with an accuracy never before possible where earth has dips and bulges, her center of gravity and distances between far apart places.

There were some counterdemonstrators in the crowd. One squirted water on the card-burners from a portable device, and was seized by police.

Across the street, about 100 counterpicketers marched with signs, one of which read, "Burn yourselves instead of your draft cards."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said it was investigating but no arrests were imminent.

Pentagon Swamped In Sea Of Goodies

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upsurge of popular reaction to recent anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations is threatening to drown the Pentagon in a sea of cookies, fruit cake, books and other things for U.S. servicemen in the war zone.

The generosity is welcomed by the Pentagon which views it as an expression of support for U.S. policies.

But the unsolicited offers from individuals, organizations, schools, business firms and other groups is creating a logistics problem — how to move the stuff, and what to do with it once it arrives in Viet Nam.

Defense officials have been worrying with the problem for days.

They don't want to offend the givers. And yet they would like to channel the generosity in some other direction.

One proposal, endorsed by the U.S. command in Viet Nam, would have communities in the United States adopt some unit in Viet Nam.

Leaders of the community would contact members of the unit, find out what the men really wanted, and attempt to supply their wants. It would be a kind of "buddy system."

The offers to do something for the boys began pouring into the Pentagon about two weeks ago. Officials said the citizens who wrote in, telegraphed and tele-

U.S., Cuba Agree To Airlift Terms

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The United States and Communist Cuba sealed Saturday an agreement allowing 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans a month to find refuge in this country. The starting deadline is Dec. 1 and there is no cutoff date.

The emphasis will be on reuniting thousands of families. Officials make no predictions on how many Cubans may leave their homeland under the new pact but the total is expected to run beyond 100,000.

The government puts the number of Cubans who already have taken asylum in the United States at more than 250,000. Before the 1962 Cuban missile crisis halted travel, about 8,000 Cubans were coming in each month.

President Johnson announced the new refugee agreement, negotiated through the Swiss Embassy in Havana as the representative of this country, and said in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Johnson was referring to a speech he made beside the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor in which he quickly took up Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on a sweeping promise to fling open Cuba's gates to any and all wishing to leave.

Castro welshed when it came to actual negotiations.

While the matter is open for further discussions, he wound up by slamming the doors to political prisoners, men of military age and technicians he wants to keep. Differences over this held up the agreement for days.

Furthermore, the U.S. government regards the refugee agreement as no real omen of a general improvement in Cuban-

American relations.

The flight of the refugees from Cuba will be literally that. Commercial airliners chartered by the U.S. government will pick them up at the Varadero Airport, 60 miles east of Havana, and land them at Miami, Fla. Some will join the Cuban

Announce Capture Of 4 U.S. Airmen

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. spokesman announced Saturday night the Viet Cong abducted four U.S. Air Force non-commissioned officers last Sunday and an intensive hunt is under way to recover them. Helicopters and planes scanned the countryside for clues.

The four were reported stopped at a Red roadblock while returning to Saigon from leave in Vung Tau, a seaside resort and military center 45 miles southeast of this city.

The trap was sprung only five or 10 miles from Vung Tau.

Unofficial sources said one of the men had escaped and made his way to a Vietnamese government outpost. This was their story, officially unconfirmed.

The man reported a second American escaped with him, but was later recaptured. The man who reportedly got away was quoted as saying he heard the shout "No, no, no," and then a burst of gunfire.

There was no word on the other two men. Military authorities declined to identify any pending notification of next of kin. All were based at Tan Son Airport in Saigon.

In operational affairs, the spokesman disclosed another American raid on a North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site.

About 15 U.S. Navy jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Oriskany hammered the missile site and a bridge 35 miles east of Hanoi with 35 tons of bombs Friday after conventional ground fire downed one of the planes in that area.

Other Navy craft and U.S. Air Force planes flew armed route reconnaissance missions north of the border Saturday, gunning for ferry facilities, barges, roads and bridges.

There was no announcement here of any losses in these operations.

Red China's New China News Agency broadcast a Hanoi dispatch declaring that five U.S. aircraft, including a helicopter, were shot down and several of the pilots were captured.

Aground, men of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed an extensive Viet Cong tunnel system they uncovered in hills 20 miles north of Saigon.

Briefing officers said the Americans killed at least five Viet Cong and overran an underground medical station in action that cost them light casualties.

The tunnels were head high and several ran as far as 60 feet into the hillsides. Many contained demolition charges left by the guerrillas.

The Viet Cong generally were lying low after their defeat last month in the central highlands battle of Plei Me, which is estimated to have cost them 750 or more dead.

However, South Vietnamese troops reported they killed 12 guerrillas and captured five in a sweep south of Saigon.

New Hemlines Cause Problem In Custom Lines

LONDON (AP) — In Britain, women's skirts get shorter, men's eyes get bigger, and customs officers' faces get longer. Their problem? The long and short of it is that they can't tell the difference any more between a dress designed for a woman and one for a child.

The difference is vital, because they have the duty to stick a 10 per cent sales tax on women's dresses. Children's clothing is exempt.

Apprehensively, the customs men watched as over the years the hemlines crept up to mid-knee, above the knee, and now up to around mid thigh.

Lovely, the customs men may have thought. But unfortunately for them the dresses also got simpler, like the shift worn recently by model Jean Shrimpton in Melbourne, Australia, resulting in headlines on the hemlines.

Resolutely, Britain's customs men averted their eyes and concentrated on the problem this raised: women's dresses might be sold as children's and so escape tax.

The customs men held worried consultations with the garment trade to find out how they could tell the difference between a crate of cocktail dresses and a gross of gym slips.

The answer: lift up your eyes from the hemlines and try measuring the bust-lines.

Saturday, a customs spokesman disclosed that the length of the dresses, the traditional deciding factor, will from next January be supplemented by vital statistic No. 1 for pinups.

Dresses more than 38 inches long will be subject to sales tax. But so will dresses with a 32 bust and corresponding hip measurements.

Sukarno Claims Bribe Attempt Made By U.S.

Sukarno did not say when the alleged bribe was offered or by whom. He said it was in the amount of 150 million rupiahs. It is difficult to determine how much this represents in terms of dollars because Sukarno did not give the time of the offer.

The rupiah has been falling sharply over the past few years and it now is worth .024 of a cent in the world currency exchange.

In Washington, the State Department had no comment on Sukarno's statement.

After studying initial data from Geos 1, project director Jerome Rosenberg told newsmen: "We've got a satellite that's just peachy-dandy." He said the higher orbit would not affect its performance.

The satellite carried four high-powered flashing lights, laser beam reflectors and three different sets of radio gear designed to learn with an accuracy never before possible where earth has dips and bulges, her center of gravity and distances between far apart places.

U.S., Cuba Agree To Airlift Terms

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The United States and Communist Cuba sealed Saturday an agreement allowing 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans a month to find refuge in this country. The starting deadline is Dec. 1 and there is no cutoff date.

The emphasis will be on reuniting thousands of families. Officials make no predictions on how many Cubans may leave their homeland under the new pact but the total is expected to run beyond 100,000.

The government puts the number of Cubans who already have taken asylum in the United States at more than 250,000. Before the 1962 Cuban missile crisis halted travel, about 8,000 Cubans were coming in each month.

President Johnson announced the new refugee agreement, negotiated through the Swiss Embassy in Havana as the representative of this country, and said in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Johnson was referring to a speech he made before the State of Liberty in New York Harbor in which he quickly took up Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on a sweeping promise to fling open Cuba's gates to any and all wishing to leave.

Castro welshed when it came to actual negotiations. While the matter is open for further discussions, he wound up by slamming the doors to political prisoners, men of military age and technicians he wants to keep. Differences over this held up the agreement for days.

Furthermore, the U.S. government regards the refugee agreement as no real omen of a general improvement in Cuban-American relations.

5 Claim Burning Of Draft Cards

NEW YORK (AP) — Five men burned what they said were their draft cards at a pacifist rally attended by about 2,000 persons in Union Square Park Saturday.

There was applause as the cards went up in flames, and most of the crowd joined in singing, "We Shall Overcome."

There were some counterdemonstrators in the crowd. One squirted water on the card-burners from a portable device, and was seized by police.

Across the street, about 100 counterprotesters marched with signs, one of which read, "Burn yourselves instead of your draft cards."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said it was investigating but no arrests were imminent.

Pentagon Swamped In Sea Of Goodies

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upsurge of popular reaction to recent anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations is threatening to drown the Pentagon in a sea of cookies, fruit cake, books and other things for U.S. servicemen in the war zone.

The generosity is welcomed by the Pentagon which views it as an expression of support for U.S. policies.

But the unsolicited offers from individuals, organizations, schools, business firms and other groups is creating a logistics problem — how to move the stuff, and what to do with it once it arrives in Viet Nam.

Defense officials have been worrying with the problem for days. They don't want to offend the givers. And yet they would like to channel the generosity in some other direction.

One proposal, endorsed by the U.S. command in Viet Nam, would have communities in the United States adopt some unit in Viet Nam.

Leaders of the community would contact members of the unit, find out what the men really wanted, and attempt to supply their wants. It would be a kind of "buddy system."

The offers to do something for the boys began pouring into the Pentagon about two weeks ago. Officials said the citizens who wrote in, telegraphed and tele-

they did not define "close" relatives. The flight of the refugees from Cuba will be literally that. Furthermore, Cubans who commercial airliners chartered can't qualify as "immediate" by the U.S. government will get a chance to pick them up at the Varadero Airport, 60 miles east of Havana, and land them at Miami, Fla. Some will join the Cuban colony in the Miami area but wide free, fast, safe transportation centers are expected to funnel most of them to other parts of the country.

When humanitarian considerations require it, the U.S. and Cuban governments also will stormy crossings of the Florida put some "close" relatives in the top-priority category. But the U.S. Coast Guard.

Group States GOP Learned Big Lesson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans for Progress said Saturday night the GOP got a lesson on how to win votes, rather than party victories, in last Tuesday's elections.

The organization, headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, follows a moderate line in political philosophy. It has opposed a party takeover by conservatives and right-wing elements.

The Taft group said in a statement that conservatives failed in their objectives in the New York mayor race and elsewhere, in what amounted to "a repudiation of the far right in American politics and as a force in the Republican party."

GOP Rep. John V. Lindsay, who was elected mayor, played down the party label as a candidate on a Republican-Liberal fusion ticket.

The conservative drive, headed by candidate William F. Buckley Jr. of the Conservative party, was directed against Lindsay's refusal to support 1964 GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater.

Goldwater himself has been silent about the election results and the Conservative Free Society Association he heads as honorary chairman has made no comment.

Republicans for Progress said that while there were "hopeful, affirmative signs" for the party in the Tuesday voting, the results didn't represent a victory but did offer guideposts for the future.

"The lesson of the victories in New York, Philadelphia, Louisville, Akron and the rest is that when our candidates set out to solve the problems before the people—when they put forward programs to solve these problems—then and then only can we claim and win electoral support."

Americans for Democratic Action—ADA—credited President Johnson and Goldwater with what it called the legislative success of the congressional session that ended last month.

The ADA said in an analysis of the session that Johnson "worked unceasingly for the enactment of liberal measures." But it added that Goldwater's "capture of the Republican party in 1964 produced a banner crop of freshman House Democrats replacing conservative Republicans and furnishing the victory margin."

ADA said that in the House SIX SOLDIERS KILLED ALONG CEASE-FIRE LINE RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Six Indian soldiers were killed in a clash along the cease-fire line, a Pakistani government statement said Saturday. The clash took place in the Wagah sector, 200 miles east of Rawalpindi and there were no Pakistani casualties, it added. Davenport

In the Jacoby limit raise system the two no-trump response by an unpassed hand to a major suit opening bid is designed to show a strong raise for partner's suit and has nothing to do with no-trump.

A lot of bridge players are going to feel hurt by the inability to bid two no-trump with intention of playing at three no-trump, but after a while they will find that they won't have lost anything.

Thus when playing the Jacoby system South cannot respond two no-trump to his partner's spade opening bid. However, he can respond two clubs and then jump to three no-trump after his partner's two spade rebid.

South has quite a problem at his three no-trump contract. He holds off twice on diamonds, but must win the third lead. Then he runs off four club tricks and each opponent discards a small heart.

His next lead is a low spade toward dummy. West plays low and South puts in dummy's nine. East wins the trick and leads a heart.

The way the cards lie South will make all the rest of the tricks because the heart finesse will work and the spades are going to break. South does not know this and has to decide. What should he do?

The answer is that he should finesse and risk a two trick set. The finesse is an even money proposition to start with, but since West showed five diamonds to his partner's two and each defender had produced three clubs the odds are that East will hold the king of hearts.

♥CARD Sense♦

Q—The bidding has been:
North East South West
2 Pass 3 Pass
4 Pass 4 N.T. Pass
5 Pass 5 N.T. Pass
6 Pass ?

You, South, hold:
AQJ2 ♠ A1654 ♣ K109 ♢ 32

What do you do?
A—Bid seven spades. There is a temptation to try seven no-trump, but you should resist that temptation. Your partner may need to ruff a club to make 3 tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Your partner opens with two spades. You hold:
7 ♣ KQ652 ♢ 84 ♠ AQ1094

What do you respond?

The Student Program Board is presenting the piano team of Ferrante and Teicher on Sunday, November 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Annie Merner Chapel.

Arthur Ferrante and Louis Teicher are well-known for their recordings of both classical and popular music and for their personal appearances on television and the concert stage. Considered the outstanding team in instrumental recordings, their initial hit was "Theme from 'The Apartment'", followed by their first million seller, "Exodus," and they have long-playing albums still among the nation's best sellers.

Appearing on every major radio network and in television, they have been on the Ed Sullivan, Dinah Shore and Steve Allen shows and were for two years the resident piano team on ABC Radio's Piano Playhouse.

Since their debut with the Toledo Symphony in 1947, they have played in 48 states and Canada, appearing with leading orchestras, or on their own as a duo and entertaining both college and civil audiences with a combination of classical music and their arrangements of the popular tunes of Gershwin, Rodgers, Kern, Porter and others. Using original gadgets, Ferrante and Teicher can extend the tonal range of their pianos, creating new sound effects and unique musical arrangements.

Ferrante and Teicher have been playing pianos together since they were six and met as students in New York's Juilliard School of Music. They both graduated from Juilliard as piano majors under Carl Friedberg and returned there as faculty members, teaching theory and composition. Combining teaching with a limited schedule of concerts, they worked together to create new duo piano material, and in 1947 resigned from Juilliard in order to devote full time to concert work.

Because of limited seating space in Annie Merner Chapel, Mrs. MacMurray students are asked Margaret Schlie, Miss Nina Crouch, Springfield Pilots, Miss Pauline Young, Miss Eva Huie, Mrs. Bess Kline, Miss Nello Vigal, Miss Lorene Cheadle, Mrs. Mary Lou Graft, Mrs. Marie Lenz, Mrs. Mollie Schroeder and Co-Pilots Reid Lasley, Arthur Samore and John Stokes and Lawrence Dooley.

Chandlerville Band Boosters Meet Monday

CHANDLERVILLE — The Chandlerville Band Boosters will meet on Monday evening, Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the band room.

Following the business meeting scheduled by President Mrs. Everett Wish, a short program will be given. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria following the meeting.

Miss Mae Ainsworth was hostess to members of the Congregational church Woman's fellowship at her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Erma Watkins presided during the meeting, led in singing and prayer.

After the business meeting, Miss Ainsworth conducted a dedication service for the family book contributions to World Missions. It contained a total of $32.39.

Mrs. Otto Dorr gave an interesting article on how Sunday school grew in the Mississippi Valley, all through the efforts of one man, an Illinoisian, Mr. Stephen Paxton. Mrs. Winifred McNeill read two poems.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. Ruby Force.

The Pontiac Community club will meet Monday, Nov. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Pontiac school house. Refreshments will be pie and coffee.

Special evangelistic services are scheduled at the Chandlerville Methodist church for one week, ending Nov. 14. Rev. W. S. Bailey is pastor of the church.

Word has been received here that Pfc. Larry L. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert R. Cox, Route 2, Virginia, has been assigned as a canonier with the 1st Infantry Division in Viet Nam.

Cox entered the army in February, 1965, and completed his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and further training at Fort Riley, Kansas. He attended Chandlerville high school before entering service.

Howard Johnson was a Jacksonville caller Friday afternoon.

All-weather outerwear gains in popularity each season. Fashion's newest look, the full-length cape, goes checkered (left). This cape has wedding ring collar and sized buttons. Soft urethane foam coupled to wool and nylon gives warmth and weight. Officer's coat (right) in green district checks has leather buttons, self-heating deep pockets. Lightweight urethane insulation makes it warm enough to wear in winter. Barney Beagle's outfit matches exactly. These are Naman Rainwear designs.

Parents Thankful For Son's Arrest On Drinking Charge

EDITOR'S NOTE — They classed the boy with beer, and his father said, "Thank God." Here's why, and what happened, as told by Mr. X, an editor on a large newspaper and an average parent.

By Mr. X
Written For
The Associated Press

"Thank God my son was arrested!"

A strange statement for a father to make?

Not at all, especially since it's our own quotation and our own 18-year-old son we're talking about.

For the experience of being hauled into jail, booked, and later appearing in an adult court of law did more toward maturing him and helping him get back on the right track than 10,000 parental lectures.

The charge for which he was arrested — illegal possession of an alcoholic beverage, beer — is one that is crowding both adult and juvenile courts every day throughout the country.

Our son was fortunate. He beat the rap because of a legal loophole. He was arrested by an off-duty policeman moonlighting at a drive-in theater just outside the city limits. Thus, technically, he had no legal basis for making the arrest. But if he'd had a deputy sheriff's badge, or had thought to make a citizen's arrest, our son wouldn't have been so fortunate.

And he'd now have a criminal record that would follow him the rest of his life.

Not all the boys and girls being booked for illegal possession come from broken homes or the so-called underprivileged class.

Far from it. They're coming from just as many "good" families — families such as yours and mine, where the parents are interested and are trying. And failing, as we did.

We're pretty much an average family, live in an average neighborhood in a big city, are active in our church, belong to the PTA, try to do things together as a family.

Our son is an average student, perhaps a little better-than-average football player for he now is on a college squad, is good-looking, has a good personality, is held in high regard by his teachers, coaches and others, was president of his church youth group, a Boy Scout and all the other things the average boy does.

We noted the first danger signals the closing months of his senior year in high school. He and his buddies began going too often to a drive-in hamburger joint notorious not only as THE place where the teen-age set gathered but also for too-frequent brawls and drinking in parked cars.

We, along with parents of his closest friends, forbade our son's going to the drive-in. But we also knew that at least once in a while they went anyway.

We didn't care about some of the new circle of friends he began making: two or three high school dropouts, one youth expelled for hitting at teacher. In a calm rational way, we talked this over.

The natural key in music is C major; it has no sharps or flats.

District Officer Of Lions Visits Timewell Club

MT. STERLING — District officer, Vernon K. Heuchert of Worden, Ill., was guest speaker when the Timewell Lion's club met Oct. 26 at the Christian church in Timewell.

Mr. Heuchert spoke of his experiences and duties as officer. He also discussed membership and the club's projects for the coming year. Eighteen members and one guest attended the meeting.

Girl Scouts Meet

The Senior Girl Scouts worked on credit toward an art merit badge at the weekly meeting at the home of their leader. The making of brightly colored plastic cushions for youngsters to sit on at the Mt. Sterling Public Library was discussed. Sara McCauley, one of the Scouts, read to a group of tots last Saturday.

Rev. Herschel Reed, Eugene Nichols, Fred Miller, Chet Davis and Lee McClelland, all of Mt. Sterling, attended the district III Men's Christian fellowship convention held Oct. 24 in Cuba, Ill.

VIRGINIA GROUP IN LOCKHART HOME

VIRGINIA — Mrs. John R. Lockhart entertained members of her club Wednesday afternoon at her country home.

Bunco was enjoyed with prizes going to Mrs. Gerdes, Florence Schadd and Mrs. P. J. Lockhart.

Guests were Mrs. Ed Finn, Mrs. Alva Gerdes, Mrs. Myrna Watkins, Mrs. P. J. Lockhart, Mrs. Ada Milstead, Miss Myrtis Wing and Miss Florence Schadd.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Opening lead—♦ K

In the Jacoby limit raise system the two no-trump response by an unpassed hand to a major suit opening bid is designed to show a strong raise for partner's suit and has nothing to do with no-trump.

A lot of bridge players are going to feel hurt by the inability to bid two no-trump with intention of playing at three no-trump, but after a while they will find that they won't have lost anything.

Thus when playing the Jacoby system South cannot respond two no-trump to his partner's spade opening bid. However, he can respond two clubs and then jump to three no-trump after his partner's two spade rebid.

South has quite a problem at his three no-trump contract. He holds off twice on diamonds, but must win the third lead. Then he runs off four club tricks and each opponent discards a small heart.

His next lead is a low spade toward dummy. West plays low and South puts in dummy's nine. East wins the trick and leads a heart.

The way the cards lie South will make all the rest of the tricks because the heart finesse will work and the spades are going to break. South does not know this and has to decide. What should he do?

The answer is that he should finesse and risk a two trick set. The finesse is an even money proposition to start with, but since West showed five diamonds to his partner's two and each defender had produced three clubs the odds are that East will hold the king of hearts.

A—Bid seven spades. There is a temptation to try seven no-trump, but you should resist that temptation. Your partner may need to ruff a club to make 3 tricks.

"I'm afraid I'm not much of a hunter. When I'm in the woods, I get an uncontrollable urge to look for golf balls!"

TRAFFIC STOPPER—There was more rush-hour confusion than usual near Washington's Pentagon when a big Army CH-21 helicopter, losing power on a flight to Fort Belvoir, Va., skimmed over a highway, narrowly missing streaming traffic. The craft managed a safe landing in the Pentagon parking lot. (NEA Telephoto)

Parents Thankful For Son's Arrest On Drinking Charge
EDITOR'S NOTE — They nabbed the boy with beer, and his father said, "Thank God." Here's why, and what happened, as told by Mr. X, an editor on a large newspaper and an average parent.

By Mr. X
Written For
The Associated Press
"Thank God my son was arrested!"

A strange statement for a father to make?
Not at all, especially since it's our own quotation and our own 18-year-old son we're talking about.

For the experience of being hauled into jail, booked, and later appearing in an adult court of law did more toward maturing him and helping him get back on the right track than 10,000 parental lectures.

The charge for which he was arrested — illegal possession of an alcoholic beverage, beer — is one that is crowding both adult and juvenile courts every day throughout the country.

Our son was fortunate. He beat the rap because of a legal loophole. He was arrested by an off-duty policeman moonlighting at a drive-in theater just outside the city limits. Thus, technically, he had no legal basis for making the arrest. But if he'd had a deputy sheriff's badge, or had thought to make a citizen's arrest, our son wouldn't have been so fortunate.

And he'd now have a criminal record that would follow him the rest of his life.

Not all the boys and girls being booked for illegal possession come from broken homes or the so-called underprivileged class.

Far from it. They're coming from just as many "good" families — families such as yours and mine, where the parents are interested and are trying. And failing, as we did.

We're pretty much an average family, live in an average neighborhood in a big city, are active in our church, belong to the PTA, try to do things together as a family.

Our son is an average student, perhaps a little better-than-average football player for he now is on a college squad, is good-looking, has a good personality, is held in high regard by his teachers, coaches and others, was president of his church youth group, a Boy Scout and all the other things the average boy does.

We noted the first danger signals the closing months of his senior year in high school. He and his buddies began going too often to a drive-in hamburger joint notorious not only as THE place where the teen-age set gathered but also for too-frequent brawls and drinking in parked cars.

We, along with parents of his closest friends, forbade our son's going to the drive-in. But we also knew that at least once in a while they went anyway.

We didn't care about some of the new circle of friends he began making: two or three high school dropouts, one youth expelled for hitting at teacher. In a calm rational way, we talked this over.

District Officer Of Lions Visits Timewell Club
MT. STERLING — District officer, Vernon K. Heuchert of Worden, Ill. was guest speaker when the Timewell Lion's club met Oct. 26 at the Christian church in Timewell.

Mr. Heuchert spoke of his experiences and duties as officer. He also discussed membership and the club's projects for the coming year. Eighteen members and one guest attended the meeting.

Girl Scouts Meet
The Senior Girl Scouts worked on credit toward an art merit badge at the weekly meeting at the home of their leader. The making of brightly colored plastic cushions for youngsters to sit on at the Mt. Sterling Public Library was discussed. Sara McCarley, one of the Scouts, read to a group of tots last Saturday.

Rev. Herschel Reed, Eugene Nichols, Fred Miller, Chet Davis and Lee McClelland, all of Mt. Sterling, attended the district III Men's Christian fellowship convention held Oct. 24 in Cuba, Ill.

Brownies receiving one year stars were: Penny Allen, Marty Benner, Diana Dellert, Nancy Flowers, Jeanne Freiburg, Ruth McCormick, Debbie Trout, Ellen Withrow and Michelle Wright. Eleven mothers attended and punch and cookies were served. Following refreshments the Brownies entertained guests with Girl Scout songs.

Leaders of Troop 7 are Mrs. Frank B. Withrow and Mrs. Robert F. Sain.

The shaggy look in fun-furs is taking off this year in coats for campus and town wear. Sportowne's wrap coat (left) in a new long-haired fabric, Borgaya, is of soft Orion and modacrylic pile. It's worked in the round with notched collar, slash pockets and a leather string tie belt. Amusing for campus or country is the swinging, shaggy coat (right) by Russel Taylor's Young Suburbans. Borgaya is the fabric. Belt is half-tie. Collar is wide and rounded.

JUDGE SENTENCES BROWN CO. YOUTH ON DELINQUENCY

MT. STERLING — A Brown county youth, Roger Stout of Mt. Sterling was sentenced in Brown County Court Nov. 2nd on a delinquent charge to be confined at Joliet until 21 years of age. The decree was signed by Judge Edward D. Turner.

Sheriff James Busen of Mt. Sterling attended the Law Enforcement Conference Nov. 4th at Rock Island. Road commissioners, school superintendents, personnel of the sheriff's office and school bus drivers were guests at a ham dinner Nov. 4 at the Brown County High School Cafeteria. The gesture was appreciation for maintaining good roads and safety in transportation for school activities.

Gordon D. Wixon was the speaker and a film on safety was shown. James L. Fernandes of Jacksonville, field superintendent, also spoke.

Health Bureau Links Poisoning To Pet Turtles

The Morgan County Health Department has reported that recent studies by health personnel throughout the country have linked pet baby turtles with salmonella infections. "This is an infection that we usually think of in connection with contaminated food," stated Dr. Rosario F. Sison, County Health Director. Now Illinois is one of the states in which these salmonella contaminated turtles have been found.

Thousands of baby turtles are sold each day in this country, and they are frequently infected or contaminated with salmonella. Turtles are popular as pets for children because they can be kept in a small container, make no noise, will not bite, require little food and are not barred from large apartment buildings. They are popular as a classroom pet in the elementary grades.

Thus, they are most frequently handled by children, who, as a group, are not careful in their sanitary habits. They are more susceptible to salmonellosis than are adults and their infections are more severe. Many require hospitalization and some repeated periods of hospitalization. It is poorly reported, unless hospitalization is required, or large numbers of people are involved in an outbreak, therefore the incidence can only be estimated. Children, especially those under one year of age, and older adults with pre-existing intestinal disorders are most likely to be seriously affected by salmonellosis.

In the reported studies, salmonella was found on the turtle or in the water in the turtle dish. In each case, one of the following means of spread was involved: children in the "hands to mouth" stage had handled the turtle; turtle water had been dumped in the kitchen sink, or the turtles had been placed in dishes later used for food.

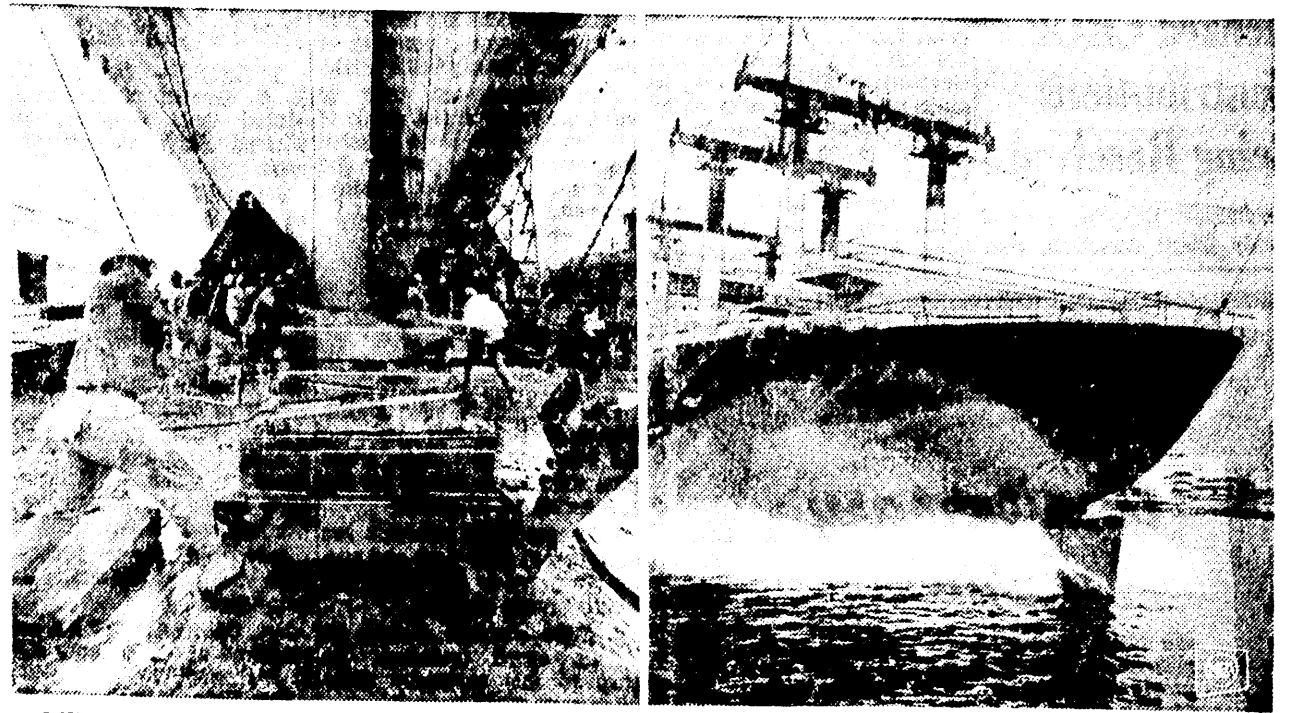

Leslie P. Williams, Jr., D.V.M., and Harry L. Helsdon, who conducted the study for the Minnesota Department of Health, suggest the following control measures should be recommended to persons possessing pet turtles. Both the Morgan County Health Department and the Illinois Department of Public Health concur with these recommendations.

1. Children should not be allowed to handle turtles unless they are responsible enough to wash their hands following this contact.
2. Turtle water should not be discharged into the kitchen sink or allowed to contaminate the food preparation area.
3. A special container should be designated as the turtle dish and should be used for nothing else.
4. Only one person who is careful to wash his hands should care for the turtle.
5. Other household pets should be prevented from drinking water from the turtle dish. These measures should be advocated until such time as turtles are shown to be free of salmonella.

Some rats seem to have an innate or inherited fear of the smell of cats. Other rats lack this fear but have an inherited fear of the sight of snakes. Biologists speculate that similar innate fears may exist in human beings.

DEVOTED FAN—Petula Clark's rating on the popular music charts has nothing to do with the steadfast devotion of one small fan right at home—daughter Catherine, 2. The British songstress, riding the popularity crest following her hit record "Downtown," is in the United States for appearances.

THE BIG SLIDE—Don't think it's easy to launch a ship. The delicately planned engineering feat was again successful as the SS President Harrison hit the water for the American President Lines at a San Diego, Calif., shipyard. At left, workmen hammer out the keel blocks. At right, D-O-W-N she goes. The President Harrison will be in trans-Pacific service in 1966.

Assess Fines In Cass Court

BEARDSTOWN — A 25-year-old local man was fined $75 and costs when arraigned Friday in the Lincoln courtroom on charges of disorderly conduct and illegal transportation of liquor.

Robert G. Meyer, 109 W. 5th street, pleaded not guilty on the disorderly charge before Associate Judge Fred W. Reither, who ruled Meyer was guilty after hearing evidence presented by State's Attorney Walter Farrand and Chief of Police Carl Wubker.

Jack D. Wells, 20, of 315 E. 4th street, was fined $50 and $25 on charges of illegal transportation.

James Anderson, 39, of Philadelphia, was fined $20 and $5 on charges of driving with an expired license.

A continuance was granted to Ralph Hankins, 22, who entered a not guilty plea on charges of illegal transportation of liquor. Hankins was arrested Oct. 3 after a wild chase by police.

Participating in the Menard CROP program are the Petersburg, Athens, Sweetwater, Culver, Oakford, Atterberry, Greenview, Curtis and Tallula elevators.

Cash donations are being sent to Elmer Brunen, treasurer of the Menard County CROP Fund. Contributions are used to meet the more urgent needs of persons in other lands afflicted with overwhelming poverty and in cases of national disaster, according to Rev. Pitsch.

Night Driving Tips Offered

The Morgan County Health Department recently received the following recommendations from the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness:

1. Because eye problems are exaggerated after dark and people are urged to use extra care when driving at night.
2. Sight distance shrinks as driving speed increases. Be alert to this especially when driving at night.
3. You see less at night than in the day and this fact should be remembered when driving at night. Remember, all other drivers see less also.
4. Drivers should be aware of the fact that their eyes play tricks on them at night and they see objects they expect to see much farther away than unexpected ones. For safety, drive more slowly at night.
5. A driver can see and identify objects 80 feet farther away when driving at 20 miles per hour than he can when driving at 60 miles per hour. Remember this when driving at night and decrease your speed at least 10 miles per hour.

"GALLOPING GERTIE'S" 25TH ANNIVERSARY

She Left Rich Legacy

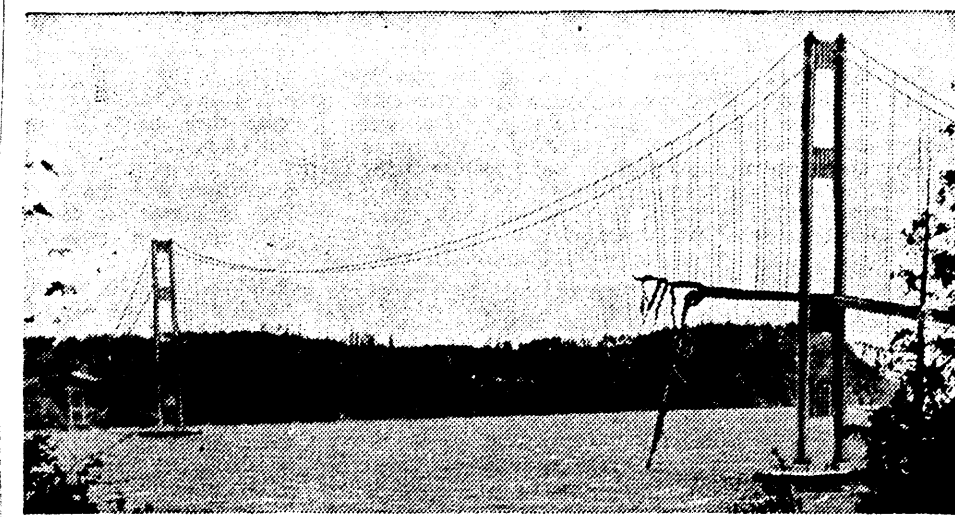

"Galloping Gertie," then the world's fourth longest suspension bridge, was so-called because it was built to—and did—"ride" the strong winds of Puget Sound, which she spanned at Tacoma, Wash. She rode well as long as the wind was steady. But on Nov. 7, 1940, it came up in accelerating gusts. When one hit twisting, shuddering Gertie at 42 m.p.h., she convulsed, broke apart and fell 190 feet into the Sound. But the disaster was a blessing in disguise. Out of the intensive search for the "why" and "how" of the four-month-old span's incredible collapse came a flood of new engineering technology and better materials that has enabled bridge builders to erect longer, lighter, stronger bridges all over the world.

"Galloping Gertie" under pressure of high-velocity wind gusts preceding collapse. Note roadbed twisting at left.

The 2,800-foot $6.4 million Tacoma Narrows Bridge, affectionately known as "Galloping Gertie" starts to break up under 42 m.p.h. wind.

Only the two main towers and sections of the approaches to "Galloping Gertie" remained after the span plunged 190 feet into Puget Sound. Happily, no lives were lost in the disaster. Bridge was rebuilt, opened to traffic October 14, 1950, and now serves as a laboratory for bridge designers throughout the world.

Manchester Park Shelter To Be Reality In 1966

MANCHESTER — According to a report made recently by members of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association, the proposed shelter will become a reality in 1966. The shelter, to be constructed in the local park, will be used for picnics and civic gatherings.

The Manchester Picnic committee, headed by Chester Day met Thursday evening and finished an accounting of the 1965 picnic. J. Russell Heaton, treasurer, reported final net profits amounted to $1,952.67, which was $45.09 more than last year. Gross receipts totaled $4,421.85 and total expense was $2,469.18.

The treasurer also reported a balance of $127.10 in the fund reserved from the 1964 picnic for the purchase of new equipment after the purchase of six dozen trays costing $42.48.

In conformity with an agreement among the five sponsors of the 1965 picnic, the two churches, two cemetery associations and the American Legion, the treasurer was directed to turn the entire net proceeds over to the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association which was organized this year to receive funds and build a shelter in the park for the use of the public in holding picnics and other civic activities.

Immediately following the meeting of the picnic committee, the General Committee of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association of which Chester Day and J. Russell Heaton are also Chairman and Treasurer respectively, held its meeting. The Treasurer reported receipts of $748.15 from cash donations, $1,500.00 from sale of lots and $1,952.67 from the 1965 picnic, a total of $4,200.82 on hand.

It was decided not to commence construction until sometime next year when it would be possible to secure voluntary labor but to start construction early enough to have the shelter ready for next year's picnic. In the meantime the committee

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week took another breathing spell in its long climb toward one historic high after another.

The market averages were not in agreement as to whether the market rose or fell. Statistics showed that a few score more issues advanced than declined, but this is not always a conclusive indicator.

One of the "biggest" stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the market value of its shares, took a sharp loss. This was General Motors, which dipped 3 1/2% to 106 1/2. Money-wise, this would offset gains by quite a few stocks with smaller capitalizations.

Selling in GM developed after directors failed to propose a stock split, as some investors had hoped. The giant automaker declared a fat dividend of $2.25 a share, but this did not overcome the disappointment.

The movements on average were minor this week. The closely watched Dow Jones industrial average declined 1.36 to 559.46. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .6 to 355.6, its 11th straight weekly rise.

Both these averages rose to historic closing peaks on Thursday. The Dow industrials made a high of 561.85, the AP average 355.8.

Cut to four days of trading week by the election day holiday, the week had a turnover of 29,567,240 shares compared with 36,007,866 the prior week.

The market was dampened on Monday by reports that President Johnson was opposed to an aluminum price boost which began to develop over the weekend and that he favored releasing aluminum from the government stock pile.

Bond prices sagged during the past week in all markets under the indirect impact of U.S. Treasury financing. U.S. Treasury bond prices staged a general decline, pushing yields of most long-term issues to their highest levels in more than five years.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $53.73 million compared to $64.78 million in the previous week.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The butcher hog market showed a sharply higher trend last week and twice reached its highest peak in more than two months. Prices were $1.25 higher for the week.

On Tuesday, best offerings topped at $25.50 which then was the highest since that price was paid on Aug. 27. Then on Friday, the top climbed to $25.75, highest since Aug. 23. The late peak compared with $24.35 a week ago. However, the supply for the week was down only 500 from the previous week at 24,000 head.

The only setback occurred on Wednesday when prices slipped as much as 75 cents after having advanced $1 at the extreme on Tuesday. The week started with a top of $24.50. Average cost for the period was estimated at $24.50 compared with $23.82 last week and $15.03 a year ago.

The supply of slaughter steers was little changed from a week ago and prices held mostly steady. In wholesale outlets, however, steer carcasses sold steadily to 50 cents lower and slaughter under federal inspection for the week was believed to have been the second largest of record.

The market for wooled slaughter lambs was steady.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara cited increased defense requirements and the strain on the nation's balance of payments because of increased imports.

And Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said the stockpile sales "will be an important factor in protecting the position of the dollar in the world."

McNamara said in his prepared statement that sales would be "at market prices." In response to questions whether this would be at the new, increased price, McNamara noted that "many transactions take place at other than publicized prices."

And he noted that about 115,000 of the 200,000 tons would be sold to defense contractors rather than on the open market, thus apparently leaving the way open for bargaining on the price.

The defense secretary said that negotiations have been under way for eight months on releasing some of the aluminum stockpile and that the decisions were not made because of the recent price increase.

will help calculate distances between far-flung tracking stations on earth and plot gravitational forces which will be encountered by lunar vehicles. Even a small error in the position of a ground station would be magnified over the quarter-million-mile route to the moon.

Militarily, Geos 1 could more precisely locate possible enemy targets for intercontinental missiles. The data will be correlated with that being received by geodetic satellites launched previously by the Defense Department.

Officials said good signals were being received from Geos 1 as it spun around the earth. They do not plan to activate most of its systems, including the lights, for several days.

After about three days, when the orbital path has been established, a signal from the ground is to extend a 60-foot boom from the top of the satellite. This is to stabilize it so the base with most of the instruments always faces the earth.

Although the flashing lights, which can be triggered by ground command, have the illuminating power of a lighthouse, they will not be visible to the naked eye.

The flashes, photographed by telescopic cameras against a background of known stars from a number of angles and simultaneously from different continents — plus precise radio, navigation and tracking gear — will help geodeticists calculate distances on the globe and the general shape of the earth's surface and the strength of its gravitational field.

Fasted to Geos 1 are 322 prisms designed to reflect to earth the beams of a laser, an electronic device that generates an extremely narrow and powerful shaft of light which retains its intensity over long distances.

The Vanguard 1 satellite launched in 1959 with less sophisticated instruments learned that the world was not round but slightly pear-shaped.

Presently distances between cities on continuous well-mapped land masses like the United States are known fairly well. But gaps between ocean-separated places like New York City and Moscow are known only within about 500 to 1,000 feet, with the map positions of some remote islands off as much as 10 miles.

W. L. Edwards Of White Hall Dies Saturday

WHITE HALL — Wilmoth Luther Edwards, 75, died at White Hall hospital Saturday at 9:10 p.m.

He was born in Athensville township, Feb. 21, 1890, a son of Charles and Sarah Jones Edwards. He married Cecyle Burdell Sept. 6, 1911, and she survives with two children, Walter of Alexandria, Va., and Charles of White Hall, one grandchild, a sister, Mrs. Glenn Dyer of Roodhouse.

The body was removed to the Mackey Funeral Home at White Hall. Further arrangements are incomplete.

Two Accidents Cause Damage

Two accidents on city streets Saturday afternoon caused damage to the four cars involved and sent the driver of one car to the hospital for treatment of possible neck injuries.

The first accident happened in the 200 block of West State at 4:26 p.m. A car driven by Carrie R. Conlee, 614 Reed Street, stopped in the lane of traffic and was struck from the rear by a second auto driven by Marcia Y. Lee, Route 1, Greenfield. Mrs. Lee told investigating city police that she hit the brake but her foot slipped onto the accelerator.

Mrs. Conlee was taken to Passavant hospital for treatment of neck injuries.

The second accident happened in the 800 block of South Main at 6:57 p.m. A car driven by Carl E. Branner, Route 3, was pulling from a parking space, headed toward a service station driveway, into the path of a northbound auto driven by Owen Whitmore, 826 North Diamond.

Branner was issued a ticket charging failure to yield the right of way.

City police investigated at the scenes of both accidents.

been steady for more than two years. Businessmen have asked for a pegged rate as an insurance for long-term projects.

They also had asked the removal of a technical requirement whereby 20 per cent of their dollar earnings had to be retained in Philippine banks. This requirement, now removed, was the last major restriction on the peso.

Macapagal has been making much in his campaign of business complaints of tight credit and an alleged stagnation of the economy. Macapagal replied that the economy is growing at better than 6 per cent yearly and expressed belief that Saturday's measures would give the economy a further shot in the arm.

He said the Philippines had available $385.2 million in foreign exchange resources to back the value of the peso and insure that no black market in dollars developed.

In reaffirming the pro-Western position of his Liberal party, Macapagal also made plain that the opposition Nacionalista party was only slightly less so. Macapagal said he foresaw no essential change in Philippine foreign policy.

Macapagal said that, if re-elected, he would again introduce in Congress next year a measure to finance a military unit to aid South Viet Nam — where the Philippines now has only a medical team and some technical experts.

All-weather outerwear gains in popularity each season. Fashion's newest look, the full-length cape, goes checkered (left). This cape has wedding ring collar and sized buttons. Soft urethane foam coupled to wool and nylon gives warmth and weight. Officer's coat (right) in green district checks has leather buttons, self-heating pockets. Lightweight urethane insulation makes it warm enough to wear in winter. Barney Beagle's outfit matches exactly. These are Naman Rainwear designs.

Parents Thankful For Son's Arrest On Drinking Charge

EDITOR'S NOTE — They nabbed the boy with beer, and his father said, "Thank God." Here's why, and what happened, as told by Mr. X, an editor on a large newspaper and an average parent.

By Mr. X
Written For
The Associated Press
"Thank God my son was arrested!"

A strange statement for a father to make?

Not at all, especially since it's our own quotation and our own 18-year-old son we're talking about.

For the experience of being hauled into jail, booked, and later appearing in an adult court of law did more toward maturing him and helping him get back on the right track than 10,000 parental lectures.

The charge for which he was arrested — illegal possession of an alcoholic beverage, beer — is one that is crowding both adult and juvenile courts every day throughout the country.

Our son was fortunate. He beat the rap because of a legal loophole. He was arrested by an off-duty policeman moonlighting at a drive-in theater just outside the city limits. Thus, technically, he had no legal basis for making the arrest. But if he'd had a deputy sheriff's badge, or had thought to make a citizen's arrest, our son wouldn't have been so fortunate.

And he'd now have a criminal record that would follow him the rest of his life.

Not all the boys and girls being booked for illegal possession come from broken homes or the so-called underprivileged class.

Far from it. They're coming from just as many "good" families — families such as yours and mine, where the parents are interested and are trying. And failing, as we did.

We're pretty much an average family, live in an average neighborhood in a big city, are active in our church, belong to the PTA, try to do things together as a family.

Our son is an average student, perhaps a little better-than-average football player for he now is on a college squad, is good-looking, has a good personality, is held in high regard by his teachers, coaches and others, was president of his church youth group, a Boy Scout and all the other things the average boy does.

We noted the first danger signals the closing months of his senior year in high school. He and his buddies began going too often to a drive-in hamburger joint notorious not only as THE place where the teen-age set gathered but also for too-frequent brawls and drinking in parked cars.

We, along with parents of his closest friends, forbade our son's going to the drive-in. But we also knew that at least once in a while they went anyway.

We didn't care about some of the new circle of friends he began making: two or three high school dropouts, one youth expelled for hitting at teacher. In a calm rational way, we talked this over.

Girl Scouts Meet

Routt Rally Nips Kincaid By 12-6

Routt struck for two fourth-quarter touchdowns on sustained drives, the last one coming with 1:18 left in the game, to score a 12-6 come-from-behind football victory over Kincaid Saturday evening at the JHS athletic field.

The Rockets, trailing from early in the opening period until the final quarter, solved Kincaid's single-wing offense in the second half after the visiting Ponies ripped big holes through them in the first half.

Routt's offense was unable to move in the first half, as the Rockets got only 56 yards. The Rockets came back, mostly on the ground, in the second half to role up 110 yards. While their offense purked up, their defense tightened and limited the Ponies to only 29 net rushing yards after the visitors ground out 133 in the first half.

Razorbacks Take 20th In Row In Win Over Rice

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bobby Burnett supplied the power Saturday as the Arkansas Razorbacks, the nation's No. 2 team, extended its undefeated streak to 20 games by overwhelming outmanned Rice 31-0.

Burnett scored two touchdowns, set up another, and saw his running play a major role in a drive that led to a 37-yard field goal by Ronny South.

A crowd of 46,000, including Lynda Bird Johnson, eldest daughter of the President, watched.

The victory was Arkansas' 13th in a row in Southwest Conference play, a record that exceeded a streak of 12 by Texas in 1963-64.

Arkansas scored the first two times it had the ball and boosted its halftime lead to 17-0 when Burnett scored after Bobby Roper intercepted a Rice pass and raced 49 yards to the Owl nine in the second quarter.

Arkansas drove 64 yards for an early touchdown in the fourth period and closed with a 10-yard touchdown by Jim Lindsey on the first play after another pass interception with six minutes remaining.

Mighty Nebraska Tromps Kansas In Big Eight 42-6

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Third-ranked and undefeated Nebraska overpowered Big Eight rival Kansas 42-6 Saturday after running up a 21-0 lead and coasting to its eighth football victory of the season.

For Kansas, shutout winners over Oklahoma State and Kansas State in their last two outings, the loss put their season mark at 2-6 and conference record at 2-3.

The Nation's No. 1 rushing team with a 269-average going into the game, Nebraska fattened its average with 419 yards on the ground and another 91 by air.

Halfback Ron Kirkland, back in prime condition after recovering from shoulder injuries, accounted for 146 yards on 10 carries in the first half.

Kansas was held to 144 rushing yards and 60 passing yards. The lone Jayhawk touchdown was scored with 27 seconds remaining of the first half. By that time, Nebraska had racked up three touchdowns on drives of 61 yards, 59 yards and 97 yards.

The Cornhuskers added three touchdowns in the third quarter, two of them in 86 seconds.

Greenville Nips Clan By 27-28

GREENVILLE — MacMurray harriers Dennis Mueller and Jim McGinnis broke the established record for three and four miles here Saturday, but the one-two finish was not enough for a team triumph as host Greenville edged the Clansmen 27-28.

Mueller covered the first three miles in 16:36 and the full distance in 22:22, while McGinnis paced five seconds behind the front-running Mueller at both lengths.

Other top finishers for the Highlanders included Marc Matrangola (6th), Roger Ferguson (7th), and Bill Beckenbaugh (9th).

The Clansmen are slated to close their season next Saturday when Mueller, McGinnis, Matrangola, Ferguson and Beckenbaugh will represent the Highlanders in the NCAA mid-west cross country championships held at Wheaton.

Kincaid Scores Early
After holding Routt to nine yards in three plays, Kincaid took over again and this time wasted no time getting on the scoreboard. Mayer passed 31 yards to end Bob Meadows to the Routt 22, and on the next play the shifty Mayer scampered the remaining distance down the sidelines, breaking loose from several tacklers. The run for the unit after was short with 5:00 left in the quarter.

The best Routt could muster in the initial quarter was two first downs, one on a 12-yard carry by halfback Dave Geers and the other on a six-yard pass from Murgatroyd to Dick Zeller.

Routt had two drives stopped in the second quarter, picking up a first down each time. One

Purdue Tromps Wisconsin 45-7 Behind Sub FB

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue mixed hard running by substitute fullback John Kuzniowski with brutal blocking and a smothering offense to pulverize Wisconsin, 45-7, in the Boilermakers' Dads Day football game Saturday.

Kuzniowski carried the ball on eight of 16 plays and gained 27 yards as Purdue drove 77 yards after the opening kickoff to score. Starting in place of injured Randy Minniear, he carried 21 times for 78 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Bob Gries didn't need his passing game except to keep the ineffectual Wisconsin defense loose, but he scored two touchdowns on quarterback sneaks and kicked a 27-yard field goal and six extra points.

The Purdue defensive line ripped ample holes in the Wisconsin defense to enable Kuzniowski and Gordon Teter to pound through for first down yardage. The Purdue defense got the ball back so quickly that the offensive unit had little time to relax.

Defensive end George Olton set up two short Purdue touchdowns with a pass interception and a fumble recovery.

Wisconsin's only effective offensive drive came late in the game against Purdue's reserves. Substitute quarterback John Boyajian hit eight of nine passes in a 63-yard touchdown drive with end Bill Fritz making a spectacular catch deep in the corner of the end zone.

The Purdue defense held Wisconsin to minus 6 yards by rushing. Purdue rolled up 253 yards on the ground, with Kuzniowski getting 78 on 21 carries and Teter 74 on 15 runs.

Dave Herick sent in as full-back to rest Kuzniowski, ripped off 52 yards in 11 carries.

Little: I'm Expected To Score In Every Game Syracuse Plays

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (NEA) — For Floyd Little, there has been only pressure.

Last year, as a sophomore, it was the pressure of matching on the field the imaginative build-up of Syracuse University's productive publicity department.

Once done, the pressure changed to matching the records of Jimmy Brown and Ernie Davis, his predecessors at Syracuse.

I never let them see it. I get up smiling and I'll say 'nice tackle' or 'nice day.'

"They're always telling me I'm not so tough and some of them say other things, too, but I'm not getting into that."

"I get the rough stuff mostly on pass protection or extra points."

The "rough stuff" can't be bothering Little very much because the 5-11, 195-pound halfback is having an excellent season.

After scoring four times against Pitt, one a 95-yard punt return, and rolling up 248 total yards, Floyd conceded it was his best game.

Previously, he had amassed 267 yards in one day against both Penn State and Holy Cross.

That pace is carrying him close to the Syracuse rushing records and that means equal, finally, with Brown and Davis.

By then, the pressure will be even greater because Floyd Little will be ready for the pros.

And the comparisons will start again.

Alabama Downs LSU By 13-7

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Alabama struck with savagery Saturday using the passing of Steve Sloan and the running of Steve Bowman to tame Louisiana State 13-7.

The victory put the Crimson Tide into the Southeastern Conference title chase.

Alabama's cagy Paul Bryant, even with a 24-point lead, had his Crimson Tide kicking on sides and in the first half to keep LSU speedster Joe Labruzzo from having an opportunity to run the ball back.

Representatives from the Sugar, Orange and Gator bowls were in the stands, and the Tide is believed to have gotten an unofficial invitation for at least one of the games.

Sloan picked the Tigers to pieces in the first half with pinpoint passing. He connected on 9 of 16 tosses for 150 yards and two touchdowns in the first half.

Sloan, who succeeded Joe Namath as the Tide quarterback, set a school record for the most completions without an interception, surpassing the mark of 36 held jointly by Harry Gilmer and Pat Trammel of Alabama.

Alabama rolled up 240 yards before intermission, and the small but scrappy Tide defense limited LSU to 97 yards in the first half.

DE KALB, Ill. (AP) — Undeclared Northern Illinois celebrated homecoming in its new stadium Saturday by crushing Illinois State 48-6 before 18,858 fans, the largest crowd ever to witness an Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference game.

Northern's Ron Christian, the nation's leading passer, completed 18 of 31 passes for 314 yards and four touchdowns.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Griesman also threw two touchdowns passes for Northern. The other Northern score came on another pass by halfback Army Vesley.

End Pete Regas and flanker back Gerry Sandberg each caught three of the Northern touchdown tosses. End Bob Stark caught the other.

Christian, also the nation's small college leader in total offense going into the game, ran for 49 yards in addition to his passing yardage.

He has now completed 164 of 306 passes for the season for a total of 1,949 yards and 21 touchdowns. His total offensive yardage, including rushing, is 2,021 yards.

Illinois State scored its touchdown in the last period on a 43-yard pass from quarterback Jerry Kinnikin to end Jerry Mailey.

The victory was the eighth in a row for Northern and assured it of a share of the IIAAC crown with a 3-0 conference slate.

Illinois State is 0-8 on the year and 0-3 in conference play.

Purdue Tromps Wisconsin 45-7 Behind Sub FB

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue mixed hard running by substitute fullback John Kuzniowski with brutal blocking and a smothering offense to pulverize Wisconsin, 45-7, in the Boilermakers' Dads Day football game Saturday.

Kuzniowski carried the ball on eight of 16 plays and gained 27 yards as Purdue drove 77 yards after the opening kickoff to score. Starting in place of injured Randy Minniear, he carried 21 times for 78 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Bob Gries didn't need his passing game except to keep the ineffectual Wisconsin defense loose, but he scored two touchdowns on quarterback sneaks and kicked a 27-yard field goal and six extra points.

The Purdue defensive line ripped ample holes in the Wisconsin defense to enable Kuzniowski and Gordon Tietz to pound through for first down yardage. The Purdue defense got the ball back so quickly that the offensive unit had little time to relax.

Defensive end George Olion set up two short Purdue touchdown drives with a pass interception and a fumble recovery.

Wisconsin's only effective offensive drive came late in the game against Purdue's reserves. Substitute quarterback John Boyajian hit eight of nine passes in a 63-yard touchdown drive with end Bill Fritz making a spectacular catch deep in the corner of the end zone.

The Purdue defense held Wisconsin to minus 6 yards by rushing. Purdue rolled up 253 yards on the ground, with Kuzniowski getting 78 on 21 carries and Tietz 74 on 15 runs.

Dave Herrick sent in as fullback to rest Kuzniowski, ripped off 52 yards in 11 carries.

Missouri Tops Colorado 20-7

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Missouri's Gary Lane blended his quarterback magic with the Tigers' sturdy defensive platoon for a 20-7 Big Eight football victory over Colorado Saturday, nailing down second place in the conference and a possible bowl bid.

Lane, faking and running or passing on the plays that produced two touchdowns, capped his performance with a 16-yard scoring run midway of the fourth quarter.

Earlier the ninth-ranked Missouri's defenders stole one pass for a touchdown and killed two Colorado scoring threats with goal-line interceptions.

Little: I'm Expected To Score In Every Game Syracuse Plays

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (NEA) — For Floyd Little, there has been only pressure.

Last year, as a sophomore, it was the pressure of matching on the field the imaginative build-up of Syracuse University's productive publicity department.

Once done, the pressure changed to matching the records of Jimmy Brown and Ernie Davis, his predecessors at Syracuse.

I never let them see it. I get up smiling and I'll say 'nice tackle' or 'nice day.'

"They're always telling me I'm not so tough and some of them say other things, too, but let's not get into that."

"I get the rough stuff mostly on pass protection or extra points."

The "rough stuff" can't be bothering Little very much because the 5-11, 195-pound halfback is having an excellent season.

After scoring four times against Pitt, one a 95-yard punt return, and rolling up 248 total yards, Floyd conceded it was his best game.

Previously, he had amassed 267 yards in one day against both Penn State and Holy Cross.

That pace is carrying him close to the Syracuse rushing records and that means equality, finally, with Brown and Davis.

By then, the pressure will be even greater because Floyd Little will be ready for the pros.

And the comparisons will start again.

Crimson Sophs Take 23-18 Loss

Springfield High's sophomores nipped the Jacksonville sophs, 23-18, Saturday morning on the JHS athletic field.

Springfield scored first when Tom Berry picked off a pass and returned it 35 yards for a TD. Steve Tozer scored the PAT on a pass. Later in the opening quarter Springfield nailed a Crimson back in the end zone for a safety and a 9-0 lead.

Springfield upped its lead to 16-0 in the early part of the second when Jeff Rosen lunged over from two yards away. Quarterback Dave Rutledge legged the extra point.

Jacksonville finally got into the scoring act midway in the second frame. Bennie Richardson picked up a loose ball after John Long blocked a Springfield punt. A few plays later Tom Mussatto ran two yards for the initial Crimson score.

Later in the quarter Richardson rambled 30 yards and another Jacksonville score.

Springfield's Rutledge lunged over from one foot out in the third for the deciding TD. Tozer scored the PAT on a pass from Steve Hull.

Otis Pitts put Jacksonville back into contention in the third period when he intercepted a pass and returned it 60 yards to paydirt.

Jacksonville is now 3-5 on the year, while Springfield is at 2-1-1.

Rowland Sparks IC To 25-12 Triumph

CHICAGO — Tom Rowland ran wild over the University of Illinois at Chicago here Saturday night, sparking the Illinois College Blueboys to an impressive 25-12 victory.

Rowland, a second-year man from Rushville, piled up a sparkling 259 yards on 24 carries. Rowland entered the game ranked third in the District 20 NAIA statistics, averaging 76 yards rushing per game.

As a team Illinois College ran up an impressive 339 yards on the ground and 67 more passing. The Blueboys were rated third in the District lists entering the game, averaging 199 yards per outing.

Illinois College jumped into an early lead in the opening quarter, with Bucky Sullivan passing 20 yards to end Butch Bending for the TD. A John Leuchen interception and 26 yard return set up the score.

After Chicago tied the score in the second quarter, IC got back into the lead for good with another Sullivan scoring pass in the third stanza.

Rowland ripped off 44 yards on the first play from scrimmage in the second half and a few plays later Sullivan connected with halfback Bill Bien for a 37-yarder. Van Ray tossed to Wendy Sapp for the extra point.

Chicago scored later in the third quarter, but defensive end Dick Dickens blocked the kick attempt for the PAT and IC held the lead.

IC's Roger Spencer, a freshman from Winchester, broke the game wide open early in the final 15 minutes when he returned a Chicago punt 65 yards to paydirt.

Later in the final quarter Rowland capped a short Blueboy march by ripping 54 yards to score. For the night, Rowland averaged 11 yards per carry.

Sub quarterback Bud Lawrence came in to direct the Blueboys' offense in the second half while Sullivan was on the sidelines with an ankle injury that proved to be not serious.

Buckeyes Rally To Nip Indians In Fourth, 17-10

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fullback Will Sander bolted into the end zone with a fourth quarter touchdown, his second of the game, giving Ohio State a comeback 17-10 Big Ten victory Saturday over an aroused Indiana team.

The Buckeyes, battling to stay alive in the conference race before 83,863, drove 63 yards in 12 plays to post the clinching score with 5:29 remaining.

Sander busted over from the two to culminate the drive, sparked by quarterback Don Unvorferth's three pass completions.

The triumph was the fourth against a lone setback for the Buckeyes, while Indiana fell to a 1-4 mark in the league.

The Hoosiers, a two-touchdown underdog, threw a mighty scare into the Buckeyes before yielding and held a 10-7 advantage at halftime.

With hometown product Frank Stavroff supplying the fireworks, the Hoosiers struck for 10 points in the second period. In an impressive bid to win their first game from the Bucks since 1951.

But Ohio's savage defense rose to the occasion, holding the stubborn Hoosiers to only one first down in the second half. Indiana never threatened in the final two periods, reaching Ohio territory only once.

OSU 7 0 3 7-17

With less than a minute left California posed its only threat on a 63-yard pass from Dan Berry to Jerry Bradley, but the Trojan defenses stopped the Bears at the four.

Washington scored the first two times it had the ball in the first quarter. Hullins passed to Williams for 50 yards in the first two minutes of the game. The pair combined a few minutes later on a 56-yard aerial bomb.

As the crowd of 46,084 went wild in the Pacific Athletic Conference game, UCLA made the scoreboard in the first play as the Behan-Witcher combination scored on a 58-yard aerial.

Washington widened its lead to 21-7 with Hullins' 11-yard pass to Williams. But the Bruins, in an 81-yard drive, scored with Behan going over from the one.

Hullin took Washington 70 yards but they had to settle for a 20-yard field goal by Ron Medved and held a 24-14 lead at the half.

Stein Paces AF Over Army, 14-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Stein clicked on two fourth down plays for touchdowns to lift the Air Force Falcons to a 14-3 victory over Army Saturday.

Stein dashed five yards for a second quarter touchdown, and with a fourth-and-one situation in the fourth quarter, hit Carl Janssen with a 27-yard pass and the second touchdown.

It was the first triumph for the Falcons over Army and the second victory this season for Air Force, which has suffered five losses and had one tie. The service schools played to a 13-13 tie in 1959 and Army downed the Falcons 14-10 two years ago.

Medicine Advances

Community Health Week In Progress

Science today is writing one of the great chapters of history. Scientific discoveries and follow-through have catapulted us into an age of incredible progress where that which seemed impossible three or four decades ago now is frequently brought to realization.

Members of the Morgan County Medical Society are joining with other societies throughout the United States in the observance of National Community Health Week, November 7 through 14.

The most startling advances are occurring in medical science. Not even space science is progressing faster than medical science. It can be truly said that we are living in the golden age of medicine in the world.

Within the past quarter of a century, more advances have been made in medicine than in all previous centuries. And continuing advances are being made at an ever-accelerating pace.

Many Diseases Overcome

Medicine has found ways to overcome and soon may even eradicate many of yesterday's dreaded diseases—smallpox, polio and diphtheria, for instance. It has made great inroads against many other once-common killers—pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis and rheumatism, to name but a few.

In the pharmaceutical laboratory new drugs have been produced which perform an increasing number of useful tasks. At least 75 per cent of them were unknown ten years ago.

Today medicine is searching for ways to conquer arteriosclerosis, cancer, birth defects, metabolic diseases and many other health enemies.

There are exciting new vistas of medicine. Modern surgery, with its intricate heart-lung machines and other imaginative new tools, has made it possible to perform life-saving surgery to replace or repair damaged blood vessels and even to successfully transplant limbs, kidneys and other vital organs in man.

Diseases Are Curbed

Equally significant are new medical developments which have made it possible for physicians to bring diabetes, hypertension, mental illness, salt and gland imbalances and many other diseases under control, thus enabling victims of these diseases to lead nearly normal lives.

As a direct result of this vast array of medical progress, the life span of Americans has been greatly enlarged. The average life expectancy for the child born today is 69.9 years. In 1937 it was only 60 years, and in 1900 but 47 years. Reduction in mortality between 1935 and 1965 accounted for a contribution of $10,400,000,000 to the gross national product.

2 Dead, Sheriff Injured

HAVANA, Ill. (AP) — A Havana man was killed in a collision with a speeding police car driven by Sheriff Melvin Trimpe of Mason County Friday night, as Trimpe sped toward the scene of another accident which killed a teen-age girl.

Clifton Lynch, 51, was thrown 83 feet from his car at the Havana intersection of South Promenade and Dearborn St. He died shortly afterward in Mason District hospital. Sheriff Trimpe was in good condition at the same hospital.

Janice Brass, 16, of Petersburg, Menard County, was the victim of the accident Trimpe was to have investigated. Three other 16-year-olds were in the car with her when it veered off an embankment on Illinois 97 near Kibourne. Terry Dowell of Oakford and Karlene Knoles of Petersburg were in fair condition. The driver, Shirley Jansen, was not hospitalized.

Sheriff Trimpe's car, siren wailing and red light flashing, collided with the Lynch car and knocked it into a filling station, where it struck a parked vehicle.

Winchester High School Observes Education Week

By Naomi Lawson
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone 742-3496)

WINCHESTER — Once again the schools of Winchester will be in the spotlight as parents visit their children's classrooms during American Education Week, which is from November 7 to November 13.

Open House will be held Tuesday, November 9, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Winchester High School. A special committee, headed by Mrs. Loretta Glossop, Assistant Principal, has been appointed to plan the activities at local High School.

Sponsored annually by the National Education Association, The American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the U.S. Office of Education, American Education Week reminds each citizen that good schools are, to a very high degree, his own responsibility.

This year, the theme for the week's activities is "Invest in Learning," and 32 million parents across the country are expected to visit their school to check their investment.

Parents of students and other members of the community are urged to attend. Refreshments will be prepared by students in the Family Living classes under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Mary Waters.

The Evening Educational Department of the Senior Woman's Club will meet Wednesday, November 10, at 6:15 p.m. at Stage Ranch Inn.

Mrs. Charles Craver will give the program, "F. Scott Fitzgerald."

Mrs. T. J. Dugan and Mrs. Frank Cowhick are in charge of arrangements.

Reservations are to be called to Mrs. Earle Black, Mrs. Carl Woodcock or Mrs. Allen McCullough, Sr.

Legion Plans Suppers
The Julian Wells American Legion Post, No. 412, met Wednesday evening at the American Legion Home in Winchester. A fish and chicken supper preceded the meeting.

Two suppers were announced for the month of November. The first on November 10 will be given for Veterans from the Jacksonville State Hospital. The second supper will be served on November 17 and will be a free meal for all those who helped with the annual Burgoon picnic last summer.

The membership chairman, George Lindsay, reported that the Post now has 146 members.

WCSO November Meeting
The WCSO of the First Methodist church in Winchester met Thursday afternoon at Sibert Hall.

The president, Miss Frieda Balke, opened the meeting with the Prayer for the Week of Prayer and Self Denial.

Mrs. Harry Montgomery discussed the offering taken at the meeting which would in part go to Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Dale Sanner told how some of the offering would be used for medical supplies overseas.

Defendant Pays For Striking Beardstown Cop

BEARDSTOWN — Striking a police officer in Beardstown is an expensive act. It cost Gary Brown $150 and costs when he appeared in the Lincoln Courtroom here Friday and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Pike Farmer Saves Four From Flaming Car, Driver Dies

The heroic effort of a Summer Hill farmer was credited with saving the lives of four Pike county youths early Saturday morning after their speeding car careened off the highway, struck a concrete abutment 381 feet away and burst into flames. The teenage driver died in the flaming inferno.

A car carrying five Pike county teenagers crashed a short distance from the Henry Yokem farm at Summer Hill on U.S. 54, 8 miles southeast of Pittsfield early Saturday. Yokem ran to the auto and pulled four of the youths from the car but was unable to free the driver from the demolished auto.

The dead youth was identified by Pike County Coroner Warren Lord as 17-year-old Don Tedrow of Griggsville.

The four survivors were rushed to Illini Community hospital at Pittsfield where they were admitted suffering injuries received in the accident.

Three of the four youths were listed in critical condition late Saturday evening: John Miller, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Miller; John Simpkins, 17, raised in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bings, both of Griggsville; and Francis Clark, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clark of Pittsfield. The fourth youth, Mike Cawthorn, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cawthorn of Griggsville was listed in satisfactory condition.

The Pittsfield Fire Department was called to the accident scene to extinguish the burning car.

Japan Is Customer For Illinois Products

By WALTER B. PETERSON
IAA Secretary of Marketing

(Note: This dispatch was phoned back from Japan where Peterson is participating in the Illinois Far East Trade Mission headed by Gov. Otto Kerners.)

TOKYO, JAPAN, NOVEMBER 5, 1965 — Japan is a growing customer for the soybeans, wheat, and feed grains that Illinois farmers produce.

Japan is America's second largest customer. We sell $4 billion in U.S. goods to Japan annually; and Japan is our largest agricultural customer, purchasing $800 million in farm products last year. The bulk of these exports are in soybeans, wheat, and feed grains.

Soybeans are the big volume builder and Illinois has been a steady source. For example, I learned today about a Japanese food product, soy curd. More than two-thirds of the soybeans required to supply this product for the Greater Tokyo area come from Central Illinois.

There is a good reason why Harasoy and Hawkeye soybean varieties accounted for 54 per cent of our Illinois production. Their protein quality and high oil content make them superior to the varieties produced in other countries.

Now, for wheat — Japan is buying an increased volume of hard wheat for bread flour and western white wheat for the state of Washington. They use this for their pastry and biscuit needs. I attended Rotary luncheon today and, of all things, I had a generous plate of spaghetti made from this western white wheat. The rolls we had were every bit as good as you would get in the Palmer House in Chicago.

Now, about feed grains — Japan is a growing customer for feed grains. Last night we had a Mongolian barbecue comprised of Kobe beef, native pork, and broiler-type chicken. These are the products of their growing livestock industry, and Illinois corn and western milo are being used for this purpose.

Yesterday, we had an informative session with U. S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer. Our trade mission is here in Japan because this country is the seventh largest country in the world in gross national product and is growing rapidly in economic power. The indications are, according to Ambassador Reischauer, that Japan will pass France, West Germany, and Communist China in this economic race. That is a very good reason why we are here as 60 businessmen, mostly heads of small businesses.

Japan, at the present time, is going through what the ambassador describes as a depression mood. That is, it is more a mood than a reality. It is a slow-down or a recession. Industry here has had a tremendous buildup in its inventory. The country has been growing economically at an annual rate of 10 per cent for almost ten years.

Also located near the site will be a $500,000 lagoon type sewage disposal plant to be built by the city connecting with an outfall sewer leading to the local pumping plant and thence to the river.

BEARDSTOWN — The Chicago construction firm of Ragnor-Benson, Inc., which had the original contract for putting in foundations and other preliminary work for Oscar Mayer and company, has also been awarded the principal contract for construction of the company's facility here.

This was announced by a representative of the Mayer firm here this week. It was reported that the pork slaughtering complex, east of the city on the Arenzville blacktop, will be in production by fall of 1966.

The Ragnor-Benson firm has been busy at the site the past several weeks and has a large number of men on the job with bulldozers and earthmoving machinery. The foundations and footings are completed, roads through the site are finished and work can be started on the new contract very shortly, it was said here.

The pork production plant will be located on 130 acres of ground and 215,000 square feet of the site will be under roof. This will include a two-story air conditioned office building as well as pre-stressed cement panel buildings for other uses.

and you know this cannot keep up.

Most of the wartime damage has been repaired. Their backlog for domestic demand is getting caught up. Therefore, the Japanese people simply cannot absorb all this industrial output. Industry here has to pause for a while to let their domestic and export markets catch up. Japan is having a problem with its balance of payments. But their export activity has been doing quite well. We should remember that after World War II, most of the money, that is, the capital funds, were concentrated in the banks. Today, after these recovery years, industry is running on only 21 per cent equity capital and the rest is borrowed.

This slowdown worries businessmen, bankers, and government. The people in Tokyo, however, have reduced their buying only a little. They look healthy, well fed, well dressed, and the kids you see are friendly. What we are trying to do in this visit is to build and consolidate our markets for agriculture.

Menard CROP Contributions Being Received

PETERSBURG—The Menard County CROP chairman, Rev. Robert Pitsch, reports that grain donations for the program are still being received at area elevators. Contributions may be made upon delivery of grain by telling elevator operators the amount to be designated for CROP.

Participating in the Menard CROP program are the Petersburg, Athens, Sweetwater, Culver, Oakford, Afterberry, Greenview, Curtis and Tallula elevators.

Cash donations are being sent to Elmer Brunen, treasurer of the Menard County CROP Fund.

Contributions are used to meet the more urgent needs of persons in other lands afflicted with overwhelming poverty and in cases of national disaster, according to Rev. Pitsch.

Night Driving Tips Offered

The Morgan County Health Department recently received the following recommendations from the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness:

1. Because eye problems are exaggerated after dark and people are urged to use extra care when driving at night.
2. Sight distance shrinks as driving speed increases. Be alert to this especially when driving at night.
3. You see less at night than in the day and this fact should be remembered when driving at night. Remember, all other drivers see less also.
4. Drivers should be aware of the fact that their eyes play tricks on them at night and they see objects they expect to see much farther away than unexpected ones. For safety, drive more slowly at night.
5. A driver can see and identify objects 80 feet farther away when driving at 20 miles per hour than he can when driving at 60 miles per hour. Remember this when driving at night and decrease your speed at least 10 miles per hour.

"GALLOPING GERTIE'S" 25TH ANNIVERSARY

She Left Rich Legacy

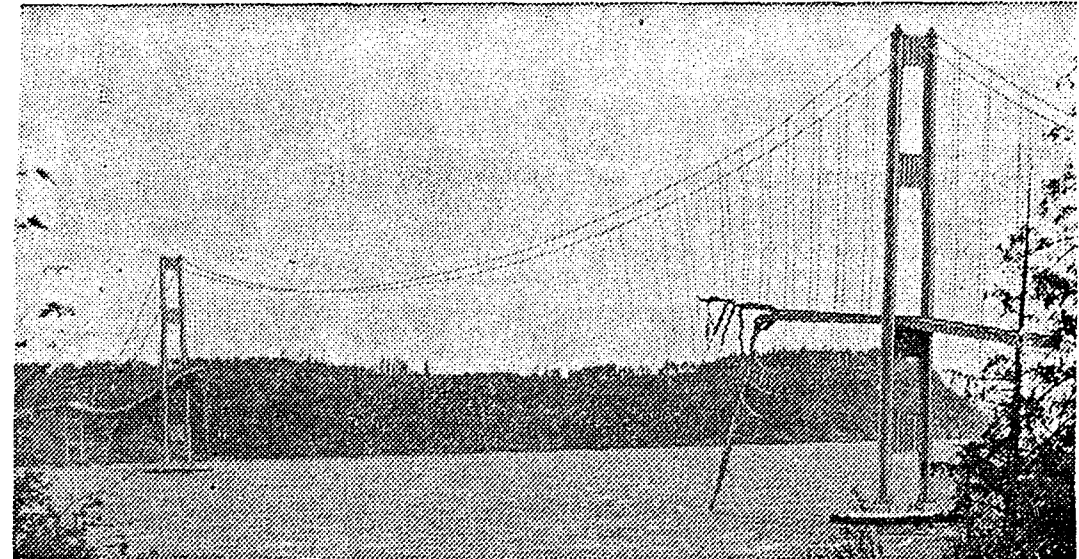

"Galloping Gertie," then the world's fourth longest suspension bridge, was so called because it was built to—and did—"ride" the strong winds of Puget Sound, which she spanned at Tacoma, Wash. She rode well as long as the wind was steady. But on Nov. 7, 1940, it came up in accelerating gusts. When one hit twisting, shuddering Gertie at 42 m.p.h., she convulsed, broke apart and fell 190 feet into the Sound. But the disaster was a blessing in disguise. Out of the intensive search for the "why" and "how" of the four-month-old span's incredible collapse came a flood of new engineering technology and better materials that has enabled bridge builders to erect longer, lighter, stronger bridges all over the world.

The 2,800-foot $6.4 million Tacoma Narrows Bridge, affectionately known as "Galloping Gertie" starts to break up under 42 m.p.h. wind.

Only the two main towers and sections of the approaches to "Galloping Gertie" remained after the span plunged 190 feet into Puget Sound. Happily, no lives were lost in the disaster. Bridge was rebuilt, opened to traffic October 14, 1950, and now serves as a laboratory for bridge designers throughout the world.

Manchester Park Shelter To Be Reality In 1966

MANCHESTER — According to a report made recently by members of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association, the proposed shelter will become a reality in 1966. The shelter, to be constructed in the local park, will be used for picnics and civic gatherings.

The Manchester Picnic committee, headed by Chester Day met Thursday evening and finished an accounting of the 1965 picnic. J. Russell Heaton, treasurer, reported final net profits amounted to $1,952.67, which was 545.09 more than last year. Gross receipts totaled $4,421.85 and total expense was $2,469.18.

The treasurer also reported a balance of $127.10 in the fund reserved from the 1964 picnic for the purchase of new equipment after the purchase of six dozen trays costing $42.48.

In conformity with an agreement among the five sponsors of the 1965 picnic, the two churches, two cemetery associations and the American Legion, the treasurer was directed to turn the entire net proceeds over to the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association which was organized this year to receive funds and build a shelter in the park for the use of the public in holding picnics and other civic activities.

Immediately following the meeting of the picnic committee, the General Committee of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association of which Chester Day and J. Russell Heaton are also Chairman and Treasurer respectively, held its meeting. The Treasurer reported receipts of $748.15 from cash donations, $1,500.00 from sale of lots and $1,952.67 from the 1965 picnic, a total of $4,200.82 on hand.

It was decided not to commence construction until sometime next year when it would be possible to secure voluntary labor but to start construction early enough to have the shelter ready for next year's picnic. In the meantime the committee

Firearms Curb Backed

Americans who grasp the need for better control over the sale and possession of firearms owe a big debt of gratitude to Senator Dodd. His persistent espousal of his suggested amendment to the Federal Firearms Act may eventually prod his colleagues into passage of this measure.

The general lack of enthusiasm for the bill, which proposes no more than a reasonable curb on the traffic in firearms, can be explained in large part by the concerted opposition to which Senator Dodd referred thus the other day on the floor of the Senate: "There has been opposition to this legislation, and by that I mean an intensive, well financed, and powerful lobby working night and day to see that it is never adopted. This lobby has distorted the facts, confused the issue, in some cases lied outright to attain its end, the defeat of reasonable firearms legislation."

Such a lobby exerts strong pressure on Congress. But, as Senator Dodd noted, there also is responsible support for his bill — from, for example, the American Bar Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The Senate should listen more attentively to such groups' sound arguments in favor of the proposed amendment, and less to the firearms lobby pushing its selfish interests.

For Whalers, It's No Tomorrow

Few people have ever seen a blue whale, except in pictures. It is extremely likely that no one ever will again, including those who hunt them for their valuable oil, meat and numerous other products.

The 100-foot blue whale, the largest animal known to have existed, has been virtually exterminated, the victim of the illogical rapacity of men.

Even now, when the blue whale is regarded as commercially extinct, as is the smaller humpback whale, the International Whaling Commission has found it impossible to get its 14 member nations to agree on a prohibition against hunting them to give what few remain a chance to reproduce themselves.

Because of the shortsighted greediness and cutthroat competition of four whaling countries—Russia, Japan, Norway and the Netherlands—the same fate threatens other species, such as the fin and sei whale.

The industry continues to insist on catch quotas well above the levels which scientists warn are necessary to allow the whale populations to recover.

The quotas are also well above what the hunters have actually been able to take, despite an array of modern equipment like helicopters, sonar, explosive harpoons and factory ships that can process an entire whale in half an hour.

Each year the quotas are lowered; each year the catch fails to come up to it.

According to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, "only the most drastic action can save the whaling industry from complete collapse within a few years."

Such action does not appear imminent. Says a spokesman for the International Whaling Commission:

"If the weather (this year) is good for killing, the scramble for the biggest profits will be reminiscent of the golden days of the robber barons."

It is said that on a sustained yield basis, this renewable natural resource would be worth some $200 million each year at current prices.

Yet here is an industry that is deliberately killing itself out of business, not to mention ridding the earth of some of the most magnificent creatures that have ever lived.

Dear Ann:

Saddled With "Spoiled Little Sister"

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7-year-old sister. Laura is spoiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it and she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to bawl—real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if

I last that long. Tell me what to do until then. —IN MISERY
Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones and little kids should not hit big ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privileges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13-year-old girl with a 7-year-old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that their kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep every night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later, they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own children. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?" My own daughters call only when they want me to sit with their kids.

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in the bunch. Mine is. —HAD TO BE SHOWN

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please. —W. P.

Dear W. P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Editor: Veterans' Day in November is considered a holiday in some states. It is a day on which we hold appropriate exercises in commemoration of the victories of our Armed Forces in all wars.

We are inclined to forget the observance of this day and leave it to patriotic organizations. It seems every year we show our appreciation less by continuing business as usual on this day.

Complete observance on this day seems a small price considering theirs.

A GLANCE Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO
County Clerk George T. Douglas announces 18,106 Morgan county residents are eligible to vote in Tuesday's election for county commissioner.

The name of the law firm of Vaught, Robinson & Foreman has been changed to Robinson, Foreman, Rammelkamp and Bradney. Partners in the firm remain the same: Carl E. Robinson, Orville N. Foreman, Theodore C. Rammelkamp and Robert E. Bradney.

The special farm census shows that the farms of Morgan county are growing fewer and larger, and much more costly to operate.

Chapin's new water system is in operation. The minimum rate for residences is $3.75 per month and for commercial use $5.75 per month.

20 YEARS AGO
The Morgan county board of commissioners remains 100% Republican as Clarke Stevenson defeated G. Ed Houston by a majority of 635 votes Tuesday. He succeeds Robert McCormick, who was not a candidate for reelection.

C. G. Evans, Winchester Republican, was elected to the Scott county board of commissioners Tuesday, defeating David L. Welch by 161 votes.

Mrs. Helen Conklin has resigned her position as physical education and music instructor at Murrayville high school.

50 YEARS AGO
The "Better Way" highway route is being marked between Scottville and Ashland. It is a band of yellow, a band of red and a band of yellow painted on telephone poles and fence posts.

John Votemeier of Franklin is president of the association. The grain elevator at Yeomans Station on the Alton air line was totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning. A new elevator will be erected as soon as arrangements can be made. Griggsville is running over with scarlet fever cases.

75 YEARS AGO
The election passed off quietly. From the very first it became evident that the Democratic had determined to win the day. Their forces were thoroughly organized and promptly on hand and no means were spared to gain the much desired result. A great many scratched tickets were polled, some being fixed on the spot and others being brought in vest pockets, already fixed for the ballot box.

Not a single Republican candidate, all good men and true, came close to election Tuesday. This is certainly a poor showing for the Grand Old Party. Horses and mules are quiet; grain and hay fairly active.

This Mincemeat Pie Saves Time

VANILLA MINCEMEAT PIE is a sweet novelty.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

As much as you may love the soft glow of Aunt Katherine's pewter candlesticks or the fine craftsmanship which went into the antique pie server, you would probably welcome a change of pace from the traditional hard work of Thanksgiving Day this year.

If so, try a no-bake vanilla cream pie combined with mincemeat. It is rich tasting, has an interesting texture, yet is light enough to provide a perfect ending to the plentiful feast. And it requires very little preparation.

The second no-bake recipe is for a creamy pumpkin pie, a modern, convenient version of the pumpkin pie that is one of our traditional Thanksgiving desserts.

Vanilla Mincemeat Pie
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 package (3 1/2 oz.) vanilla instant pudding
3/4 cup milk

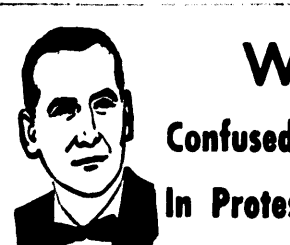

3/4 cup moist mincemeat
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Prepare topping mix as directed on package. Then prepare pudding mix as directed on package, using 3/4-cup milk. Measure 1 cup prepared whipped topping and blend into pudding along with mincemeat. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with remaining prepared whipped topping.

Creamy Pumpkin Pie
1 package vanilla whipped dessert mix
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup COLD milk
1/4 cup COLD water

1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Combine dessert mix, sugar and pumpkin pie spice. Blend in pumpkin, milk and water. Whip at high speed of electric mixer 3 minutes. Pour into crust. Chill 3 hours or more. Garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

He had gone out a day or so later with a right-wing group in a protest demonstration, urging that Earl Warren, chief justice of the Supreme Court, be impeached for his "liberal" views.

He had been looking for a civil rights protest to join in—so he could demonstrate in favor of Negro rights—but apparently none was scheduled for the time he was there.

He said he was "lost" before he went to New York. But he had "found" himself with these way-out groups.

Must Be Some Other Way

The Mature Parent

Hail the 'Sane Toys'

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"This toy doesn't kill. It does not scream or explode. It does not conquer, destroy or turn into a vampire. It is a toy train that just toots around and around."

With ads like this announcing its new "Sane Toys for Healthy Kids" policy for toy production, the Lionel Toy Corp. is taking the first step toward disarming the toy shelves of American children of their weapon and monster-shooting arsenals.

Though it's not my custom to name business firms in this space, this toy firm's decision will so rejoice parents that I make an exception to inform as many as I can about it.

If our children have needed the killing, exploding, screaming, destroying toys, the need is past. There's now enough real killing, real exploding, real destruction proliferating in the grown-up world to feed that blood lust which dwells, we are told, in the depths of childhood's psyche.

In books like "High Wind in Jamaica" and "Lord of the Flies," fine and sensitive novelists insist that boys and girls are intrinsically unfeeling savages who revert into unspeakable barbarism the moment adult control is removed. If this is true—and I don't know whether it is—we are certainly reckless to buy them any more of these murdering and monstrous toys which encourage their alleged blood lust to release itself in violence.

If the children must feel impulses to kill, explode and conquer, toys no longer have to help them indulge these impulses. They can indulge them vicariously by watching television's reports of the tortured faces of the Vietnamese mothers holding bleeding babies in their arms. If they want to hear screams, television also makes those available by showing us screaming, rioting people who come in all sizes and colors.

The Lionel people have sensed, I think, that too much violence ends by making children apathetic. I hope it crashes in on its release of the violence market to the manufacturers of the real guns, the real bombs, the real missiles and other electronic monsters. The children's weapon industry just can't compete with the actual lovely destruction now being wrought by the boom-boom toys so popular with their elders.

drafted and sent there. He didn't know what was going on. But he didn't want to fight.

What he is, is a professional "aginner." He's against anything handy that comes along. He was against his teachers when he was in high school. He is against the police when they object to his hot rodding. He's against anyone who objects to anything he does.

He is not one of the poor. He has his own car, furnished by his parents. He has ample spending money. He works when he wants to, doesn't work when he gets bored with the job.

Men and women like this are a growing group in the cities and suburbs. Many have little to do. They don't study up on the things they protest. They just go along.

They are the confused. Men with axes to grind scoop them up to protest whatever the organizers want protested.

They're like the hired guns of the Old West, except that they work for kids.

In a very real sense these people are more dangerous even than Communists. There aren't many Communists in this country. They can be identified and watched. These confused "aginner" muddy the waters.

The confusion extends among members of the teachers who have backed teach-ins. Few of the experts on Asia, Viet Nam, communism or political science have appeared as sponsors of the teach-ins.

Studies indicate that of the 1,288 academicians listed as sponsors of the national teach-in in Washington, 172 were psychologists, 167 scientists and engineers, 107 sociologists, 153 professors of English or language.

Of the 15,000 political scientists teaching in American universities, only 65 were listed as sponsors of the national teach-in committee. Most of these were reported as "completely unknown juniors."

In some underdeveloped countries, protests by groups no better informed have caused the fall of governments.

There is a danger, in any country, that credence will be given to marchers who capture publicity, rather than to the great majority who quietly go about their work and to the thousands who, without fanfare, volunteer for military service.

FINDING THE WAY

No Loss Is 'Light'

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Contrasting ideas cried out from the daily paper. One was the news release from the Defense Department, indicating that in Viet Nam there had been a battle and the American losses were light. The other was a local story, headed with two pictures and bringing the news that two men from our area had died.

We know what the tacticians mean when they talk of "light losses." They state that our side lost fewer than might have been lost; or fewer than the enemy. But, to the families of those two men, what is a "light loss?"

When we speak of "limited warfare," what does this mean to the man who is caught in the battle?

It is easy to excuse these semantic problems. Yet it is just this tendency to accept such words and ideas, that indicates a kind of erosion in our thinking and in our spiritual integrity.

Why take a stand against communism unless we defend each man's paramount worth in our thinking at home and in our public statements? Why propose to stand against these military aggressors unless we are willing to accept the principle that the individual is redeemable? To tolerate even the words which depersonalize the human being is to illustrate our dilemma.

Don Cameron Allen has stated "Composite man, cross-section man, organization man, status seeking man are not here. It is still one of the merits of the humanities that they see man with all his virtues and weaknesses, including his first, middle and last names." That's a modern statement of the insistence of Jesus that even the fall of sparrow is known.

So our problem is more than a semantic confusion. Churches, communities and cities can reflect their belief concerning mankind in their words and acts. When an affluent city can tolerate civic immoralities, neighborhood blights or slum conditions, it is talking about "light losses." When we applaud our shiny new automobiles and ignore our antiquated facilities we engage in double-think. It's like saying losses are "light."

The real inching steps off human progress from the cave to this present moment have come at the moment when the dignity of the human being is really known and understood. From the old cry of Cain's conscience, "Am I my brother's keeper?" to the positive call of Jesus to men to love one another is the pilgrimage we must understand. We can't afford to tolerate any erosion of this, even in daily conversation.

So I protest to the Defense Department concerning "light losses." By the same token let every churchman search his own soul concerning his attitudes and acts, especially when he tries to excuse his tackling of these tough issues. John Donne said it long ago, "Each man's death diminishes me." No loss is a light one!

States Urged To Consider Adoption of An Income Tax

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — At a recent meeting here, an organization of public officials from all levels of government voted 14 to 4 to recommend that states now without their own income tax give "careful consideration" to adopting one.

The group was the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The four dissenters included just one governor, Democrat John Dempsey of Connecticut.

Even though the approved recommendation was watered down from an original which called for "favorable" rather than "careful" consideration, the vote was a significant move in the states' struggle to meet rising revenue needs.

Last year at about this time, Washington seemed fairly excited over the proposal of economist Walter Heller, then presidential economic adviser, to turn back to the states a proportion of federal tax collections. It got nowhere.

The commission's new recommendation revives an older idea—that the federal government and the several states should more fully share the tax base rather than U.S. collections.

The commission thinks this idea needs a real prod. So, this time without dissent, it voted also to recommend U.S. tax law amendments which would allow taxpayers to take 40 per cent of their state and local income tax payments as a credit against their federal income tax liability.

Under existing state-local income tax laws, it is figured that this optional credit plan might cost the federal government an added $700 million in fiscal 1967.

If the prod became a reality and all states thereupon enacted adequate yield income levies, it is estimated that the loss to the federal treasury would come to around $4.2 billion in fiscal 1968. This assumes that by then the states would be collecting $13 billion in annual personal income taxes instead of an estimated $4.8 billion if present policy continues.

Today a third of the 50 states have no such tax, and the list without the levy includes some of the nation's biggest and wealthiest—Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Another third of the states, while using an income tax, apply it at very low effective rates.

The federal government gets half its revenue from this source. By contrast, it accounts for just 15 per cent of state revenues and 8 per cent of combined state and local revenues. These levies probably come from about 20 million taxpayers in areas which exclude some of the country's highest income sections.

The extremely vocal enemies of the income tax very likely would say "well and good." But powerful arguments are being advanced for wider use of individual income taxes at the state level.

The big point is that this levy is the only one with any real growth potential, an element the states badly appear to need in their future tax plans.

State and local spending is not only rising faster than federal spending but is outstripping the gains in the nation's gross national product. The 135 per cent postwar hike in GNP has been over-matched in the same period by a 300 per cent increase in state-local general government outlays.

Members of the advisory intergovernmental group can foresee no let up in this disproportionate rise. Hence the overwhelming conclusion that many states will not long be able to continue their strained reliance upon property and sales taxes. There is little belief these levies will have little future usefulness in meeting the expected upsurge of state-local expenditures.

It is argued, therefore, that the barnacle-encrusted debate in some states over the relative merits of sales vs. income taxes is now beside the point, that many states are in fact living on borrowed fiscal time and will desperately need every revenue source they can find in order to survive financially in the burdensome years ahead.

Firearms Curb Backed

Americans who grasp the need for better control over the sale and possession of firearms owe a big debt of gratitude to Senator Dodd. His persistent espousal of his suggested amendment to the Federal Firearms Act may eventually prod his colleagues into passage of this measure.

The general lack of enthusiasm for the bill, which proposes no more than a reasonable curb on the traffic in firearms, can be explained in large part by the concerted opposition to which Senator Dodd referred thus the other day on the floor of the Senate: "There has been opposition to this legislation, and by that I mean an intensive, well financed, and powerful lobby working night and day to see that it is never adopted. This lobby has distorted the facts, confused the issue, in some cases lied outright to attain its end, the defeat of reasonable firearms legislation."

Such a lobby exerts strong pressure on Congress. But, as Senator Dodd noted, there also is responsible support for his bill — from, for example, the American Bar Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The Senate should listen more attentively to such groups' sound arguments in favor of the proposed amendment, and less to the firearms lobby pushing its selfish interests.

For Whalers, It's No Tomorrow

Few people have ever seen a blue whale, except in pictures. It is extremely likely that no one ever will again, including those who hunt them for their valuable oil, meat and numerous other products.

The 100-foot blue whale, the largest animal known to have existed, has been virtually exterminated, the victim of the illogical rapacity of men.

Even now, when the blue whale is regarded as commercially extinct, as is the smaller humpback whale, the International Whaling Commission has found it impossible to get its 14 member nations to agree on a prohibition against hunting them to give what few remain a chance to reproduce themselves.

Because of the shortsighted greediness and cutthroat competition of four whaling countries—Russia, Japan, Norway and the Netherlands—the same fate threatens other species, such as the fin and sei whale.

The industry continues to insist on catch quotas well above the levels which scientists warn are necessary to allow the whale populations to recover.

The quotas are also well above what the hunters have actually been able to take, despite an array of modern equipment like helicopters, sonar, explosive harpoons and factory ships that can process an entire whale in half an hour.

Each year the quotas are lowered; each year the catch fails to come up to it.

According to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, "only the most drastic action can save the whaling industry from complete collapse within a few years."

Such action does not appear imminent. Says a spokesman for the International Whaling Commission:

"If the weather (this year) is good for killing, the scramble for the biggest profits will be reminiscent of the golden days of the robber barons."

It is said that on a sustained yield basis, this renewable natural resource would be worth some $200 million each year at current prices.

Yet here is an industry that is deliberately killing itself out of business, not to mention ridding the earth of some of the most magnificent creatures that have ever lived.

This Mincemeat Pie Saves Time

VANILLA MINCEMEAT PIE is a sweet novelty.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

As much as you may love the soft glow of Aunt Katherine's pewter candlesticks or the fine craftsmanship which went into the antique pie server, you would probably welcome a change of pace from the traditional hard work of Thanksgiving Day this year.

If so, try a no-bake vanilla cream pie combined with mincemeat. It is rich tasting, has an interesting texture, yet is light enough to provide a perfect ending to the plentiful feast. And it requires very little preparation.

The second no-bake recipe is for a creamy pumpkin pie, a modern, convenient version of the pumpkin pie that is one of our traditional Thanksgiving desserts.

Vanilla Mincemeat Pie
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 package (3 1/2 oz.) vanilla instant pudding
3/4 cup milk

3/4 cup moist mincemeat
1 baked 8-inch pie shell, cooled

Prepare topping mix as directed on package. Then prepare pudding mix as directed on package, using 3/4-cup milk. Measure 1 cup prepared pudding and blend into pudding along with mincemeat. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with remaining prepared whipped topping.

Creamy Pumpkin Pie
1 package vanilla whipped dessert mix
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup COLD milk
1/4 cup COLD water
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Combine dessert mix, sugar and pumpkin pie spice. Blend in pumpkin, milk and water. Whip at high speed of electric mixer 3 minutes. Pour into crust. Chill 3 hours or more. Garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

Washington Confused 'Aginners' Putty In Protest Molders' Hands

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We are developing in the United States a professional group of demonstrators and protesters.

The other day, when some of us were sitting and talking at a neighbor's house in Fairfax County, Va., a young man dropped by who lives in a nearby subdivision. He is a recent high school graduate.

He said he'd been up in New York to visit Greenwich Village. He was enthralled by the beatniks and became one. Then he'd dropped over to another part of the city to take part in a protest put on by a left-wing group demonstrating against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

He had gone out a day or so later with a right-wing group in a protest demonstration, urging that Earl Warren, chief justice of the Supreme Court, be impeached for his "liberal" views.

He had been looking for a civil rights protest to join in—so he could demonstrate in favor of Negro rights—but apparently none was scheduled for the time he was there.

He said he was "lost" before he went to New York. But he had "found" himself with these way-out groups.

The Mature Parent

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"This toy doesn't kill. It does not scream or explode. It does not conquer, destroy or turn into a vampire. It is a toy train that just toots around and around."

With ads like this announcing its new "Sane Toys for Healthy Kids" policy for toy production, the Lionel Toy Corp. is taking the first step toward disarming the toy shelves of American children of their weapon and monster-shooting arsenals.

Though it's not my custom to name business firms in this space, this toy firm's decision will so rejoice parents that I make an exception to inform as many as I can about it.

If our children have needed the killing, exploding, screaming, destroying toys, the need is past. There's now enough real killing, real exploding, real destruction proliferating in the grown-up world to feed that blood lust which dwells, we are told, in the depths of childhood's psyche.

In books like "High Wind in Jamaica" and "Lord of the Flies," fine and sensitive novelists insist that boys and girls are intrinsically unfeeling savages who revert into unspeakable barbarism the moment adult control is removed. If this is true—and I don't know whether it is—we are certainly reckless to buy them any more of these murdering and monstrous toys which encourage their alleged blood lust to release itself in violence.

If the children must feel impulses to kill, explode and conquer, toys no longer have to help them indulge these impulses. They can indulge them vicariously by watching television's reports of the tortured faces of the Vietnamese mothers holding bleeding babies in their arms. If they want to hear screams, television also makes those available by showing us screaming rioting people who come in all sizes and colors.

The Lionel people have sensed, I think, that too much violence ends by making children apathetic. I hope it crashes in on its release of the violence market to the manufacturers of the real guns, the real bombs, the real missiles and other electronic monsters. The children's weapon industry just can't compete with the actual lovely destruction now being wrought by the boom-boom toys so popular with their elders.

The confusion extends among members of the teachers who have backed teach-ins. Few of the experts on Asia, Viet Nam, communism or political science have appeared as sponsors of the teach-ins.

Studies indicate that of the 1,268 academicians listed as sponsors of the national teach-in in Washington, 172 were psychologists, 167 scientists and engineers, 107 sociologists, 153 professors of English or language.

FINDING THE WAY

No Loss Is 'Light'

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Contrasting ideas cried out from the daily paper. One was the news release from the Defense Department, indicating that in Viet Nam there had been a battle and the American losses were light. The other was a local story, headed with two pictures and bringing the news that two men from our area had died.

We know what the tacticians mean when they talk of "light losses." They state that our side lost fewer than might have been lost; or fewer than the enemy. But, to the families of those two men, what is a "light loss?"

When we speak of "limited warfare," what does this mean to the man who is caught in the battle?

It is easy to excuse these semantic problems. Yet it is just this tendency to accept such words and ideas, that indicates a kind of erosion in our thinking and in our spiritual integrity.

Why take a stand against communism unless we defend each man's paramount worth in our thinking at home and in our public statements? Why propose to stand against these military aggressors unless we are willing to accept the principle that the individual is redeemable? To tolerate even the words which depersonalize the human being is to illustrate our dilemma.

Don Cameron Allen has stated, "Composite man, cross-section man, organization man, status seeking man are not here. It is still one of the merits of the humanities that they see man with all his virtues and weaknesses, including his first, middle and last names." That's a modern statement of the insistence of Jesus that even the fall of sparrow is known.

So our problem is more than a semantic confusion. Churches, communities and cities can reflect their belief concerning mankind in their words and acts. When an affluent city can tolerate civic immoralities, neighborhood blights or slum conditions, it is talking about "light losses." When we applaud our shiny new automobiles and ignore our antiquated facilities we engage in double-think. It's like saying losses are "light."

The real inching steps of human progress from the cave to this present moment have come at the moment when the dignity of the human being is really known and understood. From the old cry of Cain's conscience, "Am I my brother's keeper?" to the positive call of Jesus to men to love one another is the pilgrimage we must understand. We can't afford to tolerate any erosion of this, even in daily conversation.

So I protest to the Defense Department concerning "light losses." By the same token let every churchman search his own soul concerning his attitudes and acts, especially when he tries to excuse his tackling of these tough issues. John Donne said it long ago, "Each man's death diminishes me." No loss is a light one!

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7-year-old sister. Laura is spoiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it and she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to bawl—real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her. She's a young lady."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if

I last that long. Tell me what to do until then. —IN MISERY

Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones and little kids should not hit big ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privileges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13-year-old girl with a 7-year-old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that their kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep every night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later, they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?" My own daughters call only when they want me to sit with their kids.

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in the bunch. Mine is. —HAD TO BE SHOWN

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please. —W. P.

Dear W. P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Editor:

Veterans' Day in November is considered a holiday in this state. It is a day on which we better to do appropriate exercises in commemoration of the victories of our Armed Forces in all wars.

We are inclined to forget the observance of this day and leave it to patriotic organizations. It seems every year we show our appreciation less by continuing business as usual on this day.

Complete observance on this day seems a small price considering theirs.

ASK ME

Q. What is meant by sun spots?

A. Sunspots are areas of giant storms on the sun. In contrast with the surrounding great brilliance of the sun, they have a darkish look and so are called "spots."

Q. Why can we get AM radio directly from a greater distance than we get FM radio or TV?

A. AM radio waves bounce back from the ionosphere, an electrically charged layer of air at the top of earth's envelope of atmosphere. FM waves and TV waves, however, go straight out from their source and right through the atmosphere. The curve of the earth limits the distance at which they can be received without being re-broadcast.

Q. Da weather satellites really aid forecasts?

A. Indeed they do. Early warnings of hurricanes for example have enabled residents to leave their threatened areas and so have resulted in a great saving of lives. Future weather watchers will do an even more accurate piece of work.

If you have a question send it to Junior Page Editor, Jacksonville Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill. and it will be answered in this column.

A Smarty Needs Help

By Mary Pence Claywell

Now a "clever" guy is one thing. But a "Smarty," is another. Most folk admire the first one. And most abhor . . . the other. 'Tis "sad" to see a "Smarty." He lacks . . . we must admit. A little bit of "common sense." Sometimes . . . and tries to hide it.

He thinks he is quite funny. We should "excuse" that too. Nor "react," for it's silly. And not . . . the thing to do: Lord, help us to be tolerant. And give us courage, then, To "help" us . . . "help" the "smarty."

In place of "joining" him: He often, needs our "pity." Feels "outside," in his heart. And tries to gain "attention." At times . . . by acting "smart!"

Let's Go Birding

Farewell Songs

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The great American Elm which had shaded the home during the summer and had etched the sky with its spreading vase of bare branches in the winter was dead. For at least a century it had been a retreat for hot tired birds, a look-out for feeding birds, or even a choir loft for the singing birds. Rarely was this tree free from a bird visitor.

But this gigantic tree, like most of the elms along the streets, had died; it had rapidly dropped its yellowing leaves early in the summer, long before the proper time of shedding them. This formerly green majestic tree stood stark against the hot summer sky.

We had already employed tree cutters to saw it down, limb by limb; but rain and broken equipment had delayed this harrowing process. At first we were irritable, defiant, and then resigned to the uncertainties of its removal.

Still Birds' Home Autumn arrived, and we became aware of something that was going on: the dead elm was still being used by birds, and we were glad that it still stood. Talkative Blackcapped Chickadees were bouncing among the dark stiff twigs, examining crevices for some tasty morsels. Downy Woodpeckers took their turns hitching their way up the trunk, hammering out some bit of food. Now and then a Blue Jay slid in and wedged a sunflower seed in the crack of the dried bark, a thrifty Jay providing for winter. Inquisitive English Sparrows flew in and out, wondering what was really going on.

The most frequent visitors were Robins. Near the Elm stood a Siebold Crabapple Tree filled with tiny red apples.

The Robins, a dozen at a time, feasted upon this fruit. There they perched, brick-red breasts matching the red cheeks of the small apples, fencing with the dangling fruits, and succeeding in yanking off the ripest ones and automatically gulping them down.

Autumn Carols At times they flew to the nearby dead Elm and occasionally sang their carols, softened and shortened by autumn. Were we imagining too much? These songs also sounded sad. Were the Robins warbling a farewell to the tree that had served them so faithfully so many years? Did they know that this great American Elm would be gone next spring, next summer, and next fall?

We, indeed, realized, as many other citizens of Jacksonville have too, that it and dozens of other elms were dead and dying. We continually heard the chewing saws and crashing trees.

We regretted that the birds would find their favorite haunts empty and could do no more than hope that they would make the remaining trees favorite shelters. And we promised the Blue Jays more sunflower seeds, and all the birds restored trees.

Special Thanksgiving

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Now that Gemini 6 has been scrubbed because the Agena B target vehicle failed to make it into orbit American astronauts will have to wait for Gemini 8 to get their first attempt at rendezvous with another satellite in orbit. Gemini 7, which will use Gemini 6's unused Titan II booster, is scheduled for a marathon 14 day endurance trial in space.

Gemini 10 and 11 are also scheduled for space rendezvous attempts. On Gemini 9 and 12 the astronauts will be going on 52 minute space walks. For these walks they will wear an Astronaut Maneuvering Unit (AMU) which is actually a self contained spacecraft in the form of a backpack. The details of this backpack were described in a paper given to a meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) in St. Louis on October 13 by Mr. W. C. McMillian of Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., the manufacturers of the backpack.

Life In Space The backpack provides the astronaut with all the necessities of life in space including eight small hydrogen peroxide steering jets. However, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) astronauts will also use an umbilical line similar to the one Mayor White used on his famous walk. This will give added safety in case something goes wrong with the backpack or if the astronaut overstays the time allotted by the backpack's supplies.

The backpack is also equipped with its own warning device. If anything goes wrong a light flashes in the control unit on the astronaut's chest and a beeping tone sounds in his earphones. An added safety factor is provided by the Gemini spacecraft which can maneuver alongside the astronaut if he needs help. Of course the backpack, like the Gemini itself, is provided with backup systems in case the main ones fail.

Stored Outside During the launching the backpack is stored outside the pressurized cabin in the adapter section at the aft end of the spacecraft. When the time comes for the space walk one of the astronauts, wearing a small chest pack attached to the umbilical line, will open the hatch, climb out and make his way to the back of the spacecraft.

When he arrives he will brace himself in a trapeze-like hand and foot bar, pull on the backpack and plug into the day's work out side the spacecraft. After familiarizing himself with his equipment he will maneuver out to the limits of his 200 foot umbilical line.

During this maneuvering he will attempt to perform some useful work in space. On one of the Gemini flights, probably Gemini 12, and astronaut may attempt to pluck some "feathers" from the winged Pegasus III meteor detection satellite. After his tasks have been completed the astronaut will return to the Gemini spacecraft and leave the backpack behind in space.

Special Thanksgiving

By John Rankin

The light from the crackling logs in the open fireplace flickered through the window of the remote little cabin and great clouds of white smoke curled lazily upward and was soon lost in the gray, hazy-like dawn of a November day. There was a hint of snow in the air and in the stillness of the valley. And even the low-hanging clouds that seemed to dip down to the very peak of the mountains warned of an impending storm.

Inside the cabin 12-year-old Lynn Hickman awakened with a start when he felt the cold nose of Ringo, his big black and white collie nudging him gently in the face and he reached out to give the big dog a friendly pat on the head.

"All right, boy, I'll get up," he muttered drowsily. Then he swung himself to a sitting position on the side of the bunk and peered through the dim light of the open fire at Uncle Luke on his makeshift bed across the room.

"Guess he's still asleep," Lynn muttered softly. Then he hustled into his clothes and with Ringo at his heels he quietly left the room with a battered water bucket and headed for a spring at the foot of the hill. Uncle Luke, a dark, tall and gangling man about fifty was up putting fresh logs on the fire when they returned from the spring.

"Thought you'd want to sleep late so we didn't wake you," Lynn said thoughtfully as he put the bucket of water on an old-fashioned table near the door. "What got you up so early anyway? Going to round up the sheep today, maybe?"

Important Day The veteran hillman's dark eyes had a serious look as he turned from the fire. "You know what tomorrow is, and what the day means to us, son?" he asked with feeling.

Lynn was thoughtful a moment and a puzzled look showed on his boyish features. "Yeah, sure, Uncle Luke, it's Thursday. Why?"

"It's Thanksgiving, son. And we're going to offer our thanks in that little church back in the hills," Uncle Luke nodded slowly. "Then we'll have turkey and pumpkin pie and all the trimmings just like your aunt Sally used to fix up. Of course it won't be the same but . . ."

Lynn looked up at the tall backwoodsman with misgiving. "Guess we can make it to church all right, Uncle Luke, but don't see how we'll manage the turkey and things when we're back here miles from nowhere and no stores or nothing."

THE WIND

The wind in the shutters,
The wind at my door,
As I lay in my bed,
It blows like never before.

The wind all around me,
As it whines like a dog,
Probably I,
Should be sleeping like a log.

Suddenly the shutters,
Tear open with a crash,
I slam them closed,
And my fingers I almost smash.

The wind in the shutters,
The wind at my door,
Are not so loud,
As before.

THE CATERPILLAR

Once there was a little caterpillar,
Who wouldn't mind his mother;
When she told him to go to bed,
He knocked her in the head;

I shall be an explorer,
Said he to his mother, for he really did adore her;
So off he went into the jungle of grass,
His poor mother weeping that alas,

He should never come home.
The jungle was a massive place,
Towering high over head;

Soon he was lost,
Or so he said;
I shall climb this grass stem high,
In hopes he should reach the sky;

When he reached the top,
He exclaimed how my ears do pop;
I shall leave this horrid place,
Before I get eaten up;

But along came a spider
And that was the end of poor he.

LEAVES FALLING

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are;
Yellow, orange, and red;
The leaves are falling,
How pretty they are to see:

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are
In piles stacked high;
The leaves are falling,
For people to rake and rake:

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are
The trees will be bare:
The leaves are falling
For winter soon to come:

The snow is falling,
Yes it is,
Snow is hiding those leaves;
The snow is falling,
Those pretty leaves are gone:

WHIRLPOOL WONDER

Beside the green pastures
There lies a brook
With water running smoothly
Down, down, through the bridge

You see it coming closer and closer
Then it becomes a whirlpool
You wonder how it turns
With spinning water gushing around

It looks like a spinning top
With water instead of plastic
It looks so becoming so graceful
And beautiful
I dive into the silly whirlpool

Then down, down I went
Gasp, gasp I was drowning
I knew how stupid I was
I will always wonder about whirlpools.

FALL LEAVES

Look at those leaves
Come falling down.
Like a storm at night
When you go into town.
They feel like raindrops
Falling from the sky,
But they are red and yellow
It's not a lie.

I know how anxious
You are to see,
The land of
The falling leaves.
So come along with me
And we shall fly,
To the falling leaves
From way up high.

BIG DREAM

I went fishing one day
I fished in a bay
I caught a big fish
Boy, was I gay

It was as big as my boat
Gosh, what a load
I took it home
But it ran away

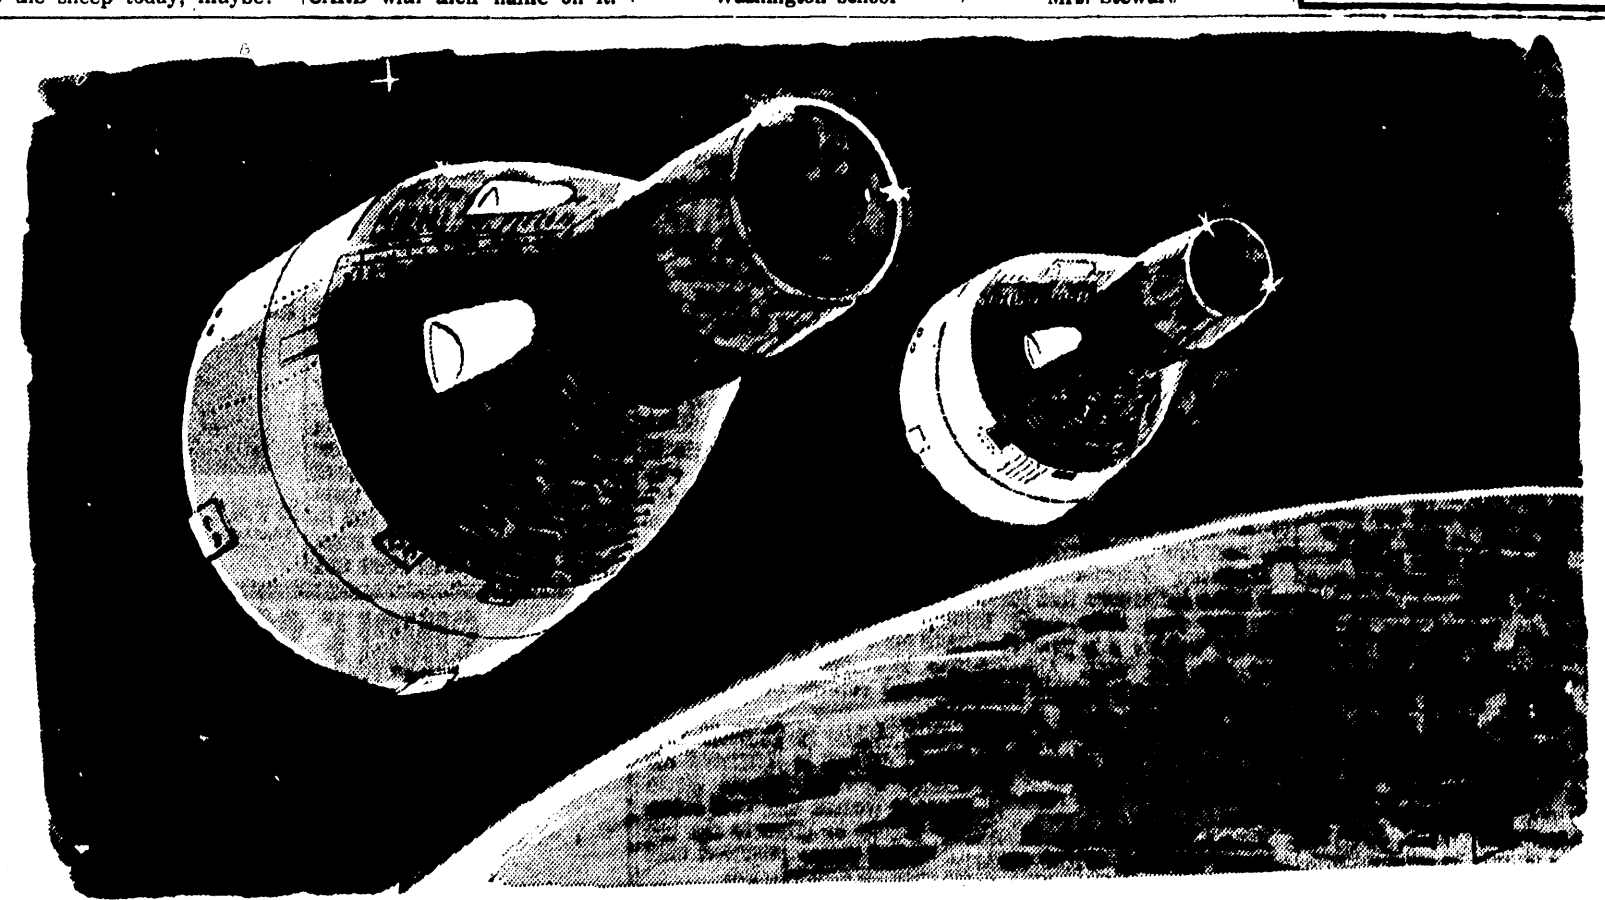

I told my mother
She didn't believe me
So I didn't bother her
And went to my room

I didn't believe myself
But just then I woke up
I found it was all a dream
Just my luck

DOUBLE DATE, BY GEMINI!—Sketch above is an artist's conception of a successful climax to the unprecedented rendezvous in space planned for four astronauts in the Gemini-7 and Gemini-6 spacecraft. Gemini-7, carrying astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, will blast off from Cape Kennedy first and go into orbit for a 14-day endurance flight that would crack all manned space flight duration records. Seven or eight days later, Gemini-6, whose rendezvous and docking flight was scrubbed when its target Agena disappeared, would go into orbit to pursue and rendezvous with its mate, possibly as close as 100 feet. Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford will again be the astronauts. For two days, the duo will orbit in tandem, "like two cars speeding side-by-side down a super-highway without smashing fenders." The crews may be able to see each other through the spacecraft windows and will take photographs and talk by radio.

Routt Rally Nips Kincaid By 12-6

Routt struck for two fourth-quarter touchdowns on sustained drives, the last one coming with 1:18 left in the game, to score a 12-6 come-from-behind football victory over Kincaid. Saturday evening at the JHS athletic field.

The Rockets, trailing from early in the opening period until the final quarter, solved Kincaid's single-wing offense in the second half after the visiting Ponies ripped big holes through them in the first half.

Routt's offense was unable to move in the first half, as the Rockets got only 56 yards. The Rockets came back, mostly on the ground, in the second half to role up 110 yards. While their offense purked up, their defense tightened and limited the Ponies to only 29 net rushing yards after the visitors ground out 133 in the first half.

Razorbacks Take 20th In Row In Win Over Rice

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bobby Burnett supplied the power Saturday as the Arkansas Razorbacks, the nation's No. 2 team, extended its undefeated streak to 20 games by overwhelming outmanned Rice 31-0.

Burnett scored two touchdowns, set up another, and saw his running play a major role in a drive that led to a 37-yard field goal by Ronny South.

A crowd of 46,000, including Lynda Bird Johnson, eldest daughter of the President, watched.

The victory was Arkansas' 13th in a row in Southwest Conference play, a record that exceeded a streak of 12 by Texas in 1963-64.

Arkansas scored the first two times it had the ball and boosted its halftime lead to 17-0 when Burnett scored after Bobby Roper intercepted a Rice pass and raced 49 yards to the Owl nine in the second quarter.

Arkansas drove 64 yards for an early touchdown in the fourth period and closed with a 10-yard touchdown by Jim Lindsey on the first play after six minutes remaining.

Arkansas 10 7 0 14-31

Mighty Nebraska Tromps Kansas In Big Eight 42-6

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Third-ranked and undefeated Nebraska overpowered Big Eight rival Kansas 42-6 Saturday after running up a 21-0 lead and coasting to its eighth football victory of the season.

For Kansas, shutout winners over Oklahoma State and Kansas State in their last two outings, the loss put their season mark at 2-6 and conference record at 2-3.

The Nation's No. 1 rushing team with a 269-average going into the game, Nebraska fattened its average with 419 yards on the ground and another 91 by air.

Halfback Ron Kirkland, back in prime condition after recovering from shoulder injuries, accounted for 146 yards on 10 carries in the first half.

Kansas was held to 144 rushing yards and 60 passing yards. The lone Jayhawk touchdown was scored with 27 seconds remaining of the first half. By that time, Nebraska had racked up three touchdowns on drives of 61 yards, 59 yards and 97 yards.

The Cornhuskers added three touchdowns in the third quarter, two of them in 86 seconds.

Kansas 0 6 0 0-6

Greenville Nips Clan By 27-28

GREENVILLE — MacMurray barriers Dennis Mueller and Jim McGinnis broke the established course records for three and four miles here Saturday, but the one-two finish was not enough for a team triumph as host Greenville edged the Clansmen 27-28.

Mueller covered the first three miles in 16:36 and the full distance in 22:22, while McGinnis paced five seconds behind the front-running Mueller at both lengths.

Other top finishers for the Highlanders included Marc Matanga (6th), Rodger Ferguson (7th), and Bill Beckenbaugh (9th).

The Clansmen are slated to close their season next Saturday when Mueller, McGinnis, Matanga, Ferguson and Beckenbaugh will represent the Highlanders in the NCAA mid-west cross country championships held at Wheaton.

The victory moves Routt to a 4-2-2 record on the year, and leaves Kincaid 1-6-1, both with one game left on the schedule.

Tom Murgatroyd and Paul Lambert punched out short touchdowns in the decisive fourth quarter. After Kincaid starting moving well in the final minute the Ponies threat was ended when Mike Fitzpatrick intercepted a Kincaid aerial at the ten-yard line.

Kincaid shocked the Rockets the first time they got the ball. The Ponies took only six plays to move from their own 44 to the Routt 14. The big play on the series was a 27-yard gallop by John Mayer. The Rockets finally held Kincaid inches short of a first down at the 15 and took over.

Kincaid Scores Early
After holding Routt to nine yards in three plays, Kincaid took over again and this time wasted no time getting on the scoreboard. Mayer passed 31 yards to end Bob Meadows to the Routt 22, and on the next play the shifty Mayer scampered the remaining distance down the sidelines, breaking loose from several tacklers. The run for the point after was short with 5:00 left in the quarter.

The best Routt could muster in the initial quarter was two first downs, one on a 12-yard carry by halfback Dave Geers and the other on a six-yard pass from Murgatroyd to Dick Zeller.

Routt had two drives stopped in the second quarter, picking up a first down each time. One drive, set up by 25 yards in penalties on Kincaid, moved to the Ponies' 21 before Mark Sager recovered a Fitzpatrick fumble at the 21.

Mayer electrified the Rockets again, on the final play of the first half. The speedy halfback broke loose from his own 25 for 49 yards before a clipping call stopped the play.

Mayer alone accounted for an impressive 125 yards in the first two quarters, on only nine carries.

Routt's ground machine began to dominate the game in the third stanza. The Rockets controlled the ball for 13 of the 21 plays in the period.

Late in the quarter Routt took over on the Kincaid 42 and began moving to their first score. Geers scampered for 17 yards to the Kincaid 17, and Lambert's six-yard carry and a five-yard penalty moved the ball to the six. From there Lambert carried to the three and Murgatroyd sliced over on the next play for a tie game with 9:25 to play. The kick for the PAT was blocked.

Get Another Chance
Routt held Kincaid to only one first down in the next series, getting the ball back on their own 32 with four minutes to play.

From there another 15-yard assessment against the visitors, who had 66 yards in penalties to only five by Routt in the game, and steady running by Geers and Lambert moved the ball into scoring distance.

Lambert picked up an important first down on a crucial fourth down at the Kincaid 27. From there Geers bulled his way for 12 to the 15 and Fitzpatrick swept right end for ten more to the five.

Lambert punched for four to the one and lunged over on the next play, after being stopped momentarily at the line of scrimmage. The kick for the PAT never got off, leaving Routt with a 12-6 edge with 1:18 to play.

Kincaid completed three of four passes in the closing seconds, moving from their own 38 to the Routt 25 before Fitzpatrick's interception at the settled the issue.

N. Ill. Captures Homecoming Win Over State, 48-6

DE KALB, Ill. (AP) — Unde-feated Northern Illinois celebrated homecoming in its new stadium Saturday by crushing Illinois State 48-6 before 18,858 fans, the largest crowd ever to witness an Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference game.

Northern's Ron Christian, the nation's leading passer, completed 18 of 31 passes for 314 yards and four touchdowns.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Griesman also threw two touchdowns passes for Northern. The other Northern score came on another pass by halfback Arny Velez.

End Pete Regas and flanker back Gerry Sandberg each caught three of the Northern touchdown tosses. End Bob Stark caught the other.

Christian, also the nation's small college leader in total offense going into the game, ran for 49 yards in addition to his passing yardage.

He has now completed 164 of 306 passes for the season for a total of 1,949 yards and 21 touchdowns. His total offensive yardage, including rushing, is 2,021 yards.

Illinois State scored its touchdown in the last period on a 43-yard pass from quarterback Jerry Kinnikin to end Jerry May-le.

The victory was the eighth in a row for Northern and assured it of a share of the IIAAC crown with a 3-0 conference slate.

Illinois State is 0-8 on the year and 0-3 in conference play.

From there Lambert carried to the three and Murgatroyd sliced over on the next play for a tie game with 9:25 to play. The kick for the PAT was blocked.

Get Another Chance
Routt held Kincaid to only one first down in the next series, getting the ball back on their own 32 with four minutes to play.

From there another 15-yard assessment against the visitors, who had 66 yards in penalties to only five by Routt in the game, and steady running by Geers and Lambert moved the ball into scoring distance.

Lambert picked up an important first down on a crucial fourth down at the Kincaid 27. From there Geers bulled his way for 12 to the 15 and Fitzpatrick swept right end for ten more to the five.

Lambert punched for four to the one and lunged over on the next play, after being stopped momentarily at the line of scrimmage. The kick for the PAT never got off, leaving Routt with a 12-6 edge with 1:18 to play.

Kincaid completed three of four passes in the closing seconds, moving from their own 38 to the Routt 25 before Fitzpatrick's interception at the settled the issue.

Purdue Tromps Wisconsin 45-7 Behind Sub FB

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue mixed hard running by substitute fullback John Kuzniewski with brutal blocking and a smothering offense to pulverize Wisconsin, 45-7, in the Boiler-makers' Dads Day football game Saturday.

Kuzniewski carried the ball on eight of 16 plays and gained 27 yards as Purdue drove 77 yards after the opening kickoff to score. Starting in place of injured Randy Minniear, he carried 21 times for 78 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Bob Griesse didn't need his passing game except to keep the ineffectual Wisconsin defense loose, but he scored two touchdowns on quarterback sneaks and kicked a 27-yard field goal and six extra points.

The Purdue defensive line ripped ample holes in the Wisconsin defense to enable Kuzniewski and Gordon Teter to pound through for first down yardage. The Purdue defense got the ball back so quickly that the offensive unit had little time to relax.

Defensive end George Olion set up two short Purdue touchdowns drives with a pass interception and a fumble recovery.

Wisconsin's only effective offensive drive came late in the game against Purdue's reserves. Substitute quarterback John Bosajian hit eight of nine passes in a 63-yard touchdown drive with end Bill Fritz making a spectacular catch deep in the corner of the end zone.

The Purdue defense held Wisconsin to minus 6 yards by rushing. Purdue rolled up 253 yards on the ground, with Kuzniewski getting 78 on 21 carries and Teter 74 on 15 runs.

Dave Herrick sent in as fullback to rest Kuzniewski, ripped off 52 yards in 11 carries.

After the first two games this season, (Little was scoreless) I was even wondering ... I started losing confidence in myself.

"I started thinking all sorts of things, like was I a sophomore who just got lucky?"

After splitting those opening games by beating Navy, 14-6, and losing to Miami (Fla.), 24-0, Syracuse found its timing and it also found a fullback in sophomore Larry Csonka, the perfect complement to Little.

"Last year, when we had Jim Nance," Floyd said, "it was a great for me because if they keyed on him that meant I was free and vice versa."

"This year, they've been stacking the outside on me, but Larry is coming along so well that they can't afford to do that any more."

"Generally, it's been a lot rougher for me this year than last, but I expected it and I just show them I can take what they give me."

"I'm really getting hit a lot harder this year and when I don't have the ball they're really working me over. When I have the ball—wow!"

"But even if they hurt me,

Little: I'm Expected To Score In Every Game Syracuse Plays

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (NEA) — For Floyd Little, there has been only pressure.

Last year, as a sophomore, it was the pressure of matching on the field the imaginative build-up of Syracuse University's productive publicity department.

Once done, the pressure changed to matching the records of Jimmy Brown and Ernie Davis, his predecessors at Syracuse.

I never let them see it. I get up smiling and I'll say 'nice tackle' or 'nice day.'

"They're always telling me I'm not so tough and some of them say other things, too, but let's not get into that."

"I get the rough stuff mostly on pass protection or extra points."

The "rough stuff" can't be bothering Little very much because the 5-11, 195-pound halfback is having an excellent season.

After scoring four times against Pitt, one a 95-yard punt return, and rolling up 248 total yards, Floyd conceded it was his best game.

Previously, he had amassed 267 yards in one day against both Penn State and Holy Cross.

That pace is carrying him close to the Syracuse rushing records and that means equality, finally, with Brown and Davis.

By then, the pressure will be even greater because Floyd Little will be ready for the pros.

And the comparisons will start again.

Buckeyes Rally To Nip Indians In Fourth, 17-10

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Full-back Will Sander bolted into the end zone with a fourth quarter touchdown, his second of the game, giving Ohio State a comeback 17-10 Big Ten victory Saturday over an aroused Indiana team.

The Buckeyes, battling to stay alive in the conference race before 83,863, drove 63 yards in 12 plays to post the clinching score with 5:29 remaining.

Sander busted over from the two to culminate the drive, sparked by quarterback Don Unvorferth's three pass completions.

The triumph was the fourth against a lone setback for the Buckeyes, while Indiana fell to a 1-4 mark in the league.

The Hoosiers, a two-touchdown underdog, threw a mighty scare into the Buckeyes before yielding and held a 10-7 advantage at halftime.

With hometown product Frank Stavroff supplying the fireworks the Hoosiers struck for 10 points in the second period. In an impressive bid to win their first game from the Bucks since 1951.

But Ohio's savage defense rose to the occasion, holding the stubborn Hoosiers to only one first down in the second half. Indiana never threatened in the final two periods, reaching Ohio territory only once.

Mrs. J. Whelan Jo Head Strawns Crossing Club

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell was hostess Nov. 2nd to members of Strawn's Crossing Woman's club at her country home near Jacksonville. The president, Mrs. Roy Robson, presided and the meeting opened with the pledge to the flag and prayer.

During routine business an election was held. Officers named were: Mrs. John Whelan, president; Mrs. Adolph Boster, vice president; Mrs. Cromwell, secretary.

Mrs. Robson was in charge of the program, What Farmers Will Get Now, a look at the coming law. The subject was most appropriate since most of the members have farm interests.

Ten members answered roll. Guests were Mrs. Edward Hairgrove of California; Mrs. Clarence Prager, Mrs. Roy Davenport and Mrs. Harvey Davies. During the social hour dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Edwin Middendorf will host the next meeting to be held at Hamilton's.

The shaggy look in fun-furs is taking off this year in coats for campus and town wear. Sportowne's wrap coat (left) in a new long-haired fabric, Borgaya, is of soft Orlon and modacrylic pile. It's worked in the round with notched collar, slash pockets and a leather string tie belt. Amusing for campus or country is the swinging, shaggy coat (right) by Russel Taylor's Young Suburbans. Borgala is the fabric. Belt is half-tie. Collar is wide and rounded.

Health Bureau Links Poisoning To Pet Turtles

The Morgan County Health Department has reported that recent studies by health personnel throughout the country have linked pet baby turtles with salmonella infections. "This is an infection that we usually think of in connection with contaminated food," stated Dr. Rosario F. Sison, County Health Director. Now Illinois is one of the states in which these salmonella contaminated turtles have been found.

Thousands of baby turtles are sold each day in this country, and they are frequently infected or contaminated with salmonella. Turtles are popular as pets for children because they can be kept in a small container, make no noise, will not bite, require little food and are not barred from large apartment buildings. They are popular as a classroom pet in the elementary grades.

Thus, they are most frequently handled by children, who, as a group, are not careful in their sanitary habits. They are more susceptible to salmonellosis than adults and their infections are more severe. Many require hospitalization and some repeated periods of hospitalization. It is poorly reported, unless hospitalization is required, or large numbers of people are involved in an outbreak, therefore the incidence can only be estimated. Children, especially those under one year of age, and older adults with pre-existing intestinal disorders are most likely to be seriously affected by salmonellosis.

In the reported studies, salmonella was found on the turtle or in the water in the turtle dish. In each case, one of the following means of spread was involved: children in the "hands to mouth" stage had handled the turtle; turtle water had been dumped in the kitchen sink, or the turtles had been placed in dishes later used for food.

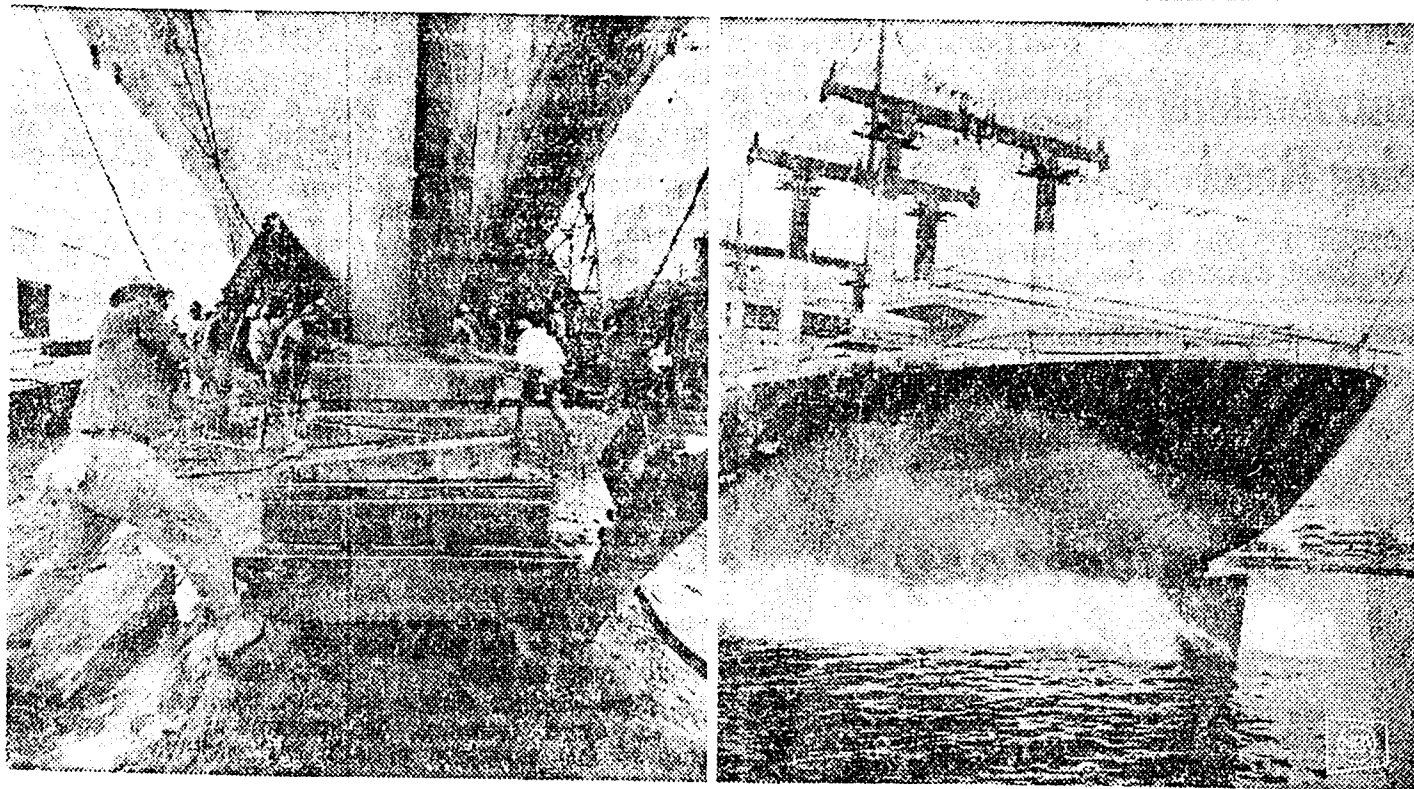

Leslie P. Williams, Jr., D.V.M., and Harry L. Helsdon, who conducted the study for the Minnesota Department of Health, suggest the following control measures should be recommended to persons possessing pet turtles. Both the Morgan County Health Department and the Illinois Department of Public Health concur with these recommendations.

1. Children should not be allowed to handle turtles unless they are responsible enough to wash their hands following this contact.
2. Turtle water should not be discharged into the kitchen sink or allowed to contaminate the food preparation area.
3. A special container should be designated as the turtle dish and should be used for nothing else.
4. Only one person who is careful to wash his hands should care for the turtle.
5. Other household pets should be prevented from drinking water from the turtle dish. These measures should be advocated until such time as turtles are shown to be free of salmonella.

Some rats seem to have an innate or inherited fear of the smell of cats. Other rats lack this fear but have an inherited fear of the sight of snakes. Biologists speculate that similar innate fears may exist in human beings.

Menard CROP Contributions Being Received

PETERSBURG—The Menard County CROP chairman, Rev.

Robert Pitsch, reports that grain donations for the program are still being received at area elevators. Contributions may be made upon delivery of grain by telling elevator operators the amount to be designated for CROP.

Participating in the Menard CROP program are the Petersburg, Athens, Sweetwater, Culver, Oakford, Atterberry, Greenview, Curtis and Tallula elevators.

Cash donations are being sent to Elmer Brunen, treasurer of the Menard County CROP Fund. Contributions are used to meet the more urgent needs of persons in other lands afflicted with overwhelming poverty and in cases of national disaster, according to Rev. Pitsch.

Night Driving Tips Offered

The Morgan County Health Department recently received the following recommendations from the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness:

1. Because eye problems are exaggerated after dark and people are urged to use extra care when driving at night.
2. Sight distance shrinks as driving speed increases. Be alert to this especially when driving at night.
3. You see less at night than in the day and this fact should be remembered when driving at night. Remember, all other drivers see less also.
4. Drivers should be aware of the fact that their eyes play tricks on them at night and they see objects they expect to see much farther away than unexpected ones. For safety, drive more slowly at night.
5. A driver can see and identify objects 80 feet farther away when driving at 20 miles per hour than he can when driving at 60 miles per hour. Remember this when driving at night and decrease your speed at least 10 miles per hour.

"GALLOPING GERTIE'S" 25TH ANNIVERSARY

She Left Rich Legacy

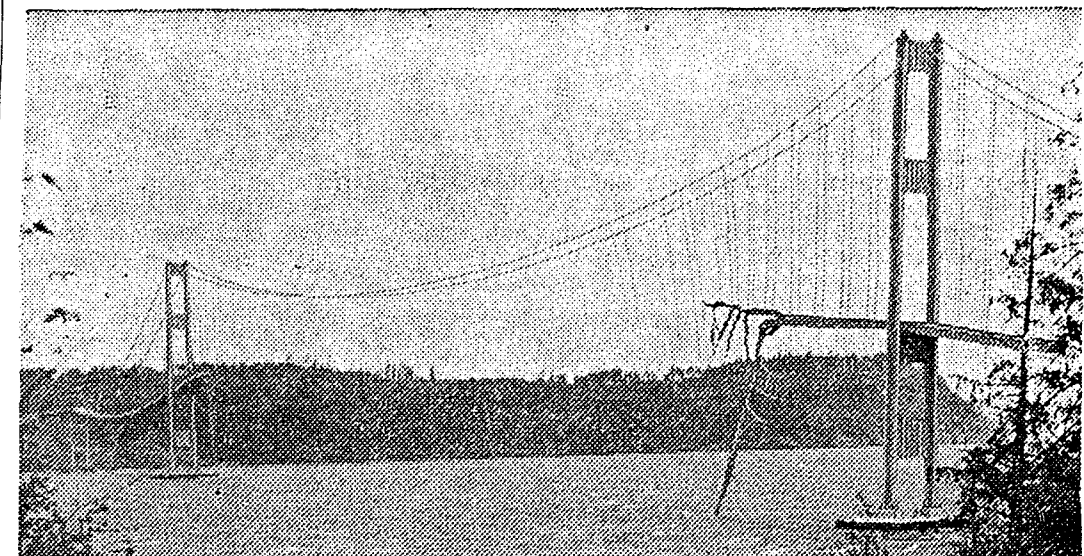

"Galloping Gertie," then the world's fourth longest suspension bridge, was so-called because it was built to—and did—"ride" the strong winds of Puget Sound, which she spanned at Tacoma, Wash. She rode well as long as the wind was steady. But on Nov. 7, 1940, it came up in accelerating gusts. When one hit twisting, shuddering Gertie at 42 m.p.h., she convulsed, broke apart and fell 190 feet into the Sound. But the disaster was a blessing in disguise. Out of the intensive search for the "why" and "how" of the four-month-old span's incredible collapse came a flood of new engineering technology and better materials that has enabled bridge builders to erect longer, lighter, stronger bridges all over the world.

"Galloping Gertie" under pressure of high-velocity wind gusts preceding collapse. Note roadbed twisting at left.

The 2,800-foot $6.4 million Tacoma Narrows Bridge, affectionately known as "Galloping Gertie" starts to break up under 42 m.p.h. wind.

Only the two main towers and sections of the approaches to "Galloping Gertie" remained after the span plunged 190 feet into Puget Sound. Happily, no lives were lost in the disaster. Bridge was rebuilt, opened to traffic October 14, 1950, and now serves as a laboratory for bridge designers throughout the world.

Manchester Park Shelter To Be Reality In 1966

MANCHESTER — According to a report made recently by members of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association, the proposed shelter will become a reality in 1966. The shelter, to be constructed in the local park, will be used for picnics and civic gatherings.

The Manchester Picnic committee, headed by Chester Day met Thursday evening and finished an accounting of the 1965 picnic. J. Russell Heaton, treasurer, reported final net profits amounted to $1,952.67, which was 545.09 more than last year. Gross receipts totaled $4,421.85 and total expense was $2,469.18.

The treasurer also reported a balance of $127.10 in the fund reserved from the 1964 picnic for the purchase of new equipment after the purchase of six dozen trays costing $42.48.

In conformity with an agreement among the five sponsors of the 1965 picnic, the two churches, two cemetery associations and the American Legion, the treasurer was directed to turn the entire net proceeds over to the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association which was organized this year to receive funds and build a shelter in the park for the use of the public in holding picnics and other civic activities.

Immediately following the meeting of the picnic committee, the General Committee of the Manchester Public Park Shelter Fund Association of which Chester Day and J. Russell Heaton are also Chairman and Treasurer respectively, held its meeting. The Treasurer reported receipts of $748.15 from cash donations, $1,500.00 from sale of lots and $1,952.67 from the 1965 picnic, a total of $4,200.82 on hand.

It was decided not to commence construction until sometime next year when it would be possible to secure voluntary labor but to start construction early enough to have the shelter ready for next year's picnic. In the meantime the committee

Community Health Week In Progress

Science today is writing one of the great chapters of history. Scientific discoveries and follow-through have catapulted us into an age of incredible progress where that which seemed impossible three or four decades ago now is frequently brought to realization.

Members of the Morgan County Medical Society are joining with other societies throughout the United States in the observance of National Community Health Week, November 7 through 14.

The most startling advances are occurring in medical science. Not even space science is progressing faster than medical science. It can be truly said that we are living in the golden age of medicine.

Within the past quarter of a century more advances have been made in medicine than in all previous centuries. And continuing advances are being made at an ever-accelerating pace.

Many Diseases Overcome
Medicine has found ways to overcome and soon may even eradicate many of yesterday's dreaded diseases—smallpox, polio and diphtheria, for instance. It has made great inroads against many other once-common killers—pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis and rheumatic fever—to name but a few.

In the pharmaceutical laboratory new drugs have been produced which perform an increasing number of useful tasks. At least 75 per cent of them were unknown ten years ago.

Today medicine is searching for ways to conquer arteriosclerosis, cancer, birth defects, metabolic diseases and many other health enemies.

And there are exciting new vistas of medicine. Modern surgery, with its intricate heart-lung machines and other imaginative new tools, has made it possible to perform life-saving surgery, to replace or repair damaged blood vessels and even to successfully transplant limbs, kidneys and other vital organs in man.

Diseases Are Curbed
Equally significant are new medical developments which have made it possible for physicians to bring diabetes, hypertension, mental illness, salt and gland imbalances and many other diseases under control, thus enabling victims of these diseases to lead nearly normal lives.

As a direct result of this vast array of medical progress, the life span of Americans has been greatly enlarged. The average life expectancy for the child born today is 69.9 years. In 1937 it was only 60 years, and in 1900 but 47 years. Reduction in mortality between 1935 and 1965 accounted for a contribution of $10,400,000,000 to the gross national product.

2 Dead, Sheriff Injured

HAVANA, Ill. (AP) — A Havana man was killed in a collision with a speeding police car driven by Sheriff Melvin Trimpe of Mason County Friday night, as Trimpe sped toward the scene of another accident which killed a teen-age girl.

Clifton Lynch, 51, was thrown 83 feet from his car at the Havana intersection of South Promenade and Dearborn St. He died shortly afterward in Mason District hospital. Sheriff Trimpe was in good condition at the same hospital.

Janice Brass, 16, of Petersburg, Menard County, was the victim of the accident Trimpe was to have investigated. Three other 16-year-olds were in the car with her when it veered off an embankment on Illinois 97 near Kibbourne. Terry Dowell of Oakford and Karlene Knoles of Petersburg were in fair condition. The driver, Shirley Jansen, was not hospitalized.

Sheriff Trimpe's car, siren wailing and red light flashing, collided with the Lynch car and knocked it into a filling station, where it struck a parked vehicle.

Winchester High School Observes Education Week

By Naomi Lawson
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone 742-3490)

WINCHESTER — Once again the schools of Winchester will be in the spotlight as parents visit their children's classrooms during American Education Week, which is from November 7 to November 13.

Open House will be held Tuesday, November 9, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Winchester High School. A special committee, headed by Mrs. Loretta Glossop, Assistant Principal, has been appointed to plan the activities at local High School.

Sponsored annually by the National Education Association, The American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the U.S. Office of Education, American Education Week reminds each citizen that good schools are, to a very high degree, his own responsibility.

This year, the theme for the week's activities is "Invest in Learning," and 32 million parents across the country are expected to visit their school to check their investment.

Parents of students and other members of the community are urged to attend. Refreshments will be prepared by students in the Family Living classes under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Mary Waters. The Evening Educational Department of the Senior Women's Club will meet Wednesday, November 10, at 6:15 p.m. at the Slagle ranch Inn.

Mrs. Charles Craver will give the program, "F. Scott Fitzgerald."

Mrs. T. J. Dugan and Mrs. Frank Cowick are in charge of arrangements. Reservations are to be called to Mrs. Earle Black, Mrs. Carl Woodcock or Mrs. Allen McCullough, Sr.

Legion Plans Suppers
The Julian Wells American Legion Post, No. 412, met Wednesday evening at the American Legion Home in Winchester. A fish and chicken supper preceded the meeting.

Two suppers were announced for the month of November. The first on November 10 will be given for Veterans from the Jacksonville State Hospital. The second supper will be served on November 17 and will be a free meal for all those who helped with the annual Burgoon picnic last summer.

The membership chairman, George Lindsay, reported that the Post now has 146 members.

WCS November Meeting
The WCS of the First Methodist church in Winchester met Thursday afternoon at Sibert Hall.

The president, Miss Frieda Balke, opened the meeting with the Prayer for the Week of Prayer and Self Denial.

Mrs. Harry Montgomery discussed the offering taken at the meeting which would in part go to Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Dale Sanner told how some of the offering would be used for medical supplies overseas.

Woman Injured Early Saturday East Of City

A Jacksonville young woman sustained hip and knee injuries in a one-car accident on the Old State Road near Route 123 about 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Peggy J. Phalen, 19, of 1339 Goltra was rushed to Holy Cross hospital by ambulance shortly after the accident. Miss Phalen was listed in good condition late Saturday.

Investigating state police said Miss Phalen was the driver of a car that skidded out of control, ran off the south side of the road and turned over in a ditch.

Forty feet of fence at the James Doolin farm was knocked down by the eastbound auto. The Phalen auto, a 1965 model, was demolished in the accident.

Police said the road was very slick which was listed as the cause of the crash.

Defendant Pays For Striking Beardstown Cop

BEARDSTOWN — Striking a police officer in Beardstown is an expensive act. It cost Gary Brown $150 and costs when he appeared in the Lincoln Courtroom here Friday and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Associate Circuit Court Judge Fred W. Reither assessed the fine and delivered a stern lecture into the bargain.

Brown, who is employed by a local business firm and has no previous police record, told the judge he couldn't really explain his action.

Police were called to a local home Oct. 25 at the bequest of Brown's wife, and Brown answered the door when Police Officer Raymond Taylor knocked. Taylor said he was struck twice and Brown didn't deny the charge.

Other matters also were disposed of in the regular Friday court session here.

Judge Reither conducts court sessions throughout the week in the county courthouse at Virginia, but holds special sessions in the newly remodeled courtroom here. The county historical society cooperated in restoring the courtroom to the condition in which it was utilized by Lincoln.

More Burglaries
Burglaries continue here, the latest having occurred at the Smitty Cut and Cover shop Thursday night.

A tool box containing tools valued at $250 was taken and about $10 in cash at Smitty's.

The Manny Arenz residence, 407 E. 7th and the Claude Anderson home, 509 Monroe were also burglarized. Electric drills and a power saw were included in the loot at the Arenz home, and a portable gas heater was stolen from the Anderson home.

Pike Farmer Saves Four From Flaming Car, Driver Dies

The heroic effort of a Summer Hill farmer was credited with saving the lives of four Pike county youths early Saturday morning after their speeding car careened off the highway, struck a concrete abutment 381 feet away and burst into flames. The teenage driver died in the flaming inferno.

A car carrying five Pike county teenagers crashed a short distance from the Henry Yokem farm at Summer Hill on U.S. 54, 8 miles southeast of Pittsfield early Saturday. Yokem ran to the auto and pulled four of the youths from the car but was unable to free the driver from the demolished auto.

The dead youth was identified by Pike County Coroner Warren Lord as 17-year-old Don Tedrow of Griggsville.

The four survivors were rushed to Illini Community hospital at Pittsfield where they were admitted suffering injuries received in the accident.

Three of the four youths were listed in critical condition late Saturday evening: John Miller, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Miller; John Simpkins, 17, raised in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bings, both of Griggsville; and Francis Clark, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clark of Pittsfield. The fourth youth, Mike Cawthorn, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cawthorn of Griggsville was listed in satisfactory condition.

The Pittsfield Fire Department was called to the accident scene to extinguish the burning car.

Pike Coroner Warren Lord said he would conduct an inquest into the Tedrow death Tuesday.

Donald Wayne Tedrow, a lifetime resident of Griggsville was born Nov. 1, 1948, a son of Gerald Wayne and Ayre Jane Lloyd Tedrow. He attended Griggsville schools and was a senior at the time of his death. He was a member of the Church of the Nazarene in Griggsville, the FFA chapter, the Hoof and Horn 4-H Club, and the Varsity club at the high school.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two brothers, Myron E. and Samuel, both at home and a sister, Ruth Leola of Quincy.

The body was removed to the Skinner Funeral Home in Griggsville.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today, at the Church of the Nazarene with Rev. Arnold Roland officiating. Interment will be made in Griggsville cemetery.

and you know this cannot keep up.

Most of the wartime damage has been repaired. Their backlog for domestic demand is getting caught up. Therefore, the Japanese people simply cannot absorb all this industrial output. Industry here has to pause for a while to let their domestic and export markets catch up. Japan is having a problem with its balance of payments. But their export activity has been doing quite well. We should remember that after World War II, most of the money, that is, the capital funds, were concentrated in the banks. Today, after these recovery years, industry is running on only 21 per cent equity capital and the rest is borrowed.

This slowdown worries businessmen, bankers, and government. The people in Tokyo, however, have reduced their buying only a little. They look healthy, well fed, well dressed, and the kids you see are friendly. What we are trying to do in this visit is to build and consolidate our markets for agriculture.

Japan is America's second largest customer. We sell $4 billion in U.S. goods to Japan annually; and Japan is our largest agricultural customer, purchasing $800 million in farm products last year. The bulk of these exports are in soybeans, wheat, and feed grains.

Soybeans are the big volume builder and Illinois has been a steady source. For example, I learned today about a Japanese food product, soy curd. More than two-thirds of the soybeans required to supply this product for the Greater Tokyo area come from Central Illinois.

There is a good reason why Harasoy and Hawkeye soybean varieties accounted for 54 per cent of our Illinois production. Their protein quality and high oil content make them superior to the varieties produced in other countries.

Now, for wheat — Japan is buying an increased volume of hard wheat for bread flour and western white wheat from the state of Washington. They use this for their pastry and biscuit needs. I attended Rotary luncheon today and, of all things, I had a generous plate of spaghetti made from this western white wheat. The rolls we had were every bit as good as you would get in the Palmer House in Chicago.

Now, about feed grains — Japan is a growing customer for feed grains. Last night we had a Mongolian barbecue comprised of Kobe beef, native pork, and broiler-type chicken. These are the products of their growing livestock industry, and Illinois corn and western milo are being used for this purpose.

Yesterday, we had an informal session with U. S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer. Our trade mission is here in Japan because this country is the seventh largest country in the world in gross national product and is growing rapidly in economic power. The indications are, according to Ambassador Reischauer, that Japan will pass us France, West Germany, and Communist China in this economic race. That is a very good reason why we are here as 60 businessmen, mostly heads of small businesses.

Japan, at the present time, is going through what the ambassador describes as a depression mood. That is, it is more a mood than a reality. It is a slowdown or a recession. Industry here has had a tremendous buildup in its inventory. The country has been growing economically at an annual rate of 10 per cent for almost ten years.

The pork production plant will be located on 130 acres of ground and 215,000 square feet of the site will be under roof. This will include a two-story air conditioned office building as well as pre-stressed cement panel buildings for other uses.

Also located near the site will be a $500,000 lagoon type sewage disposal plant to be built by the city connecting with an outfall sewer leading to the local pumping plant and thence to the river.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal: MUNIFICENT GIFT — Dr. McFarland, of the Insane Hospital, has generously contributed to the President of the Town Council, for the use of the poor of this city, THREE HUNDRED BUSHELS OF POTATOES. This is characteristic of the Doctor's known benevolence, and we trust his example may be followed by others who are able to give, and thus place the poor of our city out of the reach of want during the coming winter. Blessed are they that give.

MR. PVT. JENKINS, well known by our citizens as for many years the gentlemanly and efficient prescriptionist in the Drug Store of Mr. Hockenbush, is now employed by Campbell, Fisher & Hurst, in their new drug store on the east side of the square. Mr. Jenkins' old friends will no doubt be glad to see him at his old stand.

THE ELECTION — At this moment we have not the official vote of Morgan County, which we hoped to get before going to press, but unofficial returns make it certain that Capt. Whitlock is elected Judge of the County Court over S. S. Duncan, by about thirty majority, while the balance of the Democratic ticket is elected by majorities ranging from ten to thirty.

GLORY ENOUGH — While Morgan County lags behind, we are surrounded by Union victories. Scott, Sangamon, old Adams, Menard, Logan, even Peoria, Counties give us rousing Union triumphs. This is glory enough for one day.

By the Jacksonville Sentinel: THE ELECTION passed off very quietly and with little disturbance. Many Democrats failed to appear at the polls, and the results were mixed: two radical Republican candidates won by majorities of 42 and 38 respectively; the Democrats won the balance of the ticket with majorities ranging from 6 to 40. Only 4,194 votes were cast.

In Chicago the vote was also very light, with a Republican majority of 2,763.

Old Greene, true to her former teachings, has gone Democratic by about six hundred majority. The democracy have also, for a wonder, carried Clinton, Pike, Washington, Macoupin, Morgan, Schuyler, Alexander and Union counties. Jersey went Democratic by a majority of three hundred and fifty-one.

Editor Bailey called the vote light, but we would term it heavy today — 75% of those eligible to vote. This election, from top to bottom, was the closest in Morgan county history. The Republican candidates for sheriff and county clerk later contested the election. The latter gave up in about four months, paid court costs which already amounted to $300, and was appointed Jacksonville postmaster by President Johnson. The defeated candidate for sheriff, who was one of the best soldiers Morgan county sent to the Civil War, pressed his contest, lost, appealed to circuit court, lost again, and the costs gobbled up his fine farm located south of Alexander, a farm that maybe you could buy today for $1,000 per acre — and maybe you couldn't.

ANOTHER PROBABLE HOMICIDE — On Wednesday an altercation occurred on the West side of the square between Daniel McLamara and Jno. Daulton, when Daulton struck McLamara three times on the head with a stick of cord wood, crushing the skull and laying him out lifeless. On receiving medical care pulsation returned and he has lingered in an unconscious state up to this writing, but the physicians say he cannot live. Daulton was locked up in jail immediately to prevent disturbance on the part of our citizens, who were highly incensed.

From the Carrollton Gazette: Wm. Bacon, so long the popular conductor on our railroad, has been made general agent, and has his office in Jacksonville, Mr. O. Leath is the conductor.

The construction train with a large lot of new hands arrived at this place on Wednesday night last, with the view of resuming work on the railroad between this point and Jerseyville. We are also informed that the track-laying coming north was completed to Jerseyville on Tuesday last. This leaves a little less than fourteen miles of track to be put down in order to complete the work.

New settlers are coming in daily to swell the population of Carrollton, new business is springing up on all sides, and everything bespeaks a prosperous future.

Old Stuyvesant Pear Tree

This ancient tree, landmark of New York, stands on the corner of Thirteenth-st. and Third avenue, and is still in a flourishing condition, this year having borne fruit. It was planted by Peter Stuyvesant, Governor of New Amsterdam, exactly 250 years ago, and stood in front of the porch of his house, and under its shade the one-legged hero sat, and smoked his pipe and quaffed his lager. The tree has been protected from ruthless hands by an iron railing, and bids fair yet for another hundred years of life. — Frank Leslie's Newspaper, Nov. 1865.

November, 1865
The cholera sometimes rages in the winter season. In 1830 it raged fearfully at St. Petersburg, Russia, during the whole winter. Cleanliness is one of the best preventives of the disease, and ought to be observed with scrupulous care by local authorities and private persons.

There are 84 religious orders in Italy, of which 80 are composed of property, and four are composed of begging friars or nuns. Of the total of 45,829 friars and nuns, there are about 20,000 who beg.

The anniversary of the triumphant entry of the Emperor Turbide into the City of Mexico, on Saturday, Sept. 30, 1821, was celebrated with great pomp in that city. A monument to perpetuate the memory of Turbide is about to be placed in the cathedral.

A novel fashion in stockings is announced. It is to wear one stocking of one color, and one of another color. Paris has sent forth this ridiculous device.

DOMESTIC

November, 1865
A story, illustrating the cost of amateur farming, is told of a retired merchant, who had a farm on Long Island, with all the modern inventions, and fancy stock of all kinds. After showing a friend over the premises one day, he invited him into the house, and said: "You have seen the best farm in the State; now sit down and take something. I have milk and champagne. Take your choice — they cost the same."

The 15th of November — first anniversary of the day on which General Sherman began his march to the sea — will be celebrated in Chicago, by a Union Convention of officers from the army which accompanied him. Gen. John A. Logan is to pronounce an oration on the occasion.

In the competitive declamation examination at Harvard College, a few days since, the first prize was won by a student who lost an arm while serving as captain in the rebel army, and the second by a young negro, the first undergraduate of that race who has been admitted into the University.

The teachers of freedmen in Mississippi, many of whom were sent out by Northern societies, are reported as leaving their schools, upon the withdrawal of the troops — deeming it unsafe to remain behind.

A colored man named Charles Syphax, having a considerable quantity of white blood in his veins, is a man of intelligence and excellent character, and is messenger to Secretary Harlan. It also happens that this colored man is a half-brother to Mrs. General Robert E. Lee, and a grand-son of George Washington Parks Curtis, who was a step-son of George Washington! That is quite a pedigree, is it not?

A correspondent of the Jacksonville HERALD, writing from Clay County, Florida, says many of the Democrats of that county have come out in favor of negro suffrage, in order to get ahead of the Republicans and secure the colored vote.

A party of young men on Monday evening last, while digging ginseng roots north of Vincennes, Indiana, discovered an old leather sack containing $7,000 in gold and $300 in silver. It is supposed to have been concealed there by an old man named Jones, who was sentenced to the Penitentiary some forty-two years ago for robbery. — Frank Leslie's Newspaper

Americans who grasp the need for better control over the sale and possession of firearms owe a big debt of gratitude to Senator Dodd. His persistent espousal of his suggested amendment to the Federal Firearms Act may eventually prod his colleagues into passage of this measure.

The general lack of enthusiasm for the bill, which proposes no more than a reasonable curb on the traffic in firearms, can be explained in large part by the concerted opposition to which Senator Dodd referred thus the other day on the floor of the Senate: "There has been opposition to this legislation, and by that I mean an intensive, well financed, and powerful lobby working night and day to see that it is never adopted. This lobby has distorted the facts, confused the issue, in some cases lied outright to attain its end, the defeat of reasonable firearms legislation."

Such a lobby exerts strong pressure on Congress. But, as Senator Dodd noted, there also is responsible support for his bill — from, for example, the American Bar Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The Senate should listen more attentively to such groups' sound arguments in favor of the proposed amendment, and less to the firearms lobby pushing its selfish interests.

For Whalers, It's No Tomorrow

Few people have ever seen a blue whale, except in pictures. It is extremely likely that no one ever will again, including those who hunt them for their valuable oil, meat and numerous other products.

The 100-foot blue whale, the largest animal known to have existed, has been virtually exterminated, the victim of the illogical rapacity of men.

Even now, when the blue whale is regarded as commercially extinct, as is the smaller humpback whale, the International Whaling Commission has found it impossible to get its 14 member nations to agree on a prohibition against hunting them to give what few remain a chance to reproduce themselves.

Because of the shortsighted greediness and cutthroat competition of four whaling countries—Russia, Japan, Norway and the Netherlands—the same fate threatens other species, such as the fin and sei whale.

The industry continues to insist on catch quotas well above the levels which scientists warn are necessary to allow the whale populations to recover.

The quotas are also well above what the hunters have actually been able to take, despite an array of modern equipment like helicopters, sonar, explosive harpoons and factory ships that can process an entire whale in half an hour.

Each year the quotas are lowered; each year the catch fails to come up to it.

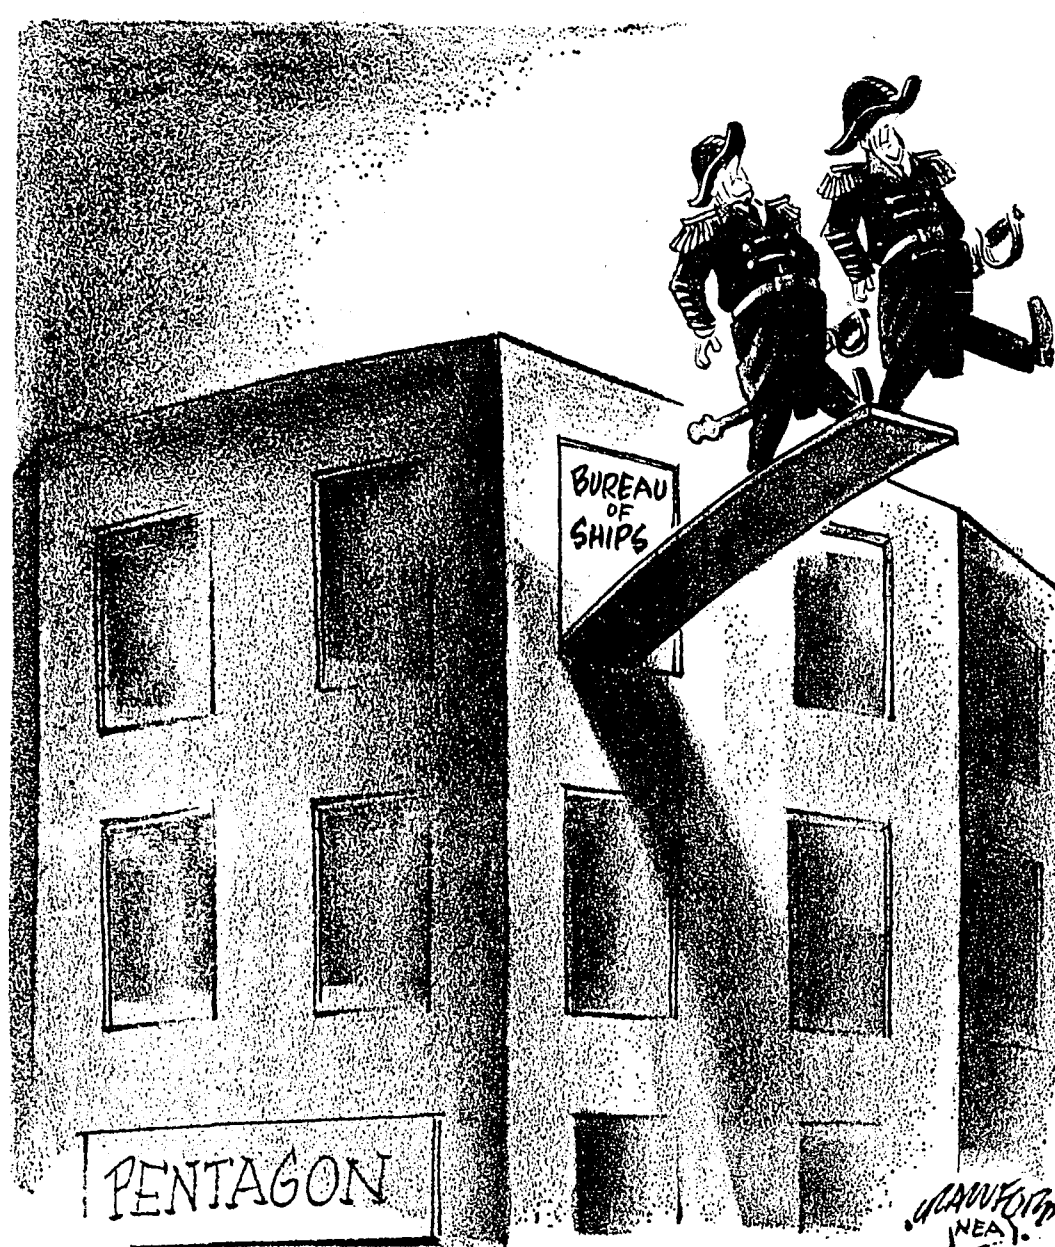

According to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, "only the most drastic action can save the whaling industry from complete collapse within a few years."

Such action does not appear imminent. Says a spokesman for the International Whaling Commission: "If the weather (this year) is good for killing, the scramble for the biggest profits will be reminiscent of the golden days of the robber barons."

It is said that on a sustained yield basis, this renewable natural resource would be worth some $200 million each year at current prices.

Yet here is an industry that is deliberately killing itself out of business, not to mention ridding the earth of some of the most magnificent creatures that have ever lived.

Not a single Republican candidate, all good men and true, came close to election Tuesday. This is certainly a poor showing for the Grand Old Party.

This Mincemeat Pie Saves Time

VANILLA MINCEMEAT PIE is a sweet novelty.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
As much as you may love the soft glow of Aunt Katherine's pewter candlesticks or the fine craftsmanship which went into the antique pie server, you would probably welcome a change of pace from the traditional hard work of Thanksgiving Day this year.

If so, try a no-bake vanilla cream pie combined with mincemeat. It is rich tasting, has an interesting texture, yet is light enough to provide a perfect ending to the plentiful feast. And it requires very little preparation.

The second no-bake recipe is for a creamy pumpkin pie, a modern, convenient version of the pumpkin pie that is one of our traditional Thanksgiving desserts.

Vanilla Mincemeat Pie
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 package (3 1/2 oz.) vanilla instant pudding
3/4 cup milk

3/4 cup moist mincemeat
1 baked 8-inch pie shell, cooled

Prepare topping mix as directed on package. Then prepare pudding mix as directed on package, using 3/4-cup milk. Measure 1 cup prepared whipped topping and blend into pudding along with mincemeat. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with remaining prepared whipped topping.

Creamy Pumpkin Pie
1 package vanilla whipped dessert mix
3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup COLD milk
1/4 cup COLD water
1 baked 8-inch pie shell, cooled

Combine dessert mix, sugar and pumpkin pie spice. Blend in pumpkin, milk and water. Whip at high speed of electric mixer 3 minutes. Pour into crust. Chill 3 hours or more. Garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We are developing in the United States a professional group of demonstrators and protesters.

The other day, when some of us were sitting and talking at a neighbor's house in Fairfax County, Va., a young man dropped by who lives in a nearby subdivision. He's a recent high school graduate.

He said he'd been up in New York to visit Greenwich Village. He was enthralled by the beatniks and became one. Then he'd dropped over to another part of the city to take part in a protest put on by a left-wing group demonstrating against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Washington Confused 'Aginnners' Putty In Protest Molders' Hands

He had gone out a day or so later with a right-wing group in a protest demonstration, urging that Earl Warren, chief justice of the Supreme Court, be impeached for his "liberal" views.

He had been looking for a civil rights protest to join in—he could demonstrate in favor of Negro rights—but apparently none was scheduled for the time he was there.

He said he was "lost" before he went to New York. But he had "found" himself with these way-out groups.

One minute this young man was talking about the civil rights of Negroes. The next minute he was talking about how they should be "kept in their place." His main objection to Viet Nam was that he might be

Hail the 'Sane Toys'

By Mrs. Mariel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
"This toy doesn't kill. It does not scream or explode. It does not conquer, destroy or turn into a vampire. It is a toy train that just, toots around and around."

With ads like this announcing its new "Sane Toys for Healthy Kids" policy for toy production, the Lionel Toy Corp. is taking the first step toward disarming the toy shelves of American children of their weapon and monster-shooting arsenals.

Though it's not my custom to name business firms in this space, this toy firm's decision will so rejoice parents that I make an exception to inform as many as I can about it.

If our children have needed the killing, exploding, screaming, destroying toys, the need is past. There's now enough real killing, real exploding, real destruction proliferating in the grown-up world to feed that blood lust which dwells, we are told, in the depths of childhood's psyche.

In books like "High Wind in Jamaica" and "Lord of the Flies," fine and sensitive novelists insist that boys and girls are intrinsically unfeeling savages who revert into unspeakable barbarism the moment adult control is removed. If this is true—and I don't know whether it is—we are certainly reckless to buy them any more of these murdering and monstrous toys which encourage their alleged blood lust to release itself in violence.

If the children must feel impulses to kill, explode and conquer, toys no longer have to help them indulge these impulses. They can indulge them vicariously by watching television's reports of the tortured faces of the Vietnamese mothers holding bleeding babies in their arms. If they want to hear screams, television also makes those available by showing us screaming rioting people who come in all sizes and colors.

The Lionel people have sensed, I think, that too much violence ends by making children apathetic. I hope it crashes in on its release of the violence market to the manufacturers of the real guns, the real bombs, the real missiles and other electronic monsters. The children's weapon industry just can't compete with the actual lovely destruction now being wrought by the boom-boom toys so popular with their elders.

They are the confused. Men with axes to grind scoop them up to protest whatever the organizers want protested.

They're like the hired guns of the Old West, except that they work for kicks.

In a very real sense these people are more dangerous even than Communists. There aren't many Communists in this country. They can be identified and watched. These confused "aginnners" muddy the waters.

The confusion extends among members of the teachers who have backed teach-ins. Few of the experts on Asia, Viet Nam, communism or political science have appeared as sponsors of the teach-ins.

Studies indicate that of the 1,268 academicians listed as sponsors of the national teach-in in Washington, 172 were psychologists, 167 scientists and engineers, 107 sociologists, 153 professors of English or language.

Of the 15,000 political scientists teaching in American universities, only 65 were listed as sponsors of the national teach-in committee. Most of these were reported as "completely unknown juniors."

In some underdeveloped countries, protests by groups no better informed have caused the fall of governments.

There is a danger, in any country, that credence will be given to marchers who capture publicity, rather than to the great majority who quietly go about their work, and to the thousands who, without fanfare, volunteer for military service.

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Contrasting ideas cried out from the daily paper. One was the news release from the Defense Department, indicating that in Viet Nam there had been a battle and the American losses were light. The other was a local story, headed with two pictures and bringing the news that two men from our area had died.

We know what the tacticians mean when they talk of "light losses." They state that our side lost fewer than might have been lost; or fewer than the enemy. But, to the families of those two men, what is a "light loss?"

When we speak of "limited warfare," what does this mean to the man who is caught in the battle?

It is easy to excuse these semantic problems. Yet it is just this tendency to accept such words and ideas, that indicates a kind of erosion in our thinking and in our spiritual integrity.

Why take a stand against communism unless we defend each man's paramount worth in our thinking at home and in our public statements? Why propose to stand against these military aggressors unless we are willing to accept the principle that the individual is redeemable? To tolerate even the words which depersonalize the human being is to illustrate our dilemma.

Don Cameron Allen has stated, "Composite man, cross-section man, organization man, status seeking man are not here. It is still one of the merits of the humanities that they see man with all his virtues and weaknesses, including his first, middle and last names." That's a modern statement of the insistence of Jesus that even the fall of sparrow is known.

So our problem is more than a semantic confusion. Churches, communities and cities can reflect their belief concerning mankind in their words and acts. When an affluent city can tolerate civic immoralities, neighborhood blights or slum conditions, it is talking about "light losses." When we applaud our shiny new automobiles and ignore our antiquated facilities we engage in double-think. It's like saying losses are "light."

The real inching steps off human progress from the cave to this present moment have come at the moment when the dignity of the human being is really known and understood. From the old cry of Cain's conscience, "Am I my brother's keeper?" to the positive call of Jesus to men to love one another is the pilgrimage we must understand. We can't afford to tolerate any erosion of this, even in daily conversation.

So I protest to the Defense Department concerning "light losses." By the same token let every churchman search his own soul concerning his attitudes and acts, especially when he tries to excuse his tackling of these tough issues. John Donne said it long ago, "Each man's death diminishes me." No loss is a light one!

States Urged To Consider Adoption of An Income Tax

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — At a recent meeting here, an organization of public officials from all levels of government voted 14 to 4 to recommend that states now without their own income tax give "careful consideration" to adopting one.

The group was the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The four dissenters included just one governor, Democrat John Dempsey of Connecticut.

Even though the approved recommendation was watered down from an original which called for "favorable" rather than "careful" consideration, the vote was a significant move in the states' struggle to meet rising revenue needs.

Last year at about this time, Washington seemed fairly excited over the proposal of economist Walter Heller, then presidential economic adviser, to turn back to the states a proportion of federal tax collections. It got nowhere.

The commission's new recommendation revives an older idea—that the federal government and the several states should more fully share the tax base rather than U.S. collections.

The commission thinks this idea needs a real prod. So, this time without dissent, it voted also to recommend U.S. tax law amendments which would allow taxpayers to take 40 per cent of their state and local income tax payments as a credit against their federal income tax liability.

Under existing state-local income tax laws, it is figured that this optional credit plan might cost the federal government an added $700 million in fiscal 1967.

If the prod became a reality and all states thereupon enacted adequate yield income levies, it is estimated that the loss to the federal treasury would come to around $4.2 billion in fiscal 1968. This assumes that by then the states would be collecting $13 billion in annual personal income taxes instead of an estimated $4.8 billion if present policy continues.

Today a third of the 50 states have no such tax, and the list without the levy includes some of the nation's biggest and wealthiest—Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Another third of the states, while using an income tax, apply it at very low effective rates.

The federal government gets half its revenue from this source. By contrast, it accounts for just 15 per cent of state revenues and 8 per cent of combined state and local revenues. These levies probably come from about 20 million taxpayers in areas which exclude some of the country's highest income sections.

The extremely vocal enemies of the income tax very likely would say "well and good." But powerful arguments are being advanced for wider use of individual income taxes at the state level.

The big point is that this levy is the only one with any real growth potential, an element the states badly appear to need in their future tax plans.

State and local spending is not only rising faster than federal spending but is outstripping the gains in the nation's gross national product. The 135 per cent postwar hike in GNP has been over-matched in the same period by a 300 per cent increase in state-local general government outlays.

Members of the advisory intergovernmental group can foresee no let up in this disproportionate rise. Hence the overwhelming conclusion that many states will not long be able to continue their strained reliance upon property and sales taxes. There is wide belief these levies will have little future usefulness in meeting the expected upthrust of state-local expenditures.

It is argued, therefore, that the barnacle-encrusted debate in some states over the relative merits of sales vs. income taxes is now beside the point, that many states are in fact living on borrowed fiscal time and will desperately need every revenue source they can find in order to survive financially in the burdensome years ahead.

Dear Ann:

Saddled With "Spoiled Little Sister"

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7-year-old sister. Laura is spoiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it and she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to bawl—real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her. She's a young lady."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if

I last that long. Tell me what to do until then. —JIN MISERY
Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privileges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13-year-old girl with a 7-year-old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that their kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep every night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later, they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?" My own daughters call only when they want me to sit with their kids.

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in the bunch. Mine is. —HAD TO BE SHOWN

Dear Shown: Your son and Jeanette have beaten the odds and my hat is off to them.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please. —W. P.

Dear W. P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Editor:

Veterans' Day in November is considered a holiday in this state. It is a day on which we hold appropriate exercises in commemoration of the victories of our Armed Forces in all wars.

We are inclined to forget the observance of this day and leave it to patriotic organizations. It seems every year we show our appreciation less by continuing business as usual on this day.

Complete observance on this day seems a small price considering theirs.

Gollier's Running Paces Jacks' Edge

By BUFORD GREEN

Harry Gollier ran wild, Friday night, in leading the Jacksonville Crimsons to their third victory of the football season, an impressive 17-6 non-conference triumph over the Canton Little Giants.

Gollier, a junior fullback, chalked up his finest offensive game of the year. 'The Horse' legged the ball for 180 yards on 19 carries, scoring the two JHS touchdowns, one on an electrifying 66-yard scamper that broke the game wide open.

Jacksonville racked up its best rushing totals of the year in the game, snapping out of an offensive slump that left them scoreless in their last two outings before Friday night.

Gollier ground out 81 yards in the first half, sparking a JHS offense that had been dead up until midway in the second period. He personally led an 84-yard scoring drive, picking up 68 of those yards in eight tries.

The victory moves Jacksonville's season record to 3-4-1, and leaves them with a shot at gaining a 500 season with a win over Hannibal here next week. Canton drops to a 2-6 record on the campaign.

Besides his running, Gollier added another big boost to the JHS cause with his fine punting. He averaged 43.5 yards on four punts, his kicking dominating the first quarter.

Gollier got off a 59-yarder early in the quarter, putting Canton in a hole at their own one. Later in the period he got off a 36-yarder, again putting it out on the Canton one.

Canton made it into JHS ground only once in the opening quarter, as a result of a fumble recovery at the Crimsons 46. JHS played most of the opening 12 minutes in Canton territory, but was unable to pick up a first down.

Ground Offensive
The Jacksonville ground machine that netted an impressive total of 254 net yards gained for the night got started early in the second period.

The Crimsons took over on their own 16 and marched 64

yards in 18 plays to open the game's scoring. Gollier was the spark in the drive with his 64 yards, punching ten to 12 yards in five carries.

From the seven Gollier gained four to the three, and after Larry Angelo was stopped for no gain, Gollier punched over for the score with 4:47 left in the half. Roger Patterson split the uprights on the PAT at 10:00 for a 7-0 difference.

Canton got the ball on their own 19 with just over a minute and leaves them with a shot at starting their best offensive drive of the night. Fullback Mike Griffith broke loose for 35 yards to the Jacksonville 46 before Joe Grojean halted him.

After two passes fell incomplete, Griffith again broke through the JHS defense for a 30-yard pickup to the 16.

From there halfback Steve Berta went in untouched, after the entire JHS defense went for Griffith on a cross-buck that fooled everyone. The kick for the PAT was short, leaving JHS with a 7-6 margin with :28 to play in the half.

Field Goal Successful
Faced with a fourth and two situation at the Canton two, Jacksonville scored again on a perfect field goal by Patterson. The field goal did not seemingly help the Crimsons cause at the time, giving them a four-point advantage instead of one.

Roger Zulauf recovered a Canton fumble on the Jacksonville 34 to half a Canton threat that had the Crimsons in deep trouble.

Gollier broke the game wide open on the next play, breaking off right tackle and outrunning the secondary for a 66-yard TD gallop. Patterson again booted the extra point for a 17-6 JHS advantage with seven minutes to play.

The next Canton drive was again thwarted by a fumble, this time recovered by Larry Cook at the Canton 29.

A late Canton threat that picked up three first downs in a long march was finally stopped at the Jacksonville ten as the Crimsons defense held for four straight running plays.

Havana Breezes Past Tigers 28-0

HAVANA — The Havana Ducks scored one in each quarter here Friday night to notch a 28-0 Spoon River conference margin over Beardstown, handing the hapless Tigers their eighth-straight loss of the year.

Ken Beatty's one-yard dive in the opening quarter started the Ducks' scoring for the night, with Beatty passing to Bill Reiser for the PAT. Reiser passed 20 yards to Les Newton for the Havana score in the second stanza, with Chuck McNeil booting the point after.

Reiser hauled 30 yards to Delbert Davis in the third quarter, with Roy Alderson kicking the extra point. The Ducks closed out the night's scoring when Danny Ladd lunged over from one yard away. Alderson again connected for the PAT.

Beardstown threatened only twice in the game, getting to the 20 once and just inside the ten, stopped by an interception and a fumble respectively.

The win leaves Havana with a 2-6 mark on the year, 1-3 in the conference. Beardstown is now 0-8 and 0-4.

Score by quarters:
Havana 7 7 7 7-28

Wolves Keep Hopes Alive In 21-0 Edge

PIASA — Pleasant Hill kept its hopes for a share of the Illinois Valley conference title with a 21-0 IVC victory over Southwestern, here Friday evening.

The Wolves' defense dominated the game, holding Southwestern's offense at bay. The host Birds never got past the 35 of Pleasant Hill.

Spartans Stop Greenfield 7-0 In IVC Action

North Greene threatened twice in the opening 12 minutes, marching steadily to the Greenfield 17 before bogging down.

Five plays later Gib Keller passed 14 yards to Mike Gobin and the only score of the night. Keller booted the extra point.

Big League Bosses Have Risky Job

NEW YORK (AP) — The resignation of Al Lopez as field manager of the Chicago White Sox on Thursday points up the fact that big league baseball managing is more of a risk than a romp.

Lopez had been managing major league teams for 15 consecutive seasons, six in Cleveland and the last nine in Chicago. This was longer than any current pilot in either the National or American League.

The new leader is Walt Alston, who's directed the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles for the past 12 years. In fact, in point of service with one club, Alston held a three-year edge over Lopez.

There's a sharp drop to the runner-up. He's Gene Mauch, who has managed the Philadelphia Phillies the past six years. Then come Bill Rigney of the Angels, Los Angeles and California, five years, and Sam Mele, four seasons at the helm of the Minnesota Twins.

Bobby Bragan of Braves, Chuck Dressen of Detroit, Gil Hodges of Washington and Birdie Tebbetts, Cleveland, each has spent three years with his current team while Hank Bauer has managed Baltimore for two seasons.

Those with only a single year of service with their present clubs are Herman Franks of San Francisco, Luman Harris of Houston, Red Schoendienst of St. Louis, Harry Walker of Pittsburgh, Johnny Keane of the New York Yankees, Haywood Sullivan of Kansas City and Billy Herman of Boston.

Since the close of last season, Don Heffner has replaced Dick Sisler at Cincinnati while Leo Durocher was named manager of the Chicago Cubs.

No replacement has been named for Lopez nor for Casey Stengel, who retired after 25 years as a big league pilot, including the last four with the New York Mets.

Alston, 53 years old, has led the Dodgers to five National League pennants and four world championships. He's brought them home second three times and third, fourth, sixth and seventh once each.

MT. STERLING — Brown County and Pittsfield fought to a 6-6 Midwest conference deadlock here Friday night, with the hosts pushing across a fourth-period score to earn the tie.

Brown County got another shot when they recovered a Pittsfield fumble and marched to the Saukee ten before fumbling the ball back.

The tie leaves Brown County with a 5-2-1 overall mark, 2-1-1 in the conference. Pittsfield is now 1-3-3 on the year and 1-1-1 in the Midwest. Both Pittsfield and Brown County still have a chance to tie for the top should Pittsfield knock off Mendon next week.

Curtis, Richardson Spark Tiger Margin

Danny Curtis returned two intercepted passes for touchdowns in the fourth quarter, carrying the fired-up ISD Tigers to a 26-13 PMSC surprise over Triopia, Friday afternoon at the ISD field.

The Tigers handed Triopia its first conference loss of the year in the upset, and left Porta with a chance to grab a share of the top honors.

Curtis' thefts broke a 13-13 deadlock, and came within a few seconds of each other, completely overwhelming the Trojan outfit. While Curtis and Ray Richardson handled the offensive chores with plenty to spare, the Tiger defense rose to its greatest height of the year.

The mighty Trojan ground game was limited to only 38 yards for the game, and only five first downs. Triopia, with quarterback Jim Morrison throwing, was able to move only in the air, accounting for 107 yards there.

Curtis, probably playing his best game ever, chewed up 89 yards on 12 carries, while Richardson carried 12 times for 61 yards. Both scored two touchdowns.

The win pushes ISD over the 500 mark for the year with a 4-3-1 record, 3-1-1 in the PMSC. Triopia drops to 6-2, 5-1 in the conference. A Porta victory over Routh next week would throw the conference into a two-way tie.

Both spirited groups were called for numerous penalties, 95 yards being walked off on ISD and 87 on Triopia.

The first time ISD got the ball they went in to score. The Tigers got the ball on the Trojan 13 after a short punt and a good runback by Curtis. Ter-

Richardson Scores
Richardson hauled in the Triopia punt at the Trojan 40, and behind excellent blocking, scampered all the way for the second Tiger score. Harry Bloomgreen ran the PAT over to tie the game.

Early in the final 12 minutes Curtis picked off his first interception at midfield and broke loose down the sideline for the go-ahead score.

Two plays later Curtis again turned the trick, this time intercepting at his own 35 and returning it 65 yards down the opposite sideline. Terry Story passed to Ron Nuzzo for the PAT and the 26-13 final.

The Panthers got on the scoreboard first, with Berry breaking loose off left guard for a 32-yard scoring gallop.

Jerseyville stopped a long Roxana march in the third quarter, a drive that took up 19 plays, at the Panther four-yard stripe.

Berry broke over the middle for 40 yards early in the final 12 minutes for an insurance tally. Later in the period David Blackbody scored on a nine-yard reverse and Dan Berthou booted the point after for a 19-0 difference.

Roxana's only score came late in the quarter when Dick Donna tossed three yards to Ned Thompson. An 84-yard Donna pass to Bob Wilson set up the score. Wilson ran PAT.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week took another breathing spell in its long climb toward one historic high after another.

The market averages were not in agreement as to whether the market rose or fell. Statistics showed that a few score more issues advanced than declined, but this is not always a conclusive indicator.

One of the "biggest" stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the market value of its shares, took a sharp loss. This was General Motors, which dipped 3 1/2 to 106 1/4. Money-wise, this would offset gains by quite a few stocks with smaller capitalizations.

Selling in GM developed after directors failed to propose a stock split, as some investors had hoped. The giant automaker declared a fat dividend of $2.25 a share, but this did not overcome the disappointment.

The movements on average were minor this week. The closely watched Dow Jones industrial average declined 1.36 to 355.6. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 6 to 355.6, its 11th straight weekly rise.

Both these averages rose to historic closing peaks on Thursday. The Dow industrials made a high of 355.6, the AP average 355.8.

Cut to four days of trading week by the election day holiday, the week had a turnover of 29,567,240 shares compared with 36,007,866 the prior week.

The market was dampened on Monday by reports that President Johnson was opposed to an aluminum price boost which began to develop over the week-end and that he favored releasing aluminum from the government stock pile.

Bond prices sagged during the past week in all markets

under the indirect impact of U.S. Treasury financing.

U.S. Treasury bond prices staged a general decline, pushing yields of most long-term issues to their highest levels in more than five years.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $53.73 million compared to $64.73 million in the previous week.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The butcher hog market showed a sharply higher trend last week and twice reached its highest peak in more than two months. Prices were $1.25 higher for the week.

On Tuesday, best offerings topped at $25.50 which then was the highest since that price was paid on Aug. 27. Then on Friday, the top climbed to $25.75, highest since Aug. 23. The late peak compared with $24.35 a week ago. However, the supply for the week was down only 500 from the previous week at 24,000 head.

The only setback occurred on Wednesday when prices slipped as much as 75 cents after having advanced $1 at the extreme on Tuesday. The week started with a top of $24.50. Average cost for the period was estimated at $24.50 compared with $23.82 last week and $15.09 a year ago.

The supply of slaughter steers was little changed from a week ago and prices held mostly steady. In wholesale outlets, however, steer carcasses sold steady to 50 cents lower and slaughter under federal inspection for the week was believed to have been the second largest of record.

The market for woolled slaughter lambs was steady.

U.S. Increases Rate Of Sales From Aluminum

Reynolds continued, "the common stocks of the three principal aluminum companies are selling today well below their 1955 highs."

Reynolds said that the government refused to continue discussions beyond Saturday morning, although the firm believes "that with another few days discussions, all of these matters could have been resolved so that everything the government desired on stockpile disposition would have been accomplished."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara cited increased defense requirements and the strain on the nation's balance of payments because of increased imports.

And Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler said the stockpile sales "will be an important factor in protecting the position of the dollar in the world."

McNamara said in his prepared statement that sales would be "at market prices." In response to questions whether this would be at the new, increased price, McNamara noted that "many transactions take place at other than publicized prices."

He and he noted that about 115,000 of the 200,000 tons would be sold to defense contractors rather than on the open market, thus apparently leaving the way open for bargaining on the price.

The defense secretary said that negotiations have been under way for eight months on releasing some of the aluminum stockpile and that the decisions were not made because of the recent price increase.

Two accidents on city streets Saturday afternoon caused damage to the four cars involved and sent the driver of one car to the hospital for treatment of possible neck injuries.

The first accident happened in the 200 block of West State at 4:26 p.m. A car driven by Carrie R. Conlee, 614 Reed Street, stopped in the lane of traffic and was struck from the rear by a second auto driven by Marcia Y. Lee, Route 1, Greenfield. Mrs. Lee told investigating city police that she hit the brake but her foot slipped onto the accelerator.

Mrs. Conlee was taken to Passavant hospital for treatment of neck injuries.

The second accident happened in the 800 block of South Main at 6:57 p.m. A car driven by Carl E. Brainer, Route 3, was pulling from a parking space, headed toward a service station driveway, into the path of a northbound auto driven by Owen Whitmore, 826 North Diamond.

Brainer was issued a ticket charging failure to yield the right of way.

City police investigated at the scenes of both accidents.

been steady for more than two years, businessmen have asked for a pegged rate as an insurance for long-term projects.

They also had asked the removal of a technical requirement whereby 20 per cent of their dollar earnings had to be retained in Philippine banks. This requirement, now removed, was the last major restriction on the peso.

Macapagal has been making much in his campaign of business complaints of tight credit and an alleged stagnation of the economy. Macapagal replied that the economy is growing at better than 6 per cent yearly and expressed belief that Saturday's measures would give the economy a further shot in the arm.

He said the Philippines had available $395.2 million in foreign exchange resources to back the value of the peso and insure that no black market in dollars developed.

In reaffirming the pro-Western position of his Liberal party, Macapagal also made plain that the opposition Nacionalista party was only slightly less so. Macapagal said he foresaw no essential change in Philippine foreign policy.

Macapagal said that, if re-elected, he would again introduce in Congress next year a measure to finance a military unit to aid South Viet Nam—where the Philippines now has only a medical team and some technical experts.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

JOHN RICHARD HAWKINS celebrated his first birthday on November 3, 1965. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Hawkins, Manchester, Illinois. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hawkins and Marjorie Servoss, all of Manchester, Illinois. He also has two sets of great grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Servoss and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Madison all of Jacksonville. Johnny has an older sister, Margie, who was four in January, pictured here with him.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

JOIN THE MARCH

Two weeks before your birthday send your name, address, age, birthdate and parents' names to the Junior Page, Jacksonville Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill. and you will get a place in the birthday parade. You may send your name in as early as you wish and we will save it for the date nearest your birthday. Photos may be included and these can be called for as soon as they have appeared in the paper.

ASK ME

Q. What is meant by sun spots?

A. Sunspots are areas of giant storms on the sun. In contrast with the surrounding great brilliance of the sun, they have a darkish look and so are called "spots."

Q. Why can we get AM radio directly from a greater distance than we get FM radio or TV?

A. AM radio waves bounce back from the ionosphere, an electrically charged layer of air at the top of earth's envelope of atmosphere. FM waves and TV waves, however, go straight out from their source and right through the atmosphere. The curve of the earth limits the distance at which they can be received without being re-broadcast.

Q. Do weather satellites really aid forecasts?

A. Indeed they do. Early warnings of hurricanes for example have enabled residents to leave their threatened areas and so have resulted in a great saving of lives. Future weather watchers will do an even more accurate piece of work.

If you have a question send it to Junior Page Editor, Jacksonville Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill. and it will be answered in this column.

Prayer Poem

A Smarty Needs Help

By Mary Pence Claywell

Now a "clever" guy is one thing. But a "Smarty," is another. Most folk admire the first one. And most abhor . . . the other. 'Tis "sad" to see a "Smarty." He lacks . . . we must admit, A little bit of "common sense." Sometimes . . . and tries to hide it.

He thinks he is quite funny. We should "excuse" that too. Nor "react," for it's silly. And not . . . the thing to do: Lord, help us to be tolerant, And give us courage, then, To "help" us . . . "help" the "smarty."

In place of "joining" him: He often, needs our "pity." Feels "outside," in his heart, And tries to gain "attention." At times . . . by acting "smart!"

ORGANIZED SOCIETY

Traveling salesmen, meeting by chance in a Boscobel, Wis., hotel room in 1886, organized the Gleeon Society, which has since distributed millions of Bibles.

Let's Go Birding

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The great American Elm which had shaded the home during the summer and had etched the sky with its spreading vase of bare branches in the winter was dead. For at least a century it had been a retreat for hot tired birds, a look-out for feeding birds, or even a choir loft for the singing birds. Rarely was this tree free from a bird visitor.

But this gigantic tree, like most of the elms along the streets, had died; it had rapidly dropped its yellowing leaves early in the summer, long before the proper time of shedding them. This formerly green majestic tree stood stark against the hot summer sky.

We had already employed tree cutters to saw it down, limb by limb; but rain and broken equipment had delayed this harrowing process. At first we were irritable, defiant, and then resigned to the uncertainties of its removal.

Still Birds' Home
Autumn arrived, and we became aware of something that was going on: the dead elm was still being used by birds, and we were glad that it still stood. Talkative Blackcapped Chickadees were bouncing among the dark stiff twigs, examining crevices for some tasty morsels. Downy Woodpeckers took their turns hitching their way up the trunk, hammering out some bit of food. Now and then a Blue Jay slid in and wedged a sunflower seed in the crack of the dried bark, a thrifty Jay providing for winter. Inquisitive English Sparrows flew in and out, wondering what was really going on.

The most frequent visitors were Robins. Near the Elm stood a Sieboldi Crabapple Tree filled with tiny red apples.

The Robins, a dozen at a time, feasted upon this fruit. There they perched, brick-red breasts matching the red cheeks of the small apples, fencing with the dangling fruits, and succeeding in yanking off the ripest ones and automatically gulping them down.

Autumn Carols
At times they flew to the nearby dead Elm and occasionally sang their carols, softened and shortened by autumn. Were we imagining too much? These songs also sounded sad.

Were the Robins warbling a farewell to the tree that had served them so faithfully so many years? Did they know that this great American Elm would be gone next spring, next summer, and next fall?

We, indeed, realized, as many other citizens of Jacksonville have too, that it and dozens of other elms were dead and dying. We continually heard the chewing saws and crashing trees.

We regretted that the birds would find their favorite haunts empty and could do no more than hope that they would make the remaining trees favorite shelters. And we promised the Blue Jays more sunflower seeds, and all the birds restored trees.

Sculptured female figures which serve as supports in some buildings are known as caryatides.

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Now that Gemini 6 has been scrubbed because the Agena B target vehicle failed to make it into orbit American astronauts will have to wait for Gemini 8 to get their first attempt at rendezvous with another satellite in orbit. Gemini 7, which will use Gemini 6's unused Titan II booster, is scheduled for a marathon 14 day endurance trial in space.

Gemini 10 and 11 are also scheduled for space rendezvous attempts. On Gemini 9 and 12 the astronauts will be going on 52 minute space walks. For these walks they will wear an Astronaut Maneuvering Unit (AMU) which is actually a self contained spacecraft in the form of a backpack. The details of this backpack were described in a paper given to a meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) in St. Louis on October 13 by Mr. W. C. McMillian of Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., the manufacturers of the backpack.

Life In Space
The backpack provides the astronaut with all the necessities of life in space including eight small hydrogen peroxide steering jets. However, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) astronauts will also use an umbilical line similar to the one Mayor White used on his famous walk. This will give added safety in case something goes wrong with the backpack or if the astronaut overstays the time allotted by the backpack's supplies. The backpack is also equipped with its own warning device. If anything goes wrong a light flashes in the control unit on the astronaut's chest and a beeping tone sounds in his earphones. An added safety factor is provided by the Gemini spacecraft which can maneuver alongside the astronaut if he needs help. Of course the backpack, like the Gemini itself, is provided with backup systems in case the main ones fail.

Stored Outside
During the launching the backpack is stored outside the pressurized cabin in the adapter section at the aft end of the spacecraft. When the time comes for the space walk one of the astronauts, wearing a small chest pack attached to the umbilical line, will open the hatch, climb out and make his way to the back of the spacecraft.

When he arrives he will brace himself in a trapeze-like hand and foot bar, pull on the backpack and plug in into the chest pack. With the back pack on he will push off into space day's work out side the spacecraft. After familiarizing himself with his equipment he will maneuver out to the limits of his 200 foot umbilical line.

During this maneuvering he will attempt to perform some useful work in space. On one of the Gemini flights, probably Gemini 12, and astronaut may attempt to pluck some "feathers" from the winged Pegasus III meteor detection satellite. After his tasks have been completed the astronaut will return to the Gemini spacecraft and leave the backpack behind in space.

OUR HOUSE

Our house is small
Our lawn in all is small
From door to door
The house is small
From roof to roof
The house is small
From wall to wall
The house is small
We wouldn't change
For nothing strange
For measure right
It's not too tight
It's good enough as you can see
It lasts all winter
It lasts all fall
It's not too small at all

By John Rankin

The light from the crackling logs in the open fireplace flickered through the window of the remote little cabin and great clouds of white smoke curled lazily upward and was soon lost in the gray, hazy-like dawn of a November day. There was a hint of snow in the air and in the stillness of the valley. And even the low-hanging clouds that seemed to dip down to the very peak of the mountains warned of an impending storm.

Inside the cabin 12-year-old Lynn Hickman awakened with a start when he felt the cold nose of Ringo, his big black and white collie nudging him gently in the face and he reached out to give the big dog a friendly pat on the head. "All right, boy, I'll get up," he muttered drowsily. Then he swung himself to a sitting position on the side of the bunk and peered through the dim light of the open fire at Uncle Luke on his makeshift bed across the room.

"Guess he's still asleep," Lynn muttered softly. Then he hustled into his clothes and with Ringo at his heels he quietly left the room with a battered water bucket and headed for a spring at the foot of the hill. Uncle Luke, a dark, tall and gangling man about fifty was up putting fresh logs on the fire when they returned from the spring.

"Thought you'd want to sleep late so we didn't wake you," Lynn said thoughtfully as he put the bucket of water on an old-fashioned table near the door. "What got you up so early anyway? Going to round up the sheep today, maybe?"

Important Day
The veteran hillman's dark eyes had a serious look as he turned from the fire. "You know what tomorrow is, and what the day means to us, son?" he asked with feeling.

Lynn was thoughtful a moment and a puzzled look showed on his boyish features. "Yeah, sure, Uncle Luke, it's Thursday. Why?"

"It's Thanksgiving, son. And we're going to offer our thanks in that little church back in the hills," Uncle Luke nodded slowly. "Then we'll have turkey and pumpkin pie and all the trimmings just like your aunt Sally used to fix up. Of course it won't be the same but . . ."

THE WIND

The wind in the shutters,
The wind at my door,
As I lay in my bed,
It blows like never before.

The wind all around me,
As it whines like a dog,
Probably I,
Should be sleeping like a log.

Suddenly the shutters,
Tear open with a crash,
I slam them closed,
And my fingers I almost smash.

The wind in the shutters,
The wind at my door,
Are not so loud,
As before.

THE CATERPILLAR

Once there was a little caterpillar,
Who wouldn't mind his mother;
When she told him to go to bed,
He knocked her in the head;
I shall be an explorer,
Said he to his mother, for he really did adore her;
So off he went into the jungle of grass,
His poor mother weeping that alas,
He should never come home.
The jungle was a massive place,
Towering high over head;
Soon he was lost,
Or so he said;
I shall climb this grass stem high,
In hopes he should reach the sky;
When he reached the top,
He exclaimed how my ears do pop;
I shall leave this horrid place,
Before I get eaten up;
But along came a spider
And that was the end of poor he.

LEAVES FALLING

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are;
Yellow, orange, and red;
The leaves are falling,
How pretty they are to see;

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are
In piles stacked high;
The leaves are falling,
For people to rake and rake;

The leaves are falling,
Yes they are
The trees will be bare;
The leaves are falling,
For winter soon to come;

The snow is falling,
Yes it is,
Snow is hiding those leaves;
The snow is falling,
Those pretty leaves are gone.

WHIRLPOOL WONDER

Beside the green pastures
There lies a brook
With water running smoothly
Down, down, through the bridge
You see it coming closer and closer
Then it becomes a whirlpool
You wonder how it turns
With spinning water gushing around

It looks like a spinning top
With water instead of plastic
It looks so becoming so graceful
And beautiful
I dive into the silly whirlpool

Then down, down I went
Gasp, gasp I was drowning
I knew how stupid I was
I will always wonder about whirlpools.

FALL LEAVES

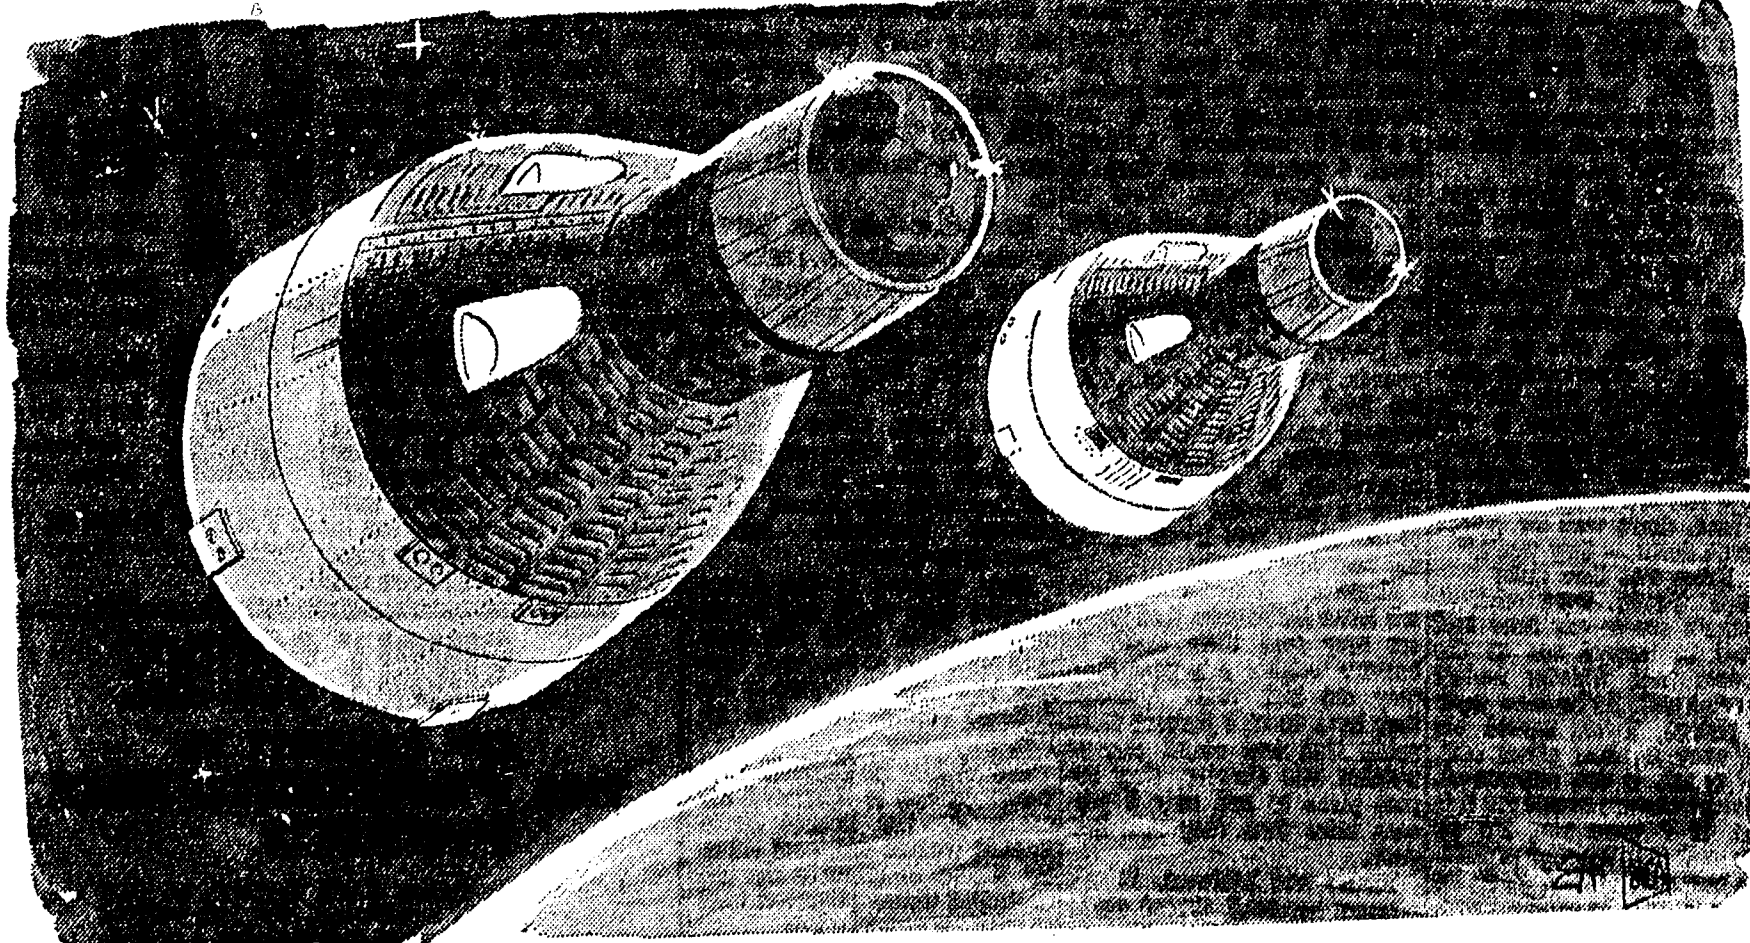

Look at those leaves
Come falling down.
Like a storm at night
When you go into town.
They feel like raindrops
Falling from the sky,
But they are red and yellow
It's not a lie.
I know how anxious
You are to see,
The land of
The falling leaves.
So come along with me
And we shall fly,
To the falling leaves
From way up high.

BIG DREAM

I went fishing one day
I fished in a bay
I caught a big fish
Boy, was I gay
It was as big as my boat
Gosh, what a load
I took it home
But it ran away
I told my mother
So I didn't believe me
And went to my room
I didn't believe myself
But just then I woke up
I found it was all a dream
Just my luck

DOUBLE DATE, BY GEMINI!—Sketch above is an artist's conception of a successful climax to the unprecedented rendezvous in space planned for four astronauts in the Gemini-7 and Gemini-6 spacecraft. Gemini-7, carrying astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, will blast off from Cape Kennedy first and go into orbit for a 14-day endurance flight that would crack all manned space flight duration records. Seven or eight days later, Gemini-6, whose rendezvous and docking flight was scrubbed when its target Agena disappeared, would go into orbit to pursue and rendezvous with its mate, possibly as close as 100 feet. Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford will again be the astronauts. For two days, the duo will orbit in tandem, "like two cars speeding side-by-side down a super-highway without smashing fenders." The crews may be able to see each other through the spacecraft windows and will take photographs and talk by radio.

Gophers Bounce Back For Narrow 27-22 Loop Edge

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota bounced back from the near disaster of a blocked punt that led to a Northwestern safety and touchdown and stormed to defeat the Wildcats 27-22 in a Big Ten football game Saturday.

Hankinson completed seven straight passes for 84 yards in the sweep of the winning touchdown which wiped out a 22-21 Northwestern lead.

He had a 25-yard touchdown pass nullified by an illegal procedure penalty before hitting Ken Last with a 22-yard toss on a third down and 21 situation that kept the Gophers alive.

That moved the ball to the Northwestern 16 and another Hankinson pass to Aaron Brown gave Minnesota possession on the Wildcat 5.

It took the Gophers all four plays to score, with Hankinson keeping over the middle for the final six inches. The partisan Minnesota crowd gasped when Hankinson fumbled at the goal on third down. But the officials ruled that Gopher center Chuck Killian had recovered the ball.

Northwestern was awarded a safety on a controversial officials' call late in the third quarter. Bob Hampton broke through to block Bruce Van De Walker's punt from the Gopher 29.

Referee Dwight Wilkey ruled that the impetus of the blocked punt had put the ball in the end zone, making it a safety and not a touchdown.

Following the Gophers' free kick, Northwestern had field position at the Minnesota 43-yard line. The Wildcats scored in nine plays, with Bob McKelvey bursting 17 yards over tackle for the touchdown and the 22-21 lead.

Hankinson broke the Minnesota single game passing record by bringing his yardage total to 1,175.

Minnesota led 21-14 at halftime, as neither team could get a defense straightened out in the first quarter, which ended in a 14-14 deadlock.

Both teams scored the first two times they had the ball, Northwestern driving 65 and 63 yards for first quarter touchdowns and the Gophers sweeping 71 and 70 yards for matching scores.

Minnesota went ahead with only 1:22 remaining before halftime with a 52-yard march, capped by Hankinson's first touchdown plunge from the three. Before Minnesota's winning touchdown drive, Northwestern intercepted a Hankinson pass at the Gopher 34 and moved to the Minnesota 30 before losing the ball on a fumble.

Central Meth. 28, Eureka 6
FAYETTE, Mo. (AP)—Larry Anderson scored two touchdowns for Central Methodist Saturday as the Eagles defeated Eureka College of Illinois 28-6.
Central closed its season with a 4-4 record.

North Central 21, Millikin 0
DECATUR (AP)—North Central scored three times through the air Saturday to whitewash Millikin 21-0 in a College Conference of Illinois football game.

The first score came on a 22-yard pass from quarterback Mike Wehrli to end Bruce Fulton late in the second quarter. North Central quarterback Luther Selbo threw for the final two TDs in the final quarter.

His first scoring pass traveled 24 yards to end Peter Travis. The final touchdown was scored on a three-yard toss to end Richard Janzarak.

North Central is now 2-3 in conference play. Millikin has a 1-3 record.

Western Ill. 40, Mankato 12
MACOMB, Ill. (AP)—Western Illinois flashed a passing attack for the first time this season and swamped Mankato State Minn. 40-12 Saturday in a non-conference football game.

Roger Miller led the Leathernecks by completing 26 of 34 aerials good for 286 yards and two touchdowns. His touchdown passes were 9 yards to Jim Jackson and 42 yards to Jim Trab.

Jackson also scored on an 11-yard run and Nora Steward ran for scores from 15 and 3 yards. Jim Tetzloff scored both of Mankato's touchdowns on passes of 7 and 4 yards from Tom Schultz.

Bradley 50, Wheaton 0
PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Bradley quarterback Bob Carress rifled 30 complete passes Saturday for 490 yards and six touchdowns as the Braves demolished winless Wheaton 50-0.

Going into the game, Carress was ranked second in small college passing behind Northern Illinois' Ron Christian.

End Hal Montville hauled in four Carress touchdown aerials. Mike Knox was the Brave receiver on a 73-yard scoring pass play, and Jerry Cizek was the other touchdown target.

Carress also kicked a second quarter field goal and five conversions. Bradley led the Crusaders at halftime by just 10-0 and scored 33 points in the fourth quarter.

Ill. Wesleyan 37, Carthage 13
KENOSHA, Wis. (AP)—Illinois Wesleyan ran its unbroken string of 1955 football victories to seven Saturday and clinched at least a tie for the championship of the College Conference of Illinois by defeating Carthage 37-13.

Wesleyan's quarterback Steve Laub threw five touchdown passes running his string to 13 in five conference games. Mike Neal, who caught three of them, virtually clinched individual conference scoring honors. Neal's point total is 48.

Touchdown passes to Neal covered 84, 18 and 44 yards, respectively. The others were for 8 yards to Denny Matthews and 9 yards to Bruce Daydiff.

Elmhurst 7, Concordia 6
ELMHURST, Ill. (AP)—Elmhurst survived two bad scares in the last four minutes to preserve a 7-6 football victory Saturday over Concordia Teachers of River Forest.

Concordia's first threat died at the 13 yard line with a missed field goal attempt. Elmhurst's subsequent punt was blocked and Concordia took over on the six yard line but four plays produced only five yards.

UI ENROLLMENT UP BY 4,042

C.W. Sanford, dean of admissions, said the Chicago Circle Campus enrollment of 8,629 was up 3,415 over last year for a gain of 65 per cent.

Spartans Pound Helpless Iowa 35-0

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—more recently. Top-ranked Michigan State, led by halfback Clinton Jones' four touchdown runs, pounded to a 35-0 victory over Iowa and Wednesday, throttled Michigan State until Steve Juday hit end Gene Washington with a 44-yard pass on Iowa's 19 midway in the second quarter.

The Spartans needed a pass bomb and an Iowa penalty for two second quarter touchdowns which launched their eighth straight over-all victory and extended their Big Ten record to 6-0.

Jones scampered 19, 6, 4 and 3 yards for his touchdowns which virtually locked up a Rose Bowl trip for the Spartans, who close Big Ten play next Saturday against Indiana.

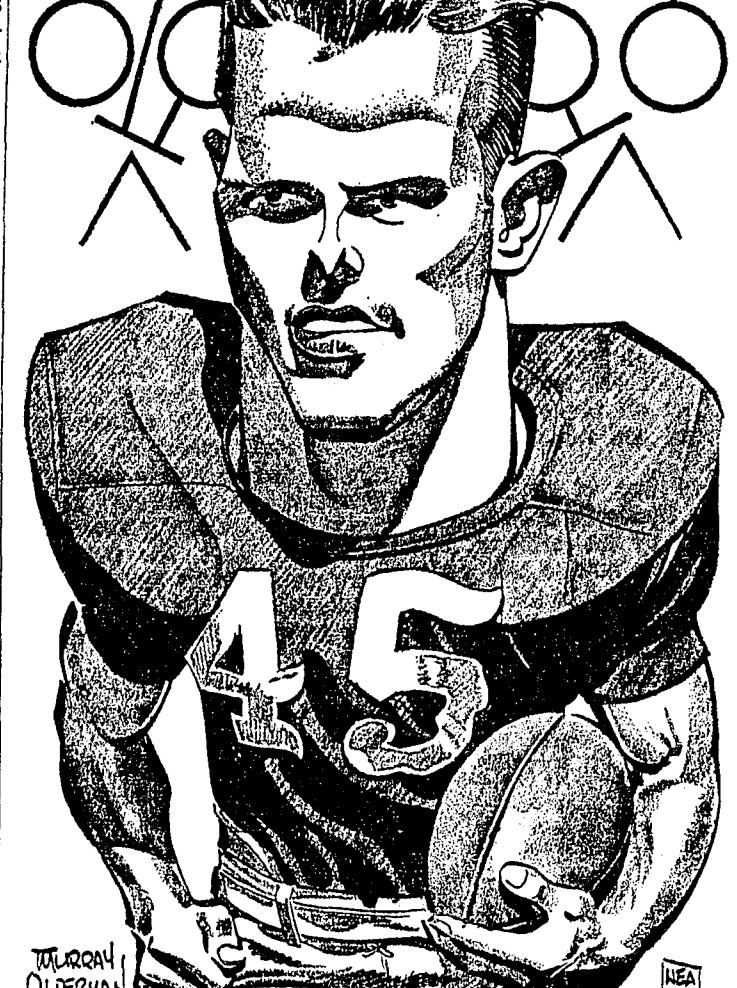

Even should Michigan State wind up in a tie title, the Spartans presumably would get the Rose Bowl nod since their last Pasadena trip was by the 1955 MSU team.

Minnesota and Ohio State each held a mathematical chance to tie for the title, and has been tied to the Rose Bowl.

LINCOLN, Neb. (NEA)—they said, "is our team manager." "My size," rationalizes Frank, "is a help to me with the type of offense we run. The fullback slot is geared for quick gainers up the middle. The extra speed and a little less weight helps."

To squeeze through, that is. The Nebraska team barreled to a 4-1 season last year, upset by Oklahoma, as Frank hustled for 44 yards along the ground. He scoots through the line like under the toughest kind of pressure, all on quick darts between the tackles.

Frank is a fullback. The way big-time college football is geared today, that makes him as out-of-place as a mole in a bikini. He was once offered half a scholarship at Notre Dame—a pound-for-pound sort of thing—and went to Nebraska because "they were the only big-time school that would take a chance on me."

He's the offensive wheelhorse and the leading ground gainer (also the top rusher in 1964) on a team that has national championship aspirations, but he didn't make the starting freshman team.

As a sophomore in 1963, he ran back kickoffs and punts and was almost resigned to spending his collegiate career in that suicidal pursuit. But last year coach Bob Devaney wanted to open up his offense and focused on the idea of using Frank—a last place you look for a little man—at fullback.

It didn't do much for the Nebraska image of physical football. At one game on the road, Frank went up the hotel elevator with a bushel of fellow Cornhuskers who fitted the pattern for size. Some partisans of the Big Red (that's the school color and is flamboyantly displayed) got on, too.

The varsity players carefully introduced themselves—until they got to Frank. "This,"

Ward And Gabler Outduel 'Grabo'

By BUFORD GREEN
CHAMPAIGN — Speedster Carl Ward and crafty quarterback Wally Gabler stole the show from all-American fullback Jim Grabowski, as Michigan continued their recent domination of the Illini in an impressive 23-3 Big Ten football victory.

Wolverine coach Bump Elliott continued his jinx over brother Pete with this victory, marking his sixth straight since the brother duo began facing each other, and the seventh Michigan triumph in a row over the Illini.

The Wolverines completely outclassed the Illini, fresh off a 21-0 upset over Purdue; with their line outchugging, outbacking and outtackling the hosts.

Ward, a flashy 177-pound junior scabback, was the biggest offensive thorn in the Illini side all day. He almost single-handedly broke the Illinois defenses the time after time. Ward personally accounted for 139 yards on his 19 carries.

While Ward kept Illinois on its heels with his running, quarterback Gabler, a 195-pound senior, ran and passed almost at will. Besides his pinpoint passing, Gabler ran the Illinois ends on rollouts all day for success.

All-American and prime Heisman Trophy candidate Grabowski, who already holds most of the Illinois and Big Ten rushing records, managed 92 yards in 22 tries into the line.

Illinois started off in fine fashion, driving 73 yards to the Michigan 15 before a penalty and a loss on a pass attempt put them back to the 27 where quarterback Fred Custard booted a perfect field goal and a 3-0 Illinois lead early in the first quarter.

Rest Michigan
From there it was Michigan the rest of the way. The only other time Illinois got inside the Michigan 35 was when Custard hit Craig Timko with a 21-yard aerial late in the fourth quarter.

After Illinois' opening drive Michigan came right back to establish offensive domination. The classy Wolverines quickly got their ground machine rolling and moved 80 yards to score.

Midway in the opening 15 minutes Gabler hit Ward with a six-yard TD strike after a five yard walkoff against Wolverines made it fourth and six at the six. Rich Sygar booted the PAT for a 7-3 Michigan lead that was never threatened. The touchdown drive by the Wolverines covered the 80 yards in only 12 plays, highlighted by a 41-yard Gabler pass to end Jack Clancy.

The Wolverines continued on into the second stanza, moving 68 yards in only nine plays. The big play in the drive was Gabler's 39-yard aerial to end Steve Smith. From the one Ward leaped over the line for the second TD and Sygar again added the extra point.

With only seconds remaining before halftime Michigan again put together a sustained drive, a march that carried to the 26 from where Sygar's field goal made it 17-3 at intermission.

Michigan put the game on ice to start the second half, moving entirely on the ground in a 70-yard march that took up 15 plays, again on the carries of Ward and Gabler. Gabler swept his left end for the final four yards but a bad snap from center thwarted the try for the point after.

The Wolverines threatened once more in the second quarter when Ward carried 15 yards to the 20. A Gabler pass from there was picked off by defensive half Ron Ackis at the three-yard line.

The loss leaves Illinois with a 4-4 mark overall and a 2-3 Big Ten standing. Michigan now holds identical records in each category.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Wolski rambled for five touchdowns to tie a Notre Dame record for scoring in one game as the fighting Irish crushed an outclassed Pitt football team 69-13 Saturday.

The 195-pound senior from Muskingum, Mich., scored two TDs each in the first and second quarters and one in the third.

Wolski sat out most of the second half after the Irish rolled up a 42-6 third quarter lead. His performance tied the record set in 1923 by Red Maher against Kalamazoo.

Medicine Advances

Community Health Week In Progress

Science today is writing one of the great chapters of history. Scientific discoveries and follow-through have catapulted us into an age of incredible progress where that which seemed impossible three or four decades ago now is frequently brought to realization.

Members of the Morgan County Medical Society are joining with other societies throughout the United States in the observance of National Community Health Week, November 7 through 14.

The most startling advances are occurring in medical science. Not even space science is progressing faster than medical science. It can be truly said that we are living in the golden age of medicine.

Within the past quarter of a century more advances have been made in medicine than in all previous centuries. And continuing advances are being made at an ever-accelerating pace.

Many Diseases Overcome
Medicine has found ways to overcome and soon may even eradicate many of yesterday's dreaded diseases—smallpox, polio and diphtheria, for instance. It has made great inroads against many other once-common killers—pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis and rheumatism fever—to name but a few.

In the pharmaceutical laboratory new drugs have been produced which perform an increasing number of useful tasks. At least 75 per cent of them were unknown ten years ago.

Today medicine is searching for ways to conquer arteriosclerosis, cancer, birth defects, metabolic diseases and many other health enemies.

And there are exciting new vistas of medicine. Modern surgery, with its intricate heart-lung machines and other imaginative new tools, has made it possible to perform life-saving surgery, to replace or repair damaged blood vessels and even to successfully transplant limbs, kidneys and other vital organs in man.

Diseases Are Curbed
Equally significant are new medical developments which have made it possible for physicians to bring diabetes, hypertension, mental illness, salt and gland imbalances and many other diseases under control, thus enabling victims of these diseases to lead nearly normal lives.

As a direct result of this vast array of medical progress, the life span of Americans has been greatly enlarged. The average life expectancy for the child born today is 69.9 years. In 1937 it was only 60 years, and in 1900 but 47 years. Reduction in mortality between 1935 and 1965 accounted for a contribution of $10,400,000,000 to the gross national product.

2 Dead, Sheriff Injured

HAVANA, Ill. (AP) — A Havana man was killed in a collision with a speeding police car driven by Sheriff Melvin Trimpe of Mason County Friday night, as Trimpe sped toward the scene of another accident which killed a teen-age girl.

Clifton Lynch, 51, was thrown 83 feet from his car at the Havana intersection of South Promenade and Dearborn St. He died shortly afterward in Mason District hospital. Sheriff Trimpe was in good condition at the same hospital.

Janice Brass, 16, of Petersburg, Menard County, was the victim of the accident. Trimpe was to have investigated. Three other 16-year-olds were in the car with her when it veered off an embankment on Illinois 97 near Kibbourne. Terry Dowell of Oakford and Karlene Knoles of Petersburg were in fair condition. The driver, Shirley Jansen, was not hospitalized.

Sheriff Trimpe's car, siren wailing and red light flashing, collided with the Lynch car and knocked it into a filling station, where it struck a parked vehicle.

Winchester High School Observes Education Week

By Naomi Lawson
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone 742-3490)

WINCHESTER — Once again the schools of Winchester will be in the spotlight as parents visit their children's classrooms during American Education week, which is from November 7 to November 13.

Open House will be held Tuesday, November 9, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Winchester High School. A special committee, headed by Mrs. Loretta Glossop, Assistant Principal, has been appointed to plan the activities at local High School.

Sponsored annually by the National Education Association, The American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the U.S. Office of Education, American Education Week reminds each citizen that good schools are, to a very high degree, his own responsibility.

This year, the theme for the week's activities is "Invest in Learning," and 32 million parents across the country are expected to visit their school to check their investment.

Parents of students and other members of the community are urged to attend. Refreshments will be prepared by students in the Family Living classes under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Mary Waters.

The Evening Educational Department of the Senior Women's Club will meet Wednesday, November 10, at 6:15 p.m. at Slagle Kanch Inn.

Mrs. Charles Craver will give the program, "F. Scott Fitzgerald."

Mrs. T. J. Dugan and Mrs. Frank Cowick are in charge of arrangements.

Reservations are to be called to Mrs. Earle Black, Mrs. Carl Woodcock or Mrs. Allen McCullough, Sr.

Legion Plans Suppers
The Julian Wells American Legion Post, No. 442, met Wednesday evening at the American Legion Home in Winchester. A fish and chicken supper preceded the meeting.

Two suppers were announced for the month of November. The first on November 10 will be given for Veterans from the Jacksonville State Hospital. The second supper will be served on November 17 and will be a free meal for all those who helped with the annual Burgo picnic last summer.

The membership chairman, George Lindsay, reported that the Post now has 146 members.

WCS November Meeting
The WCS of the First Methodist church in Winchester met Thursday afternoon at Sibert Hall.

The president, Miss Frieda Balke, opened the meeting with the Prayer for the Week of Prayer and Self Denial.

Mrs. Harry Montgomery discussed the offering taken at the meeting which would in part go to Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Dale Sanner told how some of the offering would be used for medical supplies overseas.

Parents of freshman students are particularly invited to come and meet the teachers of their sons or daughters. All teachers will be in their respective rooms at 7:45 and will be happy to meet parents of freshman and upperclassmen.

A brief program conducted by George Hardesty, freshman class president will begin in the auditorium. The Crimson Chorus under the direction of Mr. Philip Falcone will present two numbers. Other officers of the freshman class are: Cheryl Grant, vice president; Rosemary Silva, secretary; Vicki Vasconcellos, treasurer; freshman home room teachers, and counselors will be introduced from the stage. Mr. Farrel Patterson, high school principal will make a few remarks prior to the visitation. All parents are most welcome.

District 117 To Mark American Education Week

American Education Week will be observed in schools throughout the United States during the week of November 7-13. All schools in Jacksonville District 117 will observe the week the theme of which this year is "Invest in Learning."

The various schools in the district are observing this week by encouraging parents and friends to visit their schools on the day designated by the various schools.

American Education Week is observed annually during the week in November which includes Veterans Day. It is sponsored by the National Education Association, The American Legion, U.S. office of Education and the National Council of Parents and Teachers to inform the public of the accomplishments and needs of public schools and to secure their cooperation in meeting these needs.

In establishing American Education Week the founders were motivated by the startling disclosures of the first World War draft when twenty five percent of men examined were found to be illiterate and twenty nine percent were physically unfit for military service.

Students in the elementary schools will be bringing special invitations to parents giving a suggested date and time for a visit. You are all invited to visit school during education week and be reminded that "good schools are everybody's responsibility."

Defendant Pays For Striking Beardstown Cop

BEARDSTOWN — Striking a police officer in Beardstown is an expensive act. It cost Gary Brown $150 and costs when he appeared in the Lincoln Court room here Friday and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Associate Circuit Court Judge Fred W. Reither assessed the fine and delivered a stern lecture into the bargain.

Brown, who is employed by a local business firm and has no previous police record, told the judge he couldn't really explain his action.

Police were called to a local home Oct. 25 at the request of Brown's wife, and Brown answered the door when Police Officer Raymond Taylor knocked. Taylor said he was struck twice and Brown didn't deny the charge.

Other matters also were disposed of at the regular Friday court session here.

Judge Reither conducts court sessions throughout the week in the county courthouse at Virginia, but holds special sessions in the newly remodeled courtroom here. The county historical society cooperated in restoring the courtroom to the condition in which it was utilized by Lincoln.

More Burglaries
Burglaries continue here, the latest having occurred at the Snitty Cut and Cover shop Thursday night.

A tool box containing tools valued at $250 was taken and about $10 in cash at Snitty's.

The Manny Arenz residence, 407 E. 7th and the Claude Anderson home, 509 Monroe were also burglarized. Electric drills and a power saw were included in the loot at the Arenz home, and a portable gas heater was stolen from the Anderson home.

Don't Feed The Baer
Thirteen year old Toni Baer is maintaining a sharp sense of humor although hospitalized here due to diabetes and pneumonia.

When placed in an oxygen tent at Schmitt Memorial hospital she erected a sign cautioning her visitors: "Don't Feed the Baer."

Her father Bill Baer was in Barnes hospital, St. Louis, for surgery when Toni became ill. He said his own morale was boosted when he heard of Toni's sign.

Pike Farmer Saves Four From Flaming Car, Driver Dies

The heroic effort of a Summer Hill farmer was credited with saving the lives of four Pike county youths early Saturday morning after their speeding car careened off the highway, struck a concrete abutment 381 feet away and burst into flames. The teenage driver died in the flaming inferno.

A car carrying five Pike county teenagers crashed a short distance from the Henry Yokem farm at Summer Hill on U.S. 54, 8 miles southeast of Pittsfield early Saturday. Yokem ran to the auto and pulled four of the youths from the car but was unable to free the driver from the demolished auto.

The dead youth was identified by Pike County Coroner Warren Lord as 17-year-old Don Tedrow of Griggsville.

The four survivors were rushed to Illini Community hospital at Pittsfield where they were admitted suffering injuries received in the accident.

Three of the four youths were listed in critical condition late Saturday evening: John Miller, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Miller; John Simpkins, 17, raised in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bings, both of Griggsville; and Francis Dark, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dark of Pittsfield. The fourth youth, Mike Cawthorn, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cawthorn of Griggsville was listed in satisfactory condition.

The Pittsfield Fire Department was called to the accident scene to extinguish the burning car.

Pike Coroner Warren Lord said he would conduct an inquest into the Tedrow death Tuesday.

Donald Wayne Tedrow, a lifetime resident of Griggsville was born Nov. 1, 1948, a son of Gerald Wayne and Ayre Jane Lloyd Tedrow. He attended Griggsville schools and was a senior at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Church of the Nazarene in Griggsville, the FFA chapter, the Hoof and Horn 4-H Club, and the Varsity club at the high school.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two brothers, Myron E. and Samuel, both at home and a sister, Ruth Leola of Quincy.

The body was removed to the Skinner Funeral Home in Griggsville.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today, at the Church of the Nazarene with Rev. Arnold Roland officiating. Interment will be made in Griggsville cemetery.

Japan Is Customer For Illinois Products

By WALTER B. PETERSON
IAA Secretary of Marketing
(Note: This dispatch was phoned back from Japan where Peterson is participating in the Illinois Far East Trade Mission headed by Gov. Otto Kerner.)

TOKYO, JAPAN, NOVEMBER 5, 1965 — Japan is a growing customer for the soybeans, wheat, and feed grains that Illinois farmers produce.

Japan is America's second largest customer. We sell $4 billion in U.S. goods to Japan annually; and Japan is our largest agricultural customer, purchasing $800 million in farm products last year. The bulk of these exports are in soybeans, wheat, and feed grains.

Soybeans are the big volume builder and Illinois has been a steady source. For example, I learned today about a Japanese food product, soy curd. More than two-thirds of the soybeans required to supply this product for the Greater Tokyo area come from Central Illinois.

There is a good reason why Harasoy and Hawkeye soybean varieties accounted for 54 per cent of our Illinois production. Their protein quality and high oil content make them superior to the varieties produced in other countries.

Now, for wheat — Japan is buying an increased volume of hard wheat for bread flour and western white wheat from the state of Washington. They use it for their pastry and biscuit needs. I attended Rotary luncheon today and, of all things, I had a generous plate of spaghetti made from this western white wheat. The rolls we had were every bit as good as you would get in the Palmer House in Chicago.

Now, about feed grains — Japan is a growing customer for feed grains. Last night we had a Mongolian barbecue comprised of Kobe beef, native pork, and broiler-type chicken. These are the products of their growing livestock industry, and Illinois corn and western milo are being used for this purpose.

Yesterday, we had an informative session with U. S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer. Our trade mission is here in Japan because this country is the seventh largest country in the world in gross national product and is growing rapidly in economic power. The indications are, according to Ambassador Reischauer, that Japan will pass France, West Germany, and Communist China in this economic race. That is a very good reason why we are here as 60 businessmen, mostly heads of small businesses.

Japan, at the present time, is going through what the ambassador describes as a depression mood. That is, it is more a mood than a reality. It is a slowdown or a recession. Industry here has had a tremendous buildup in its inventory. The country has been growing economically at an annual rate of 10 per cent for almost ten years.

The pork production plant will be located on 130 acres of ground and 215,000 square feet of the site will be under roof. This will include a two-story air conditioned office building as well as pre-stressed cement panel buildings for other uses.

Also located near the site will be a $500,000 lagoon type sewage disposal plant to be built by the city connecting with an outfall sewer leading to the local pumping plant and thence to the river.

Ila Mae Vinyard Dies Saturday At Holy Cross

Mrs. Ila Mae Vinyard, 76, of Roodhouse died at 4:40 p.m. Saturday at Holy Cross hospital. She was born in Pike county, April 12, 1889, a daughter of John and Rose VanDoren Roe. Her husband, Charles Vinyard, died in 1958.

She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Helen Hudson and Robert of Roodhouse; Mrs. Pauline Ballard and Mrs. Eleanor Hughes of Jacksonville; Mrs. Edward Ingraham of San Jose, Calif.; Mrs. Lee Elliott of Granite City; a brother, Harry Roe of Roodhouse, two sisters, Mrs. Homer Thorpe of Englewood, Fla., and Mrs. Walter Garthe of St. Louis, 14 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the Christian Church of Roodhouse, RNA, Ladies Auxiliary to the B of RT, and Adell Rebecca Lodge.

The body was removed to the Mackey Funeral Home at Roodhouse. Further arrangements are incomplete.

Baptists Plan Training Meets

The Baptist Women's Missionary Society of the West Central Association has scheduled two Job Analysis Workshops to train officers in local circles of the organization. The sessions will be similar, and officers may attend the more convenient meeting.

The workshop on Tuesday, November 9, will open at 10 a.m. at the Carrollton First Baptist Church, and those going are to take sack lunches for the noon hour. Dismissal will probably be before 2:30.

The second meeting will be held at Winchester First Baptist Church on Nov. 16 and will begin at 7 p.m., with no food planned.

Both meetings will include a general session, a film, and division meetings led by the Association Missionary Officers. Eighteen churches in the West Central Association have missionary groups and are expected to participate.

Mrs. Cletus Reynolds, of Carrollton, is president of the organization.

DON'T HURRY WHEN SHAVING LEGS

Follow safety rules when shaving your legs. Use a sharp new blade that is secure in the razor and keep your eye and mind on what you are doing. Don't rush, especially when working around the ankle bone. After shaving apply a baby lotion or moisturizing lotion to give legs a smooth, soft appearance.

Editorial Comment

Firearms Curb Backed

Americans who grasp the need for better control over the sale and possession of firearms owe a big debt of gratitude to Senator Dodd. His persistent espousal of his suggested amendment to the Federal Firearms Act may eventually prod his colleagues into passage of this measure.

The general lack of enthusiasm for the bill, which proposes no more than a reasonable curb on the traffic in firearms, can be explained in large part by the concerted opposition to which Senator Dodd referred thus the other day on the floor of the Senate: "There has been opposition to this legislation, and by that I mean an intensive, well financed, and powerful lobby working night and day to see that it is never adopted. This lobby has distorted the facts, confused the issue, in some cases lied outright to attain its end, the defeat of reasonable firearms legislation."

Such a lobby exerts strong pressure on Congress. But, as Senator Dodd noted, there also is responsible support for his bill — from, for example, the American Bar Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The Senate should listen more attentively to such groups' sound arguments in favor of the proposed amendment, and less to the firearms lobby pushing its selfish interests.

For Whalers, It's No Tomorrow

Few people have ever seen a blue whale, except in pictures. It is extremely likely that no one ever will again, including those who hunt them for their valuable oil, meat and numerous other products.

The 100-foot blue whale, the largest animal known to have existed, has been virtually exterminated, the victim of the illogical rapacity of men.

Even now, when the blue whale is regarded as commercially extinct, as is the smaller humpback whale, the International Whaling Commission has found it impossible to get its 14 member nations to agree on a prohibition against hunting them to give what few remain a chance to reproduce themselves.

Because of the shortsighted greediness and cutthroat competition of four whaling countries—Russia, Japan, Norway and the Netherlands—the same fate threatens other species, such as the fin and sei whale.

The industry continues to insist on catch quotas well above the levels which scientists warn are necessary to allow the whale populations to recover.

The quotas are also well above what the hunters have actually been able to take, despite an array of modern equipment like helicopters, sonar, explosive harpoons and factory ships that can process an entire whale in half an hour.

Each year the quotas are lowered; each year the catch fails to come up to it.

According to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, "only the most drastic action can save the whaling industry from complete collapse within a few years."

Such action does not appear imminent. Says a spokesman for the International Whaling Commission:

"If the weather (this year) is good for killing, the scramble for the biggest profits will be reminiscent of the golden days of the robber barons."

It is said that on a sustained yield basis, this renewable natural resource would be worth some $200 million each year at current prices.

Yet here is an industry that is deliberately killing itself out of business, not to mention ridding the earth of some of the most magnificent creatures that have ever lived.

The election passed off quietly. From the very first it became evident that the Democracy had determined to win the day. Their forces were thoroughly organized and promptly on hand and no means were spared to gain the much desired result.

A great many scratched tickets were polled, some being fixed on the spot and others being brought in vest pockets, already fixed for the ballot box.

Not a single Republican candidate, all good men and true, came close to election Tuesday. This is certainly a poor showing for the Grand Old Party.

Horses and mules are quiet; grain and hay fairly active.

This Mincemeat Pie Saves Time

VANILLA MINCEMEAT PIE is a sweet novelty.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

As much as you may love the soft glow of Aunt Katherine's pewter candlesticks or the fine craftsmanship which went into the antique pie server, you would probably welcome a change of pace from the traditional hard work of Thanksgiving Day this year.

If so, try a no-bake vanilla cream pie combined with mincemeat. It is rich tasting, has an interesting texture, yet is light enough to provide a perfect ending to the plentiful feast. And it requires very little preparation.

The second no-bake recipe is for a creamy pumpkin pie, a modern, convenient version of the pumpkin pie that is one of our traditional Thanksgiving desserts.

Vanilla Mincemeat Pie
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 package (3 1/2 oz.) vanilla instant pudding
3/4 cup milk

3/4 cup moist mincemeat
1 baked 8-inch pie shell, cooled

Prepare topping mix as directed on package. Then prepare pudding mix as directed on package, using 3/4-cup milk. Measure 1 cup prepared whipped topping and blend into pudding along with mincemeat. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with remaining prepared whipped topping.

Creamy Pumpkin Pie
1 package vanilla whipped dessert mix
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup COLD milk
1/4 cup COLD water

1 baked 8-inch pie shell, cooled
Combine dessert mix, sugar and pumpkin pie spice. Blend in pumpkin, milk and water. Whip at high speed of electric mixer 3 minutes. Pour into crust. Chill 3 hours or more. Garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

Washington Confused 'Aginners' Putty In Protest Molders' Hands

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We are developing in the United States a professional group of demonstrators and protesters.

The other day, when some of us were sitting and talking at a neighbor's house in Fairfax County, Va., a young man dropped by who lives in a nearby subdivision. He's a recent high school graduate.

He said he'd been up in New York to visit Greenwich Village. He was enthralled by the beatniks and became one. Then he'd dropped over to another part of the city to take part in a protest put on by a left-wing group demonstrating against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

He had gone out a day or so later with a right-wing group in a protest demonstration, urging that Earl Warren, chief justice of the Supreme Court, be impeached for his "liberal" views.

He had been looking for a civil rights protest to join in—so he could demonstrate in favor of Negro rights—but apparently none was scheduled for the time he was there.

He said he was "lost" before he went to New York. But he had "found" himself with these way-out groups.

One minute this young man was talking about the civil rights of Negroes. The next minute he was talking about how they should be "kept in their place."

His main objection to Viet Nam was that he might be

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
"This toy doesn't kill. It does not scream or explode. It does not conquer, destroy or turn into a vampire. It is a toy train that just toots around and around . . ."

With ads like this announcing its new "Sane Toys for Healthy Kids" policy for toy production, the Lionel Toy Corp. is taking the first step toward disarming the toy shelves of American children of their weapon and monster-shooting arsenals.

Though it's not my custom to name business firms in this space, this toy firm's decision will so rejoice parents that I make an exception to inform as many as I can about it.

If our children have needed the killing, exploding, screaming, destroying toys, the need is past. There's now enough real killing, real exploding, real destruction proliferating in the grown-up world to feed that blood lust which dwells, we are told, in the depths of childhood's psyche.

In books like "High Wind in Jamaica" and "Lord of the Flies," fine and sensitive novelists insist that boys and girls are intrinsically unfeeling savages who revert into unspeakable barbarism the moment adult control is removed. If this is true—and I don't know whether it is—we are certainly reckless to buy them any more of these murdering and monstrous toys which encourage their alleged blood lust to release itself in violence.

If the children must feel impulses to kill, explode and conquer, toys no longer have to help them indulge these impulses. They can indulge them vicariously by watching television's reports of the tortured faces of the Vietnamese mothers holding bleeding babies in their arms. If they want to hear screams, television also makes those available by showing us screaming rioting people who come in all sizes and colors.

The Lionel people have sensed, I think, that too much violence ends by making children apathetic. I hope it crashes in on its release of the violence market to the manufacturers of the real guns, the real bombs, the real missiles and other electronic monsters. The children's weapon industry just can't compete with the actual lovely destruction now being wrought by the boom-boom toys so popular with their elders.

"EPIC OF GILGAMESH"

The Epic of Gilgamesh is one of the most important literary products of Babylonia. Known chiefly from fragments of tablets, some scholars consider it the oldest epic poem.

Roots and young stems of the burdock plant are both edible.

drafted and sent there. He didn't know what was going on. But he didn't want to fight.

What he is, is a professional "aginner." He's against anything handy that comes along. He was against his teachers when he was in high school. He is against the police when they object to his hot rodding. He's against anyone who objects to anything he does.

He is not one of the poor. He has his own car, furnished by his parents. He has ample spending money. He works when he wants to, doesn't work when he gets bored with the job.

Men and women like this are a growing group in the cities and suburbs. Many have little to do. They don't study up on the things they protest. They just go along.

They are the confused. Men with axes to grind scoop them up to protest whatever the organizers want protested.

They're like the hired guns of the Old West, except that they work for kicks.

In a very real sense these people are more dangerous even than Communists. There aren't many Communists in this country. They can be identified and watched. These confused "aginner" muddy the waters.

The confusion extends among members of the teachers who have backed teach-ins. Few of the experts on Asia, Viet Nam, communism or political science have appeared as sponsors of the teach-ins.

Studies indicate that of the 1,268 academicians listed as sponsors of the national teach-in in Washington, 172 were psychologists, 167 scientists and engineers, 107 sociologists, 153 professors of English or language.

Of the 15,000 political scientists teaching in American universities, only 65 were listed as sponsors of the national teach-in committee. Most of these were reported as "completely unknown juniors."

In some underdeveloped countries, protests by groups no better informed have caused the fall of governments.

There is a danger, in any country, that credence will be given to marchers who capture publicity, rather than to the great majority who quietly go about their work, and to the thousands who, without fanfare, volunteer for military service.

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Contrasting ideas cried out from the daily paper. One was the news release from the Defense Department, indicating that in Viet Nam there had been a battle and the American losses were light. The other was a local story, headed with two pictures and bringing the news that two men from our area had died.

We know what the tacticians mean when they talk of "light losses." They state that our side lost fewer than might have been lost; or fewer than the enemy. But, to the families of those two men, what is a "light loss?"

When we speak of "limited warfare," what does this mean to the man who is caught in the battle?

It is easy to excuse these semantic problems. Yet it is just this tendency to accept such words and ideas, that indicates a kind of erosion in our thinking and in our spiritual integrity.

Why take a stand against communism unless we defend each man's paramount worth in our thinking at home and in our public statements? Why propose to stand against these military aggressors unless we are willing to accept the principle that the individual is redeemable? To tolerate even the words which depersonalize the human being is to illustrate our dilemma.

Don Cameron Allen has stated, "Composite man, cross-section man, organization man, status seeking man are not here. It is still one of the merits of the humanities that they see man with all his virtues and weaknesses, including his first, middle and last names." That's a modern statement of the insistence of Jesus that even the fall of sparrow is known.

So our problem is more than a semantic confusion. Churches, communities and cities can reflect their belief concerning mankind in their words and acts. When an affluent city can tolerate civic immoralities, neighborhood blights or slum conditions, it is talking about "light losses." When we applaud our shiny new automobiles and ignore our antiquated facilities we engage in double-think. It's like saying losses are "light."

The real inching steps of human progress from the cave to this present moment have come at the moment when the dignity of the human being is really known and understood. From the old cry of Cain's conscience, "Am I my brother's keeper?" to the positive call of Jesus to men to love one another is the pilgrimage we must understand. We can't afford to tolerate any erosion of this, even in daily conversation.

So I protest to the Defense Department concerning "light losses." By the same token let every churchman search his own soul concerning his attitudes and acts, especially when he tries to excuse his tackling of these tough issues. John Donne said it long ago, "Each man's death diminishes me."

No loss is a light one!

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — At a recent meeting here, an organization of public officials from all levels of government voted 14 to 4 to recommend that states now without their own income tax give "careful consideration" to adopting one.

The group was the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The four dissenters included just one governor, Democrat John Dempsey of Connecticut.

Even though the approved recommendation was watered down from an original which called for "favorable" rather than "careful" consideration, the vote was a significant move in the states' struggle to meet rising revenue needs.

Last year at about this time, Washington seemed fairly excited over the proposal of economist Walter Heller, then presidential economic adviser, to turn back to the states a proportion of federal tax collections. It got nowhere.

The commission's new recommendation revives an older idea—that the federal government and the several states should more fully share the tax base rather than U.S. collections.

The commission thinks this idea needs a real prod. So, this time without dissent, it voted also to recommend U.S. tax law amendments which would allow taxpayers to take 40 per cent of their state and local income tax payments as a credit against their federal income tax liability.

Under existing state-local income tax laws, it is figured that this optional credit plan might cost the federal government an added $700 million in fiscal 1967.

If the prod became a reality and all states thereupon enacted adequate-yield income levies, it is estimated that the loss to the federal treasury would come to around $4.2 billion in fiscal 1968. This assumes that by then the states would be collecting $13 billion in annual personal income taxes instead of an estimated $4.8 billion if present policy continues.

Today a third of the 50 states have no such tax, and the list without the levy includes some of the nation's biggest and wealthiest—Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Another third of the states, while using an income tax, apply it at very low effective rates.

The federal government gets half its revenue from this source. By contrast, it accounts for just 15 per cent of state revenues and 8 per cent of combined state and local revenues. These levies probably come from about 20 million taxpayers in areas which exclude some of the country's highest income sections.

The extremely vocal enemies of the income tax very likely would say "well and good." But powerful arguments are being advanced for wider use of individual income taxes at the state level.

The big point is that this levy is the only one with any real growth potential, an element the states badly appear to need in their future tax plans.

State and local spending is not only rising faster than federal spending but is outstripping the gains in the nation's gross national product. The 135 per cent postwar hike in GNP has been over-matched in the same period by a 300 per cent increase in state-local general government outlays.

Members of the advisory intergovernmental group can foresee no let up in this disproportionate rise. Hence the overwhelming conclusion that many states will not long be able to continue their strained reliance upon property and sales taxes. There is wide belief these levies will have little future usefulness in meeting the expected upthrust of state-local expenditures.

It is argued, therefore, that the barnacle-encrusted debate in some states over the relative merits of sales vs. income taxes is now beside the point, that many states are in fact living on borrowed fiscal time and will desperately need every revenue source they can find in order to survive financially in the burdensome years ahead.

Dear Ann:

Saddled With "Spoiled Little Sister"

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7-year-old sister. Laura is spoiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it and she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to hawl—real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her. She's a young lady."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if

I last that long. Tell me what to do until then. —IN MISERY
Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones and little kids should not hit big ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privileges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13-year-old girl with a 7-year-old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that their kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep every night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later, they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own hold appropriate exercises in daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, of our Armed Forces in all "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?"

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in this bunch. Mine is. —HAD TO BE SHOWN

Dear Shown: Your son and Jeanette have beaten the odds and my hat is off to them.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please. —W. P.

Dear W. P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Editor:

Veterans' Day in November is considered a holiday in this state. It is a day on which we better to me than my own hold appropriate exercises in daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, of our Armed Forces in all "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?"

We are inclined to forget the My own daughters call only leave it to patriotic organizations. It seems every year we show our appreciation less by cheer up. Her son's older wife continuing business as usual on may be the best one in this day. Complete observance on this day seems a small price considering theirs.

Report On Herbicide Use In Illinois

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A 1964 survey control practices survey shows that Illinois farmers believe in giving weeds both barrels with chemical as well as cultural practices to solve their control problems, reported University of Illinois extension weed control specialist Ellery Knake and Hosea Harkness, formerly of the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service, at the American Society of Agronomy annual meeting here Thursday.

The survey showed that Illinois farmers used a rotary hoe or harrow on three-fourths of the corn and that 99 percent of the state's 9.5 million acres of corn was row-cultivated an average of two times. The use of the rotary hoe increased and the number of row cultivations decreased as the size of farm increased, Knake reported.

Cultivation practices on the state's 5.9 million acres of soybeans were similar. Herbicides were used on corn and soybeans by 64 percent of the operators, or on 91,000 farms. Post-emergence herbicides were used on 40 percent of the corn acreage and pre-emergence on 27 percent. Pre-emergence herbicides were used on 24 percent of the soybean acreage.

On farms of fewer than 100 acres, only 34 percent of the operators used herbicides, while 86 percent of those operating 500 acres or more used them. About 14 percent of the corn and soybean acreage was band-treated with granules, while about 9 percent of the acreage was band-sprayed.

Results with pre-emergence sprays on corn were reported as good by 39 percent, fair by 37 percent and poor by 24 percent. Post-emergence applications of 2, 4-D on corn were reported as good by 65 percent, fair by 32 percent and poor by 3 percent. Effectiveness of herbicides — primarily pre-emergence — on soybeans was reported good by 35 percent, fair by 39 percent and poor by 26 percent.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

CATTLE ON FEED MEANS MORE BEEF

The quarterly report of Cattle on Feed contained important news for both cattlemen and consumers. It showed that farmers would be marketing a large supply of fat cattle during this fall and winter.

The report was prepared by the USDA and released at mid-October. It contained basic information about the number, kinds and weights of cattle being fattened for market in 32 major feeding states at the first of October. At that time farmers were fattening 7,359,000 head of cattle and calves, 7 percent more than the year before.

Most of the increase was in cattle that will be marketed from November 1 to about March 1. Point 1: About three-fourths of the increase in cattle on feed was heifers. Heifers are marketed of younger ages and lighter weights than steers. The total number of heifers on feed was 2,212,000, up 18 percent from last year, while the number of steers was up only 2 percent.

Point 2: Most of the increase in the number of heifers consisted of animals weighing 500 to 900 pounds. Heifers weighing 700 to 900 pounds totaled 978,000 head, 24 percent more than the year before. A large share of them will be coming to market in November, December and January.

Heifers weighing 500 to 700 pounds numbered 718,000 head, 22 percent more than last year. Most of them will make beef during the winter — January, February and March.

Point 3: There was also an increase in the number of steers nearing market weights. Those weighing 900 to 1,100 pounds totaled 1,898,000 head, 7 percent more than the year before. Steers weighing 700 to 900 pounds numbered 1,816,000 head, 6 percent more than in the previous year. Most of these cattle will be sold during the next five months.

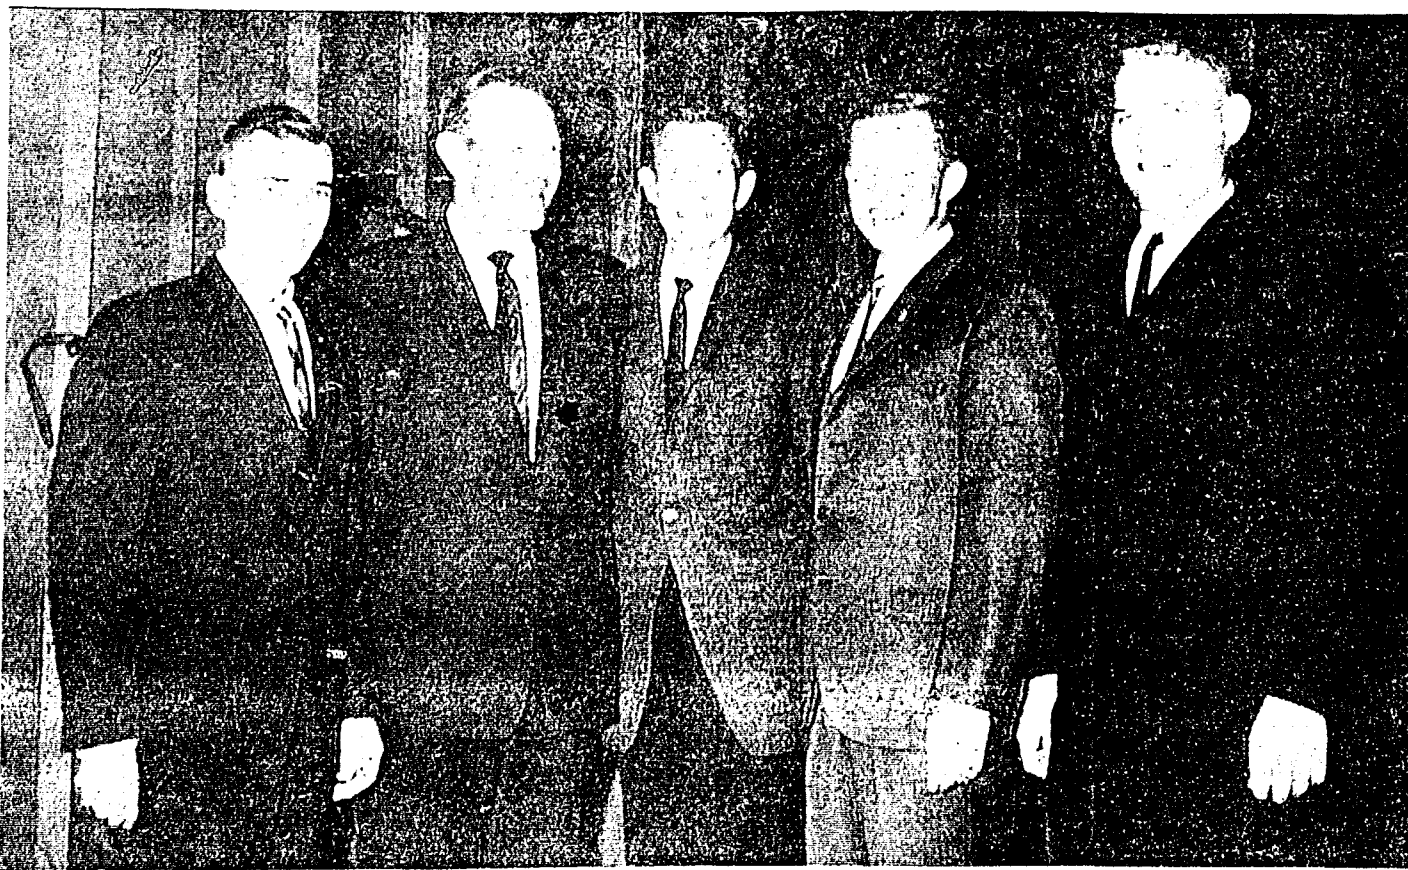

Point 4: When we add the number of steers weighing 700 to 1,100 pounds to the number of heifers weighing 500 to 900 pounds, we get a total of 5,410,000 head. This number is 10 percent more than that for a year earlier. It suggests that marketings of fed cattle will show a somewhat similar increase above 1964 levels during the next few months.

Marketing Intentions. There are some indications that farmers may feed their cattle to heavier weights this year than they did last year. Although they have about 9 percent more cattle that will reach market weights this quarter, they report plans to sell only 5 percent more than they sold last year.

Illinois and Midwest. Illinois farmers reported 425,000 cattle and calves on feed October 1. This number is an increase of 9 percent over 1964. Iowa farmers also reported 9 percent more cattle on feed. The 12 North Central States reported 4,242,000 cattle in feedlots, 5 percent more than a year ago. Western States. The big feedlots in California reported 1,068,000 cattle on feed, 9 percent more than last year. Colorado was feeding 460,000, up 13 percent. The 11 western states reported a total of 2,243,000 head on feed, 9 percent more than a year earlier.

Study Livestock Sales, Processing

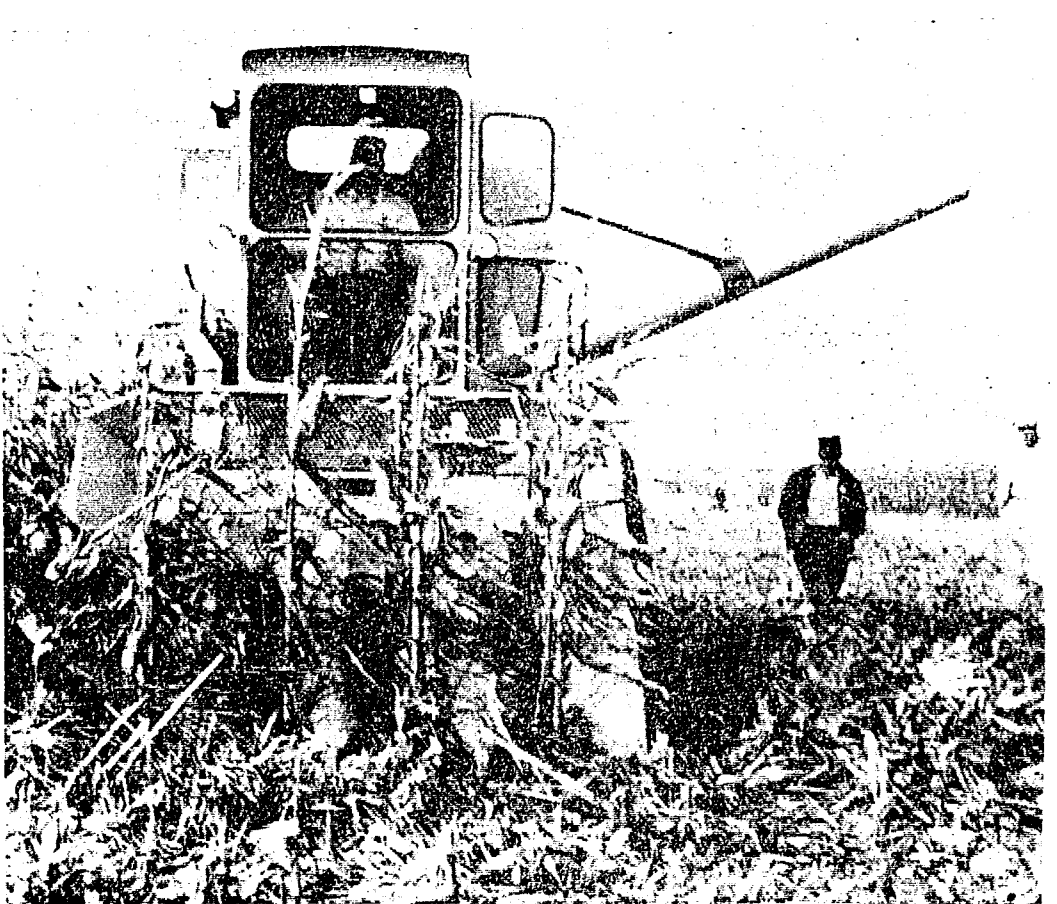

Recently farm advisers from 18 western Illinois counties attended a two-day session on livestock marketing and processing at National Stock Yards and Swift & Co. at National Stock Yards, Ill. The school was headed by Dr. Brice Kirtley, U.I. Extension specialist in agricultural marketing.

On the program was a tour of the yards, including demonstrations of sorting and grading hogs, cattle and sheep, a thorough inspection of a modern packing plant, and observing, at first hand, the actual competition between salesmen and buyers in the trading of livestock at a large terminal market.

Feature of the two-day meeting was a dinner at Augustine's restaurant on Monday evening, where after brief remarks by Gilbert Novotny, president of the yards association, and H. P. Ripley, manager of Swift, the meeting was mainly a question and answer session.

No Cultivation; Big Corn Crop

An estimated 176 bushels per acre of dry unshelled corn was produced in a unique demonstration of corn planted in 20-inch rows this year at the Farm Progress Show near Van Horne, Iowa.

The special 1.7-acre plot at this "World's Fair of Agriculture" was a joint venture by Allied Chemical Corp., Allis-Chalmers and DeKalb to demonstrate narrow-row production. The field was located on the host farm of William (Bill) Fry, about 20 miles west of Cedar Rapids.

"While 176 bushels per acre is a good yield in any grower's book, the real story is in how little work was required to get it," Fry said.

Last April 30, the plot was treated with 100 pounds of nitrogen, 50 pounds of phosphate and 100 pounds of potash. This was plowed down May 3. Discing on May 6 included a starter fertilizer which supplied 24 pounds of nitrogen, 72 pounds of phosphate and 24 pounds of potash per acre. Mixed with the liquid was 1 pound per acre of .25 percent zinc and 1 pound per acre of .25 percent parathion for rootworm control.

The tractor-mounted 4-row planter was set to give a stand of corn plant 12 inches apart in each row. Thus each corn plant had a 12-inch by 20-inch space to grow in. The field population figured about 22,000 plants per acre.

By using this new "feed and weed" practice in the narrow-row plot, it was not necessary to touch the field again until the combine equipped with a new narrow-row picker head harvested the corn during the Farm Progress Show, Sept. 21-23.

Officials in charge of the demonstration point out that in addition to saving time and work, 20-inch rows offer growers a number of other advantages. Soil moisture is saved in the narrow rows by earlier complete shading of the ground by corn leaves. Previous tests have shown that surface soil in 20-inch rows stayed moist when ground between wide rows was hoe pulled behind the disk and spray boom incorporated the mixture into the soil.

The corn, planted on the same day, was a short stalk, three-way cross hybrid adapted to high-population narrow-row planting. Applied in the same trip was 400 pounds of liquid starter fertilizer which supplied 24 pounds of nitrogen, 72 pounds of phosphate and 24 pounds of potash per acre. Mixed with the liquid was 1 pound per acre of .25 percent zinc and 1 pound per acre of .25 percent parathion for rootworm control.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Each year fires cause losses in the millions of dollars on farms — and in towns and cities too. A house burning in the winter always seems especially tragic.

Let's check out the farmstead for fire hazards. Look over the house. Start at the top and work down — check the chimney for cracks, clean the trash out of the attic, check electric plugs and cords for signs of wear. Don't run electric cords under rugs. Check your fuse box — Do you have extras? Check heating system, be sure pipes are away from flammable materials. Are L. P. gas containers five feet from basement windows, set on a firm foundation and do they have a shut-off outside the building?

Check outbuildings. Do they have fused safety switches for the electric entrance? Light bulbs should be protected. Be particularly careful of heat lamps.

Tractors should not be used or stored in buildings where hay and straw are stored. Do not fill a gasoline tank while the engine is running.

Remember: Keep a ladder available which is long enough to reach the eaves of your highest building. Do not smoke in bed.

Keep a fire extinguisher in the kitchen, in other buildings, on tractor, combine and in car and truck.

Develop a family plan in case of fire. Find the reason for a blown fuse, do not replace with a larger size.

Keep your buildings protected from lightning. Many farm and rural fires are caused by lightning.

If you want to prevent fires you will always be on the alert — But — if you don't care, fires may start.

Now You Should . . . Water shrubs, trees; evergreens particularly.

... Clean up inside and out. ... Get your mud and snow tires. ... Watch high school football — there won't be many more games this season. ... Make doors and windows weather-tight. ... Make out your Christmas list. ... Read.

Changed your hot air furnace filters lately? Clean filters make for a more pleasant, healthy home and a more efficient heating system.

If you're going to make some Christmas presents it's later than you think. Consider giving friends or relatives something to eat for Christmas. Let them know the farm still produces fine food. Possibilities: Ham, apples, nuts, frozen beef, honey, eggs, bread, cream, potatoes, chickens, and anything from the kitchen. Food is a good buy.

Take a lesson from the whale. The only time he gets harpooned is when he comes up to spout.

Feeder Calves Bring 80c, A New Record

A record price of 80 cents a pound was paid for five Hereford steer calves, part of the grand champion load of 1964. Myron F. Carlson & Son of Lodgepole, Neb., swept the Angus championship of the show with both the first and second place pens of steer calves. Their top load averaged $48.60 and weighed an average of 451 lbs.

The state of Montana led in entries with more than 3,000 cattle exhibited from that state. The top load of heifer calves was exhibited by George McCafferty of Belt, Mont. His brother, Robert, showed the champion load of yearling steers. Camp Bros. of Big Timber, Mont., showed the top yearling heifers.

More than 6,000 calves and yearlings were on hand for the 21st annual show and sale sponsored by the Chicago Stock Yards.

The show was judged by two Iowa men and three from Illinois, including Harry G. Russell of the U.I. animal science department.

ESCALATING FARM LAND PRICES!

Latest U.S.D.A. report on farm land prices was for the year ending last March 1 showing a 6 per cent increase for the previous 12 months. Total value of farm real estate exceeded 159 billion at that time. The average per farm figured out to $2,200, that's about 15% higher than 10 years ago.

A rural economist has this to say about land prices.

"Looking to the future there is every reason to believe that present values are low compared to 1975 and beyond. Land area is fixed and population pressure on existing areas will increase rapidly. Also as a nation we are experiencing progressive inflation with the result that in the future it will take more dollars to buy an acre of land or just about anything else. If you are in the market to buy land, don't wait for prices to come down — they won't."

From The Corn Crib!

Mark Twain was visiting Whistler's studio one time and wanted to inspect one of the canvases that Whistler hadn't quite finished. As he drew near the picture, Twain moved his hand near a cloud effect and, as if to rub it out, murmured, "A lovely picture except for this cloud. If I were you, I'd do away with it." Whistler protested vehemently. "Gad, sir!" he exclaimed. "Do be careful there. Don't you see the paint is not yet dry?" "Oh, that's all right," replied Twain nonchalantly. "I'm wearing gloves."

Across the Fields and Furrows is brought to you daily at 12:25 P.M. on WLDS 1180 on your dial by the people at Elliott State Bank.

ASK ME

Q. What is meant by sun spots?

A. Sunspots are areas of giant storms on the sun. In contrast with the surrounding great brilliance of the sun, they have a darkish look and so are called "spots."

Q. Why can we get AM radio directly from a greater distance than we get FM radio or TV?

A. AM radio waves bounce back from the ionosphere, an electrically charged layer of air at the top of earth's envelope of atmosphere. FM waves and TV waves, however, go straight out from their source and right through the atmosphere. The curve of the earth limits the distance at which they can be received without being re-broadcast.

Q. Da weather satellites really do forecasts?

A. Indeed they do. Early warnings of hurricanes for example have enabled residents to leave their threatened areas and so have resulted in a great saving of lives. Future weather watchers will do an even more accurate piece of work.

If you have a question send it to Junior Page Editor, Jacksonville Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill. and it will be answered in this column.

A Smarty Needs Help

By Mary Pence Claywell

Now a "clever" guy is one thing, But a "Smarty" is another . . . Most folk admire the first one. And most abhor . . . the other: 'Tis "sad" to see a "Smarty," He lacks . . . we must admit, A little bit of "common sense," Sometimes . . . and tries to hide it;

He thinks he is quite funny, He should "excuse" that too, Nor "react," for it's silly, And not . . . the thing to do: Lord, help us to be tolerant, And give us courage, then, To "help" us . . . "help" the "smarty,"

In place of "joining" him: He often, needs our "pity," Feels "outside," in his heart, And tries to gain "attention," At times . . . by acting "smart!"

Let's Go Birding

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The great American Elm which had shaded the home during the summer and had etched the sky with its spreading vase of bare branches in the winter was dead. For at least a century it had been a retreat for hot tired birds, a look-out for feeding birds, or even a choir loft for the singing birds. Rarely was this tree free from a bird visitor.

But this gigantic tree, like most of the elms along the streets, had died; it had rapidly dropped its yellowing leaves early in the summer, long before the proper time of shedding them. This formerly green majestic tree stood stark against the hot summer sky.

We had already employed tree cutters to saw it down, limb by limb; but rain and broken equipment had delayed this harrowing process. At first we were irritable, defiant, and then resigned to the uncertainties of its removal.

Still Birds' Home Autumn arrived, and we became aware of something that was going on: the dead elm was still being used by birds, and we were glad that it still stood. Talkative Black-capped Chickadees were bouncing among the dark stiff twigs, examining crevices for some tasty morsels. Downy Woodpeckers took their turns hitching their way up the trunk, hammering out some bit of food. Now and then a Blue Jay slid in and wedged a sunflower seed in the crack of the dried bark, a thrifty Jay providing for winter. Inquisitive English Sparrows flew in and out, wondering what was really going on.

The most frequent visitors were Robins. Near the Elm stood a Sieboldi Crabapple Tree filled with tiny red apples.

The Robins, a dozen at a time, feasted upon this fruit. There they perched, brick-red breasts matching the red cheeks of the small apples, fencing with the dangling fruits, and succeeding in yanking off the ripest ones and automatically gulping them down.

Autumn Carols At times they flew to the nearby dead Elm and occasionally sang their carols, softened and shortened by autumn. Were we imagining too much? These songs also sounded sad.

Were the Robins warbling a farewell to the tree that had served them so faithfully so many years? Did they know that this great American Elm would be gone next spring, next summer, and next fall?

We, indeed, realized, as many other citizens of Jacksonville have too, that it and dozens of other elms were dead and dying. We continually heard the chewing saws and crashing trees.

We regretted that the birds would find their favorite haunts empty and could do no more than hope that they would make the remaining trees favorite shelters. And we promised the Blue Jays more sunflower seeds, and all the birds restored trees.

Sculptured female figures which serve as supports in some buildings are known as caryatides.

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Now that Gemini 6 has been scrubbed because the Agena B target vehicle failed to make it into orbit American astronauts will have to wait for Gemini 8 to get their first attempt at rendezvous with another satellite in orbit. Gemini 7, which will use Gemini 6's unused Titan II booster, is scheduled for a marathon 14 day endurance trial in space.

Gemini 10 and 11 are also scheduled for space rendezvous attempts. On Gemini 9 and 12 the astronauts will be going on 52 minute space walks. For these walks they will wear an Astronaut Maneuvering Unit (AMU) which is actually a self contained spacecraft in the form of a backpack. The details of this backpack were described in a paper given to a meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) in St. Louis on October 13 by Mr. W. C. McMillian of Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc. the manufacturers of the backpack.

Life In Space The backpack provides the astronaut with all the necessities of life in space including eight small hydrogen peroxide steering jets. However, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) astronauts will also use an umbilical line similar to the one Mayor White used on his famous walk. This will give added safety in case something goes wrong with the backpack or if the astronaut overstays the time allotted by the backpack's supplies.

The backpack is also equipped with its own warning device. If anything goes wrong a light flashes in the control unit on the astronaut's chest and a beeping tone sounds in his earphones. An added safety factor is provided by the Gemini spacecraft which can maneuver alongside the astronaut if he needs help. Of course the backpack, like the Gemini itself, is provided with backup systems in case the main ones fail.

pressurized cabin in the adapter section at the aft end of the spacecraft. When the time comes for the space walk one of the astronauts, wearing a small chest pack attached to the umbilical line, will open the hatch, climb out and make his way to the back of the spacecraft.

When he arrives he will brace himself in a trapeze-like hand and foot bar, pull on the backpack and plug in into the chest pack. With the backpack on he will push off into space day's work out side the spacecraft. After familiarizing himself with his equipment he will maneuver out to the limits of his 200 foot umbilical line.

During this maneuvering he will attempt to perform some useful work in space. On one of the Gemini flights, probably Gemini 12, and astronaut may attempt to pluck some "feathers" from the winged Pegasus III meteor detection satellite. After his tasks have been completed the astronaut will return to the Gemini spacecraft and leave the backpack behind in space.

Special Thanksgiving

By John Rankin

The light from the crackling logs in the open fireplace flickered through the window of the remote little cabin and great clouds of white smoke curled lazily upward and was soon lost in the gray, hazy-like dawn of a November day. There was a hint of snow in the air and in the stillness of the valley. And even the low-hanging clouds that seemed to dip down to the very peak of the mountains warned of an impending storm.

Inside the cabin 12-year-old Lynn Hickman awakened with a start when he felt the cold nose of Ringo, his big black and white collie nudging him gently in the face and he reached out to give the big dog a friendly pat on the head.

"All right, boy, I'll get up," he muttered drowsily. Then he swung himself to a sitting position on the side of the bunk and peered through the dim light of the open fire at Uncle Luke on his makeshift bed across the room.

"Guess he's still asleep," Lynn muttered softly. Then he hustled into his clothes and with Ringo at his heels he quietly left the room with a battered water bucket and headed for a spring at the foot of the hill.

Uncle Luke, a dark, tall and gangling man about fifty was up putting fresh logs on the fire when they returned from the spring.

"Thought you'd want to sleep late so we didn't wake you," Lynn said thoughtfully as he put the bucket of water on an old-fashioned table near the door. "What got you up so early anyway? Going to round up the sheep today, maybe?"

Important Day

The veteran hillman's dark eyes had a serious look as he turned from the fire. "You know what tomorrow is, and what the day means to us, son?" he asked with feeling.

Lynn was thoughtful a moment and a puzzled look showed on his boyish features. "Yeah, sure, Uncle Luke, it's Thursday. Why?"

"It's Thanksgiving, son. And we're going to offer our thanks in that little church back in the hills," Uncle Luke nodded slowly. "Then we'll have turkey and pumpkin pie and all the trimmings just like your aunt Sally used to fix up. Of course it won't be the same but . . ."

Lynn looked up at the tall backwoodsman with misgiving. "Guess we can make it to church all right, Uncle Luke, but don't see how we'll manage the turkey and things when we're back here miles from nowhere and no stores or nothing."

THE WIND

The wind in the shutters, The wind at my door, As I lay in my bed, It blows like never before.

The wind all around me, As it whines like a dog, Probably I, Should be sleeping like a log.

Suddenly the shutters, Tear open with a crash, I slam them closed, And my fingers I almost smash.

The wind in the shutters, The wind at my door, Are not so loud, As before.

THE CATERPILLAR

Once there was a little caterpillar. Who wouldn't mind his mother; When she told him to go to bed, He knocked her in the head;

I shall climb this grass stem high, In hopes he should reach the sky; When he reached the top, He exclaimed how my ears do pop;

I shall leave this horrid place, Before I get eaten up; But along came a spider And that was the end of poor he.

LEAVES FALLING

The leaves are falling, Yes they are; Yellow, orange, and red; The leaves are falling, How pretty they are to see;

The leaves are falling, Yes they are In piles stacked high; The leaves are falling, For people to rake and rake;

The leaves are falling, Yes they are The trees will be bare; The leaves are falling, For winter soon to come;

The snow is falling, Yes it is, Snow is hiding those leaves; The snow is falling, Those pretty leaves are gone.

WHIRLPOOL WONDER

Beside the green pastures There lies a brook With water running smoothly Down, down, through the bridge

You see it coming closer and closer Then it becomes a whirlpool You wonder how it turns With spinning water gushing around

It looks like a spinning top With water instead of plastic It looks so becoming so graceful and beautiful I dive into the silly whirlpool

Then down, down I went Gasp, gasp I was drowning I knew how stupid I was I will always wonder about whirlpools.

FALL LEAVES

Look at those leaves Come falling down. Like a storm at night When you go into town. They feel like raindrops Falling from the sky. But they are red and yellow It's not a lie.

I know how anxious You are to see, The land of "The falling leaves. So come along with me And we shall fly, To the falling leaves From way up high.

BIG DREAM

I went fishing one day I fished in a bay I caught a big fish Boy, was I gay

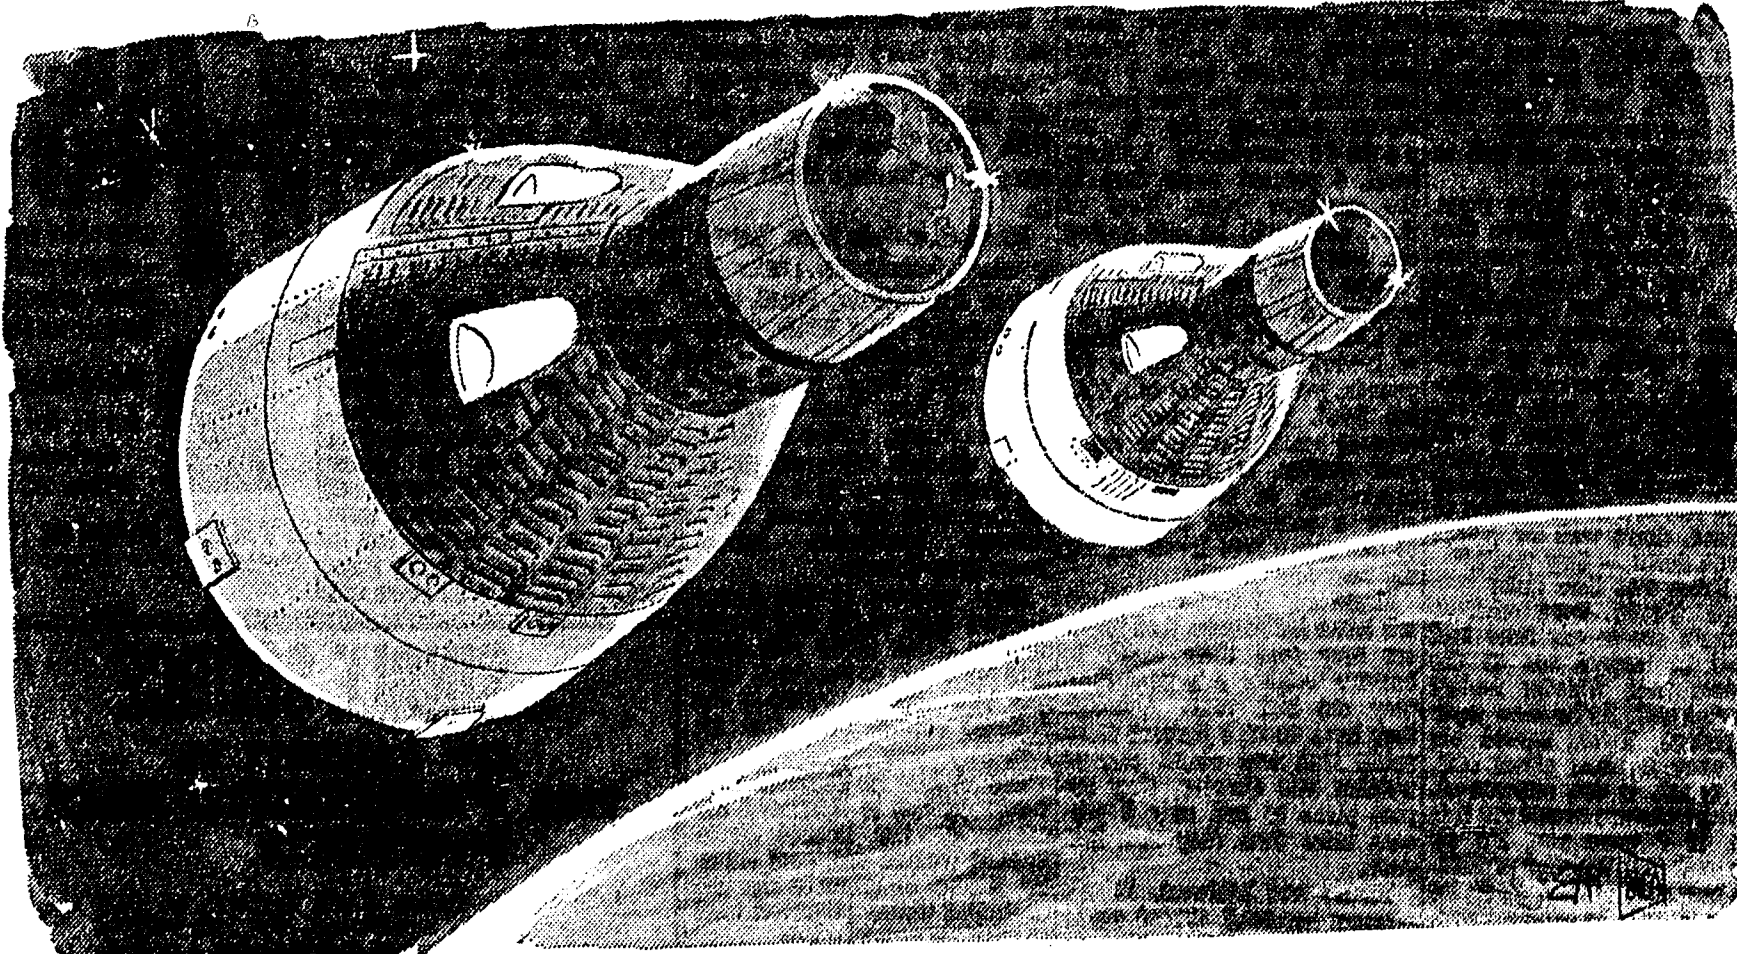

It was as big as my boat Gosh, what a load I took it home But it ran away

I told my mother She didn't believe me So I didn't bother her And went to my room I didn't believe myself But just then I woke up I found it was all a dream Just my luck

DOUBLE DATE, BY GEMINI!—Sketch above is an artist's conception of a successful climax to the unprecedented rendezvous in space planned for four astronauts in the Gemini-7 and Gemini-6 spacecraft. Gemini-7, carrying astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, will blast off from Cape Kennedy first and go into orbit for a 14-day endurance flight that would crack all manned space flight duration records. Seven or eight days later, Gemini-6, whose rendezvous and docking flight was scrubbed when its target Agena disappeared, would go into orbit to pursue and rendezvous with its mate, possibly as close as 100 feet. Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford will again be the astronauts. For two days, the duo will orbit in tandem, "like two cars speeding side-by-side down a superhighway without smashing fenders." The crews may be able to see each other through the spacecraft windows and will take photographs and talk by radio.

Gollier's Running Paces Jacks' Edge

By BUFORD GREEN

Harry Gollier ran wild, Friday night, in leading the Jacksonville Crimsos to their third victory of the football season, an impressive 17-6 non-conference triumph over the Canton Little Giants.

Gollier, a junior fullback, chalked up his finest offensive game of the year. "The Horse" legged the ball for 180 yards on 19 carries, scoring the two JHS touchdowns, one an electrifying 66-yard scamper that broke the game wide open.

Jacksonville racked up its best rushing totals of the year in the game, snapping out of an offensive slump that left them scoreless in their last two outings before Friday night.

Gollier ground out 81 yards in the first, half sparking a JHS offense that had been dead up until midway in the second period. He personally led an 84-yard scoring drive, picking up 68 of those yards in eight tries.

The victory moves Jacksonville's season record to 3-1-1 and leaves them with a shot at gaining a 500 season with a win over Hannibal here next week. Canton drops to a 2-6 record on the campaign.

Besides his running, Gollier added another big boost to the JHS cause with his fine punting. He averaged 43.5 yards on four boots, his kicking dominating the first quarter.

Gollier got off a 59-yarder early in the quarter, putting Canton in a hole at their own one. Later in the period he got off a 36-yarder, again putting it out on the Canton one.

Canton made it into JHS ground only once in the opening quarter, as a result of a fumble recovery at the Crimsos 46. JHS played most of the opening 12 minutes in Canton territory, but was unable to pick up a first down.

Meredosia Rally In Final Frame Downs Virginia

MEREDOSIA — Meredosia scored twice in the fourth quarter to overcome a one-TD deficit and handed Virginia a 21-13 PMSC conference loss. The win moves "Dosh out of the conference basement.

Virginia opened scoring in the game when Dave Mefford legged the ball 19 yards to yard-line in the opening 12 minutes. Steve Graves passed to Bill Middleton for the point after.

Meredosia tied the count at halftime when Tom Newman broke loose on a 29-yard scoring gallop, capping an 80-yard march. Stan Summers legged the PAT.

Virginia took the lead again in the third period when Graves connected with Nyle Masten on a 20-yard scoring toss, but the PAT attempt failed.

Meredosia took the lead for good in the final stanza when Jay Surratt set up a score by intercepting a Graves' pass on the "Dosh 30. The Indians marched from there to the one from where quarterback John Kuzmaner lunged over. Summers ran the PAT that gave Meredosia the lead. An insurance tally was added when Brad Lanier scored from three yards out with three seconds left in the game. Lanier also ran the extra point. The final TD was set up by a Virginia fumble at midfield.

The winners led on first downs 14-9, in rushing yardage 147-140 and on passing yardage 78-50. Tim Surratt caught all five Meredosia completions. Newman ground out 79 yards for the winners, with Lanier adding 56 more.

MURAKAMI'S UNDECIDED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Masanori Murakami, only Japanese ever to play major league baseball in the United States, plans to return home Sunday, the San Francisco Giants announced Friday.

The National League club said the 21-year-old southpaw reliever still was undecided about where he'd pitch in 1966. He can choose between the Giants and the Nankai Hawks of Osaka by agreement between the two clubs.

The newspaper said it also had learned that Sullivan will move into the A's front office. Dark joined the Athletics last Aug. 27 as an administrative assistant to owner Charles O. Finley.

Big League Bosses Have Risky Job

NEW YORK (AP) — The resignation of Al Lopez as field leader of the Chicago White Sox on Thursday points up the fact that big league baseball managing is more of a risk than a romp.

Lopez had been managing major league teams for 15 consecutive seasons, six in Cleveland and the last nine in Chicago. This was longer than any current pilot in either the National or American League.

The new leader is Walt Alston, who's directed the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles for the past 12 years. In fact, in point of service with one club, Alston held a three-year edge over Lopez.

There's a sharp drop to the runner-up. He's Gene Mauch, who has managed the Philadelphia Phillies the past six years. Then come Bill Rigney of the Angels, Los Angeles and California, five years, and Sam Mele, four seasons at the helm of the Minnesota Twins.

Bobby Bragan of Braves, Chuck Dressen of Detroit, Gil Hodges of Washington and Birdie Tebbetts, Cleveland, each has spent three years with his current team while Hank Bauer has managed Baltimore for two seasons.

Those with only a single year of service with their present clubs are Herman Franks of San Francisco, Luman Harris of Houston, Red Schoendienst of St. Louis, Harry Walker of Pittsburgh, Johnny Keane of the New York Yankees, Haywood Sullivan of Kansas City and Billy Herman of Boston.

Since the close of last season, Don Heffner has replaced Dick Sisler at Cincinnati while Leo Durocher was named manager of the Chicago Cubs.

No replacement has been named for Lopez nor for Casey Stengel, who retired after 25 years as a big league pilot, including the last four with the New York Mets.

Alston, 53 years old, has led the Dodgers to five National League pennants and four world championships. He's brought them home second three times and third, fourth, sixth and seventh once each.

Brown County, Saukees Tie 6-6

MT. STERLING — Brown County and Pittsfield fought to a 6-6 Midwest conference deadlock here Friday night, with the hosts pushing across a fourth-period score to earn the tie.

The hosts got on the scoreboard when they marched from their own 36 to score on Dennis Fetch's two-yard plunge.

Brown County got another shot when they recovered a Pittsfield fumble and marched to the Saukee ten before fumbling the ball back.

The tie leaves Brown County with a 5-2-1 overall mark, 2-1-1 in the conference. Pittsfield is now 1-3-3 on the year and 1-1-1 in the Midwest. Both Pittsfield and Brown County still have a chance to tie for the top should Pittsfield knock off Mendon next week.

Curtis, Richardson Spark Tiger Margin

Danny Curtis returned two intercepted passes for touchdowns in the fourth quarter, carrying the fired-up ISD Tigers to a 26-13 PMSC surprise over Triopia, Friday afternoon at the ISD field.

The Tigers handed Triopia its first conference loss of the year in the upset, and left Porta with a chance to grab a share of the top honors.

Curtis' thefts broke a 13-13 deadlock, and came within a few seconds of each other, completely overwhelming the Trojan outfit. While Curtis and Ray Richardson handled the offensive chores with plenty to spare, the Tiger defense rose to its greatest height of the year.

The mighty Trojan ground game was limited to only 38 yards for the game, and only five first downs. Triopia, with quarterback Jim Morrison throwing, was able to move only in the air, accounting for 107 yards there.

Curtis, probably playing his best game ever, chewed up 89 yards on 12 carries, while Richardson carried 12 times for 61 yards. Both scored two touchdowns.

The win pushes ISD over the 500 mark for the year with a 4-3-1 record, 3-1-1 in the PMSC. Triopia drops to 6-2, 5-1 in the conference. A Porta victory over Routh next week would throw the conference into a two-way tie.

Both spirited groups were called for numerous penalties, 95 yards being walked off on ISD and 87 on Triopia.

The first time ISD got the ball they went in to score. The Tigers got the ball on the Trojan 13 after a short punt and a good runback by Curtis. Terry Story carried to the nine and Richardson lunged over from there.

Trojans Tie Game
A 20-yard pass from Morrison to halfback Bill Meier put Triopia in position for their initial score, in the second period. Meier promptly added 13 more yards on a double reverse to the 38 and two plays later Morrison hit Harlan Fricke for 35 yards to the three. From there Morrison made it across to tie the game at 6-6.

The first time Triopia got the ball in the second half they went in to score. The big break of the drive, which started on the ISD 32 after a short punt of only 17 yards, was a 15-yard walkoff against the Tigers after they had held Triopia to no gain on three running plays.

On the first play after the penalty Morrison hurled to Meiers for a 16-yard touchdown. A Morrison pass to Jim Paul added the PAT and a 13-6 difference.

ISD mounted a 62-yard march on their next series, but bogged down at the Triopia ten. The Tigers held Triopia on a running attempt and two incompleted passes, aided by a five-yard penalty on the visitors.

Richardson hauled in the Triopia punt at the Trojan 40, and behind excellent blocking, scampered all the way for the second Tiger score. Harry Bloomgreen ran the PAT over to tie the game.

Early in the final 12 minutes Curtis picked off his first interception at midfield and broke loose down the sideline for the go-ahead score.

Two plays later Curtis again turned the trick, this time intercepting at his own 35 and returning it 65 yards down the opposite sideline. Terry Story passed to Ron Nuzzo for the PAT and the 26-13 final.

Curtis broke loose again from scrimmage late in the game, carrying 28 yards before stepping out of bounds with no one in front of him at the 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clemens

Billie R. Brown Bride In Alaska

A former Jacksonville girl, Miss Billie Rae Brown of Anchorage, Alaska, and Samuel Clemens, also of that city, were united in marriage October 16th.

The ceremony was solemnized at the American Baptist church in Anchorage with the Reverend Clair Popp performing the double ring ceremony. Miss Shelia Peters was at the organ. White carnations and tapers were used at the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Brown, 114 City Place in Jacksonville and the groom is the son of Mrs. James Richards of Hammon, New Jersey.

Miss Pamela Clemens and David Clemens, daughter and son of the groom, attended the couple. Clifford Daniel and Windel Hyllon seated guests.

Miss Clemens wore a peacock blue crepe and satin gown with matching slippers. A pastel blue net and cabbage rose headdress completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bride wore a full length wedding gown of white nylon fashioned with a brush train and featuring bead embroidered lace cuffs on the three-quarter sleeves. A double ring headpiece held her short madonna veil. She carried a white orchid with a white Bible. The bride was given in marriage by Dr. Karl M. Bowman of Anchorage.

A reception was held in the parlors of the church following the evening ceremony. Assisting with courtesies were Annette Cole, Shirley Schoenberger, Mary Lou Fairchild, Marilyn Markowski, Norma Hyllon and Bea Peters.

After a wedding trip to Seward, Alaska the newlyweds took up residence at 3629 Williams street in Anchorage. The bride, a resident of Anchorage the past year, attended MacMurray College in this city. She is employed at the Alaska Psychiatric Institute. The groom, who has lived in the northern city for the past two years, is employed by the J.C. Penney company.

Arenzville Church Family Night To Be Dec. 9th

ARENZVILLE—The quarterly meeting of Lutheran Church Women was held at St. Peter's Lutheran church parish hall Oct. 28 with 24 members attending. Mrs. Russell Nordsiek presided at the business session.

It was announced that the annual Family Night will be held on Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the parish hall. Mrs. Oliver Meyer, Mrs. Robert Brasell, and Mrs. George Bischoff were appointed to the program committee, and Mrs. Elsie Winkelman, Mrs. Dean Nordsiek, and Mrs. Edward Hackman will be in charge of refreshments.

It was reported that five LCW members and Pastor Bischoff had attended the LCW Springfield Fall Assembly at St. John's Lutheran church in Springfield on Oct. 12.

A budget of $760 was adopted for the year 1966.

Mrs. Charles Hendrick, chairman of the Nominating committee, presented a slate of officers which was subsequently elected to serve as the Executive committee for the local LCW for 1966. The new officers are: president, Mrs. Don Meyer; vice-president, Mrs. George Musch; secretary, Mrs. Dean Nordsiek; faith and life chairman, Mrs. Earl Hackman; outreach and fellowship chairman, Miss Ada Winkelman.

Mrs. Waldron Paul introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Richard Jensen of Chicago, who led the devotions and told of the work being done at Trinity Lutheran church which her husband serves as pastor. The church is located in a Spanish speaking neighborhood within a mile of downtown Chicago. Assisting Pastor Jensen is a Spanish speaking pastor from Puerto Rico. Mrs. Jensen also showed slides which pictured the area and people which the church serves.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Oliver Meyer and Mrs. Don Meyer.

NO NATURAL LOOK, THIS

The make-up for moderns designed by one cosmetic firm shows a dramatic change from a natural look. The focus is on smoky, smoldering eyes, and pale skin with a beige-ivory make-up base. The lips are rounded and ripe with brilliant shades of pink, red and rose.

KEEP MITTENS CLEAN

Orlon pile mittens for winter are so fluffy that they even look warm. Since the surface fluff acts as insulation to hold in heat, such mittens should be sudsed out often to prevent matting of the pile by soil.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal:
MUNIFICENT GIFT — Dr. McFarland, of the Insane Hospital, has generously contributed to the President of the Town Council, for the use of the poor of this city, THREE HUNDRED BUSHELS OF POTATOES. This is characteristic of the Doctor's known benevolence, and we trust his example may be followed by others who are able to give, and thus place the poor of our city out of the reach of want during the coming winter. Blessed are they that give.

MR. PVT. JENKINS, well known by our citizens as for many years the gentlemanly and efficient prescriptionist in the Drug Store of Mr. Hockenbush, is now employed by Campbell, Fisher & Hurst, in their new drug store on the east side of the square. Mr. Jenkins' old friends will no doubt be glad to see him at his old stand.

THE ELECTION — At this moment we have not the official vote of Morgan County, which we hoped to get before going to press, but unofficial returns make it certain that Capt. Whitlock is elected Judge of the County Court over S. S. Duncan, by about thirty majority, while the balance of the Democratic ticket is elected by majorities ranging from ten to thirty.

GLORY ENOUGH — While Morgan County lags behind, we are surrounded by Union victories. Scott, Sangamon, old Adams, Menard, Logan, even Peoria, Counties give us rousing Union triumphs. This is glory enough for one day.

By the Jacksonville Sentinel:
THE ELECTION passed off very quietly and with little disturbance. Many Democrats failed to appear at the polls, and the results were mixed: two radical Republican candidates won by majorities of 42 and 38 respectively; the Democrats won the balance of the ticket with majorities ranging from 6 to 40. Only 4,194 votes were cast.

In Chicago the vote was also very light, with a Republican majority of 2,763.

Old Greene, true to her former teachings, has gone Democratic by about six hundred majority. The democracy have also, for a wonder, carried Clinton, Pike, Washington, Macopin, Morgan, Schuyler, Alexander and Union counties. Jersey went Democratic by a majority of three hundred and fifty-one.

Editor Bailey called the vote light, but we would term it heavy today — 75% of those eligible to vote. This election, from top to bottom, was the closest in Morgan county history. The Republican candidates for sheriff and county clerk later contested the election. The latter gave up in about four months, paid court costs which already amounted to $300, and was appointed Jacksonville postmaster by President Johnson. The defeated candidate for sheriff, who was one of the best soldiers Morgan county sent to the Civil War, pressed his contest, lost, appealed to circuit court, lost again, and the costs gobbled up his fine farm located south of Alexander, a farm that maybe you could buy today for $1,000 per acre — and maybe you couldn't.

ANOTHER PROBABLE HOMICIDE — On Wednesday an altercation occurred on the West side of the square between Daniel McLamarah and Jno. Daulton, when Daulton struck McLamarah three times on the head with a stick of cord wood, crushing the skull and laying him out lifeless. On receiving medical care pulsation returned and he has lingered in an unconscious state up to this writing, but the physicians say he cannot live. Daulton was locked up in jail immediately to prevent disturbance on the part of our citizens, who were highly incensed.

From the Carrollton Gazette:
Wm. Bacon, so long the popular conductor on our railroad, has been made general agent, and has his office in Jacksonville, Mr. O. Leath is the conductor.

The construction train with a large lot of new hands arrived at this place on Wednesday night last, with the view of resuming work on the railroad between this point and Jerseyville. We are also informed that the track-laying coming north was completed to Jerseyville on Tuesday last. This leaves a little less than fourteen miles of track to be put down in order to complete the work. New settlers are coming in daily to swell the population of Carrollton, new business is springing up on all sides, and everything bespeaks a prosperous future.

Old Stuyvesant
Pear Tree

This ancient tree, and landmark of New York, stands on the corner of Thirteenth-st. and Third avenue, and is still in a flourishing condition, this year having borne fruit. It was planted by Peter Stuyvesant, Governor of New Amsterdam, exactly 250 years ago, and stood in front of the porch of his house, and under its shade the one-legged hero sat, and smoked his pipe and quaffed his lager.

The tree has been protected from ruthless hands by an iron railing, and bids fair yet for another hundred years of life.

The cholera sometimes rages in the winter season. In 1830 it raged fearfully at St. Petersburg, Russia, during the whole winter. Cleanliness is one of the best preventives of the disease, and ought to be observed with scrupulous care by local authorities and private persons.

A story, illustrating the cost of amateur farming, is told of a retired merchant, who had a farm on Long Island, with all the modern inventions, and fancy stock of all kinds. After stocking a friend over the premises one day, he invited him into the house, and said: "You have seen the best farm in the State; now sit down and take something. I have milk and champagne. Take your choice — they cost the same."

The 15th of November — first anniversary of the day on which General Sherman began his march to the sea — will be celebrated in Chicago, by a Union Convention of officers from the army which accompanied him. Gen. John A. Logan is to pronounce an oration on the occasion.

A colored man named Charles Syphax, having a considerable quantity of white blood in his veins, is a man of intelligence and excellent character, and is messenger to Secretary Harlan. It also happens that this colored man is a half-brother to Mrs. General Robert E. Lee, and a grand-son of George Washington Parks Curtis, who was a step-son of George Washington! That is quite a pedigree, is it not?

JHS Whips Canton 17-6; ISD Upsets Triopia 26-13

Gollier's Running Paces Jacks' Edge

By BUFORD GREEN

Harry Gollier ran wild, Friday night, in leading the Jacksonville Crimsons to their third victory of the football season, an impressive 17-6 non-conference triumph over the Canton Little Giants.

Gollier, a junior fullback, chalked up his finest offensive game of the year. 'The Horse' legged the ball for 180 yards on 19 carries, scoring the two JHS touchdowns, one an electrifying 66-yard scamper that broke the game wide open.

Jacksonville racked up its best rushing totals of the year in the game, snapping out of an offensive slump that left them scoreless in their last two outings before Friday night.

Gollier ground out 81 yards in the first, half sparking a JHS offense that had been dead up until midway in the second period. He personally led an 84-yard scoring drive, picking up 68 of those yards in eight tries.

The victory moves Jacksonville's season record to 3-4-1, and leaves them with a shot at gaining a 500 season with a win over Hannibal here next week. Canton drops to a 2-6 record on the campaign.

Besides his running, Gollier added another big boost to the JHS cause with his fine punting. He averaged 43.5 yards on four boots, his kicking dominating the first quarter.

Gollier got off a 59-yarder early in the quarter, putting Canton in a hole at their own one. Later in the period he got off a 36-yarder, again putting it out on the Canton one.

Canton made it into JHS ground only once in the opening quarter, as a result of a fumble recovery at the Crimson 46. JHS played most of the opening 12 minutes in Canton territory, but was unable to pick up a first down.

Ground Offensive

The Jacksonville ground machine that netted an impressive total of 254 net yards gained for the night got started early in the second period.

The Crimsons took over on their own 16 and marched 84

yards in 18 plays to open the game's scoring. Gollier was the spark in the drive with his 64 yards, punching ten to 12 yards in five carries.

From the seven Gollier gained four to the three, and after Larry Angelo was stopped for no gain, Gollier punched over for the score with 4:47 left in the half. Roger Patterson split the uprights on the PAT attempot for a 7-0 difference.

Canton got the ball on their own 19 with just over a minute left before intermission and started their best offensive drive of the night. Fullback Mike Griffith broke loose for 35 yards to the Jacksonville 46 before Joe Grojean halted him. After two passes fell incomplete, Griffith again broke through the JHS defense for a 30-yard pickup to the 16.

From there halfback Steve Berta went in untouched, and the entire JHS defense went for Griffith on a cross-buck that fooled everyone. The kick for the PAT was short, leaving JHS with a 7-6 margin with :28 to play in the half.

Jacksonville took the opening kickoff of the second half and marched to the Canton two. In that drive it was mainly Gollier again, getting able assistance from Angelo and Abe Brown.

Field Goal Successful

Faced with a fourth and two situation at the Canton two, Jacksonville scored again on a perfect field goal by Patterson. The field goal did not seemingly help the Crimsons cause at the time, giving them a four-point advantage instead of one.

Roger Zulauf recovered a Canton fumble on the Jacksonville 34 to half a Canton threat that had the Crimsons in deep trouble.

Gollier broke the game wide open on the next play, breaking off right tackle and outrunning the secondary for a 66-yard TD gallop. Patterson again booted the extra point for a 17-6 JHS advantage with seven minutes to play.

The next Canton drive was again thwarted by a fumble, this time recovered by Larry Cook at the Canton 29.

A late Canton threat that picked up three first downs in a long march was finally stopped at the Jacksonville ten as the Crimsons defense held for four straight running plays.

The Wildcats scored in the first 12 minutes when Gary Harbison made it across from six yards out.

Speedster Larry Evans took over for Winchester and brought them in the 18-0 halftime spread. Evans scooted 74 yards for one touchdown and 47 yards for another, the last one coming with only ten seconds to play in the half.

North Greene threatened twice in the opening 12 minutes, marching steadily to the Greenfield 17 before bogging down.

Big League Bosses Have Risky Job

NEW YORK (AP) — The resignation of Al Lopez as field leader of the Chicago White Sox on Thursday points up the fact that big league baseball managing is more of a risk than a romp.

Lopez had been managing major league teams for 15 consecutive seasons, six in Cleveland and the last nine in Chicago. This was longer than any current pilot in either the National or American League.

The new leader is Walt Alston, who's directed the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles for the past 12 years. In fact, in point of service with one club, Alston held a three-year edge over Lopez.

There's a sharp drop to the runner-up. He's Gene Mauch, who has managed the Philadelphia Phillies the past six years. Then come Bill Rigney of the Angels, Los Angeles and California, five years, and Sam Mele, four seasons at the helm of the Minnesota Twins.

Bobby Bragan of Braves, Chuck Dressen of Detroit, Gil Hodges of Washington and Birdie Tebbets, Cleveland, each has spent three years with his current team while Hank Bauer has managed Baltimore for two seasons.

Those with only a single year of service with their present clubs are Herman Franks of San Francisco, Luman Harris of Houston, Red Schoendienst of St. Louis, Harry Walker of Pittsburgh, Johnny Keane of the New York Yankees, Haywood Sullivan of Kansas City and Billy Herman of Boston.

Since the close of last season, Don Heffner has replaced Dick Sisler at Cincinnati while Leo Durocher was named Manager of the Chicago Cubs.

No replacement has been named for Lopez nor for Casey Stengel, who retired after 25 years as a big league pilot, including the last four with the New York Mets.

Alston, 53 years old, has led the Dodgers to five National League pennants and four world championships. He's brought them home second three times and third, fourth, sixth and seventh once each.

Brown County, Saukees Tie 6-6

MT. STERLING — Brown County and Pittsfield fought to a 6-6 Midwest conference deadlock here Friday night, with the hosts pushing across a fourth-period score to earn the tie.

The hosts got on the scoreboard when they marched from their own 36 to score on Dennis Fetch's two-yard plunge. Brown County got another shot when they recovered a Pittsfield fumble and marched to the Saukee ten before fumbling the ball back.

The tie leaves Brown County with a 5-2-1 overall mark, 2-1-1 in the conference. Pittsfield is now 1-3-3 on the year and 1-1-1 in the Midwest. Both Pittsfield and Brown County still have a chance to tie for the top should Pittsfield knock off Mendon next week.

Score by quarters:
Brown County 0 0 0 6-6

Auburn Tromps Waverly By 40-0

AUBURN — Auburn ran wild to the tune of 491 yards here Friday night, scoring at will in a 40-0 MSM romp over Waverly. The hosts completely overpowered the Scotties in every department.

Curtis, Richardson Spark Tiger Margin

Danny Curtis returned two intercepted passes for touchdowns in the fourth quarter, carrying the fired-up ISD Tigers to a 26-13 PMSC surprise over Triopia, Friday afternoon at the ISD field.

The Tigers handed Triopia its first conference loss of the year in the upset, and left Porta with a chance to grab a share of the top honors.

Curtis' thefts broke a 13-13 deadlock, and came within a few seconds of each other, completely overwhelming the Trojan outfit. While Curtis and Ray Richardson handled the offensive chores with plenty to spare, the Tiger defense rose to its greatest height of the year.

The mighty Trojan ground game was limited to only 38 yards for the game, and only five first downs. Triopia, with quarterback Jim Morrison throwing, was able to move only in the air, accounting for 107 yards there.

Curtis, probably playing his best game ever, chewed up 89 yards on 12 carries, while Richardson carried 12 times for 61 yards. Both scored two touchdowns.

The win pushes ISD over the 500 mark for the year with a 4-3-1 record, 3-1-1 in the PMSC. Triopia drops to 6-2, 5-1 in the conference. A Porta victory over Rountt next week would throw the conference into a two-way tie.

Both spirited groups were called for numerous penalties, 95 yards being walked off on ISD and 87 on Triopia.

The first time ISD got the ball they went in to score. The Tigers got the ball on the Trojan 13 after a short punt and a good runback by Curtis. Terry Story carried to the nine and Richardson lunged over from there.

Trojans Tie Game

A 20-yard pass from Morrison to halfback Bill Meier put Triopia in position for their initial score, in the second period. Meier promptly added 13 more yards on a double reverse to the 38 and two plays later Morrison hit Harlan Fricke for 35 yards to the three. From there Morrison made it across to tie the game at 6-6.

The first time Triopia got the ball in the second half they went in to score. The big break of the drive, which started on the ISD 32 after a short punt of only 17 yards, was a 15-yard walkoff against the Tigers after they had held Triopia to no gain on three running plays.

On the first play after the penalty Morrison hurled to Meiers for a 16-yard touchdown. A Morrison pass to Jim Paul added the PAT and a 13-6 difference.

ISD mounted a 62-yard march on their next series, but bogged down at the Triopia ten. The Tigers held Triopia on a running attempt and two incomplete passes, aided by a five-yard penalty on the visitors.

Richardson hauled in the Triopia punt at the Trojan 40, and behind excellent blocking, scampered all the way for the second Tiger score. Harry Bloomgreen ran the PAT over to tie the game.

Early in the final 12 minutes Curtis picked off his first interception at midfield and broke loose down the sideline for the go-ahead score.

Two plays later Curtis again turned the trick, this time intercepting at his own 35 and returning it 65 yards down the opposite sideline. Terry Story passed to Ron Nuzzo for the PAT and the 26-13 final.

Curtis broke loose again from scrimmage late in the game, carrying 28 yards before stepping out of bounds with no one in front of him at the 18.

Sheppard, Berry Spark 19-7 Edge

JERSEYVILLE — Randy Sheppard and Tom Berry sparked a powerful Jerseyville ground attack here Friday night, as the Panthers rolled to a 19-7 grid victory over Roxana.

Sheppard ground out 143 yards in 20 carries, with Berry adding 102 in 14 tries. Berry scored two of the Panthers' TDs.

The Panthers got on the scoreboard first, with Berry breaking loose off left guard for a 32-yard scoring gallop.

Jerseyville stopped a long Roxana march in the third quarter, a drive that took up 19 plays, at the Panther four-yard stripe.

Berry broke over the middle for 40 yards early in the final 12 minutes for an insurance tally. Later in the period David Blackborly scored on a nine-yard reverse and Dan Berthou booted the point after for a 19-0 difference.

Roxana's only score came late in the quarter when Dick Donna tossed three yards to Ned Thompson. An 84-yard Donna pass to Bob Wilson set up the score. Wilson ran PAT.
